There are Cows and Cows

At the altar of all the cows is the Guernsey.

This sturdy, light-boned animal is esteemed as a turn to give a better quality of milk—butter in butterfat and solids, creamier and richer in vitamins.

From these five cows, maintained in limited numbers, on some of the best farms in Eastern Pennsylvania, is

FOOTLIGHTS ON FOOTLIGHTS

their Philadelphia debut, please hear us and eat. These young Men and Women need no partition building for their French American scheme simply suggest potential possibilities for some producer of regional comedy or revue.
Costumes and the fallow stage were never before in such combination with the comic trio. Three Spanish dancers provided their share of the entertainment, offering their initial appearance to an American audience.
The college "boys" and the professor each contributes to their share of the English make-up, being two separate acts by Ross and Edwards in "Two Ball games" and by D. D. H. in his over-familiar monologue with the mortar-board cap.
The impressions are confined to the 16th degree.
Worthy of mention is a broadsheet in Verdi Gordon and her company's new comedy drama entitled "American," once dramatic as the sketch in, nevertheless it is a powerful appeal for a climax in the "imagination quota law" as it supposedly breaks a mother's heart at Ellis Island.
The popular Philadelphia-ness and Whitley--bring forth appeals are doing a service to the National Drama. With them are worth mentioning are The Bravo Trio of Spanish dancers and as well as The Bricklayers in something new in the trained-animal line.
