ENGINERS' SHOW OPENS TONIGHT

Fourth Annual Production of Men About Town Club will Make First Appearance

DANCE TO FOLLOW PERFORMANCE

With a final dress rehearsal last night, the Men About Town Club presented the annual Duncan show, the inaugural performance of the season, which will be held tonight in the auditorium of the Engineering Building. Pre- pared under the direction of the Associated Press of the entire cast in various departments.

The work of directing this cast this year is the responsibility of A. Schaefer and R. Richter, both of whom are the creators of the show. It is the last show of the year.

The program will consist of a musical comedy based on the theme of "The Story of a Man," which is a very popular play of the time. The comedy is in two acts with twelve musical numbers. One of the features of this production is a Peking Opera presented by the Chinese club. Miss Elena Stein of Philadelphia, is expected to be the soloist in this act, which will be held on the third day of the show.

Mr. Van Houten, the director of the show, is the producer of this act, and is expected to give a wonderful performance.

Grappers Near End Of Noce Tourney

Continuing the wrestling tournament, the grappers in the 155 pound and 145 pound classes, Coach Hanson had made it clear that all men will have to show their best to be reported before the Christmas holidays.

The grappers displayed the same fighting spirit which was so evident in their match in the 155 pound class. The grappers have demonstrated that the 155 pound group is the best in the country in this weight class. Several of the most popular regulars mixed up with them in a contest of skill and were defeated by their superior skill.

The 155 pound class will be completed when the final match is held on the third day of the tourney.

Several of the men in the 145 pound class were defeated by the men in their section. The result was an excellent performance by the men in the 145 pound class.

The 125 pound class will be finished when the final match is held on the third day of the tourney.

The 115 pound class will be completed when the final match is held on the third day of the tourney.

To review,

W. T. M. wrote the column every day. Why he took thirty-two copies of the issue himself.

There were also a number of comments from the recipients of the thoughtful little gifts that were initiated. One even took the form of a formal retaliation. Thus:

RETAILIATION!

Here's me city.

As the bard said when he sharpened his razor, preparatory to sharing a gentleman's threat, "I open you take it seriously, I do not want to kill you." Well, in regard to Satta "lane and his much appreciated gifts, Chetina Chomero received a note directed to Satta saying, "I want that cake!" Peter Boy. Later another cage which brought tears to the Chomero's eye, "I want another Blond Mama!" Peter Boy. Several well known movie films, seen here recently, should have been dedicated to some of our campus heroes in order to be real appropriate.

There's the done.

We've been as mean as possible, as maybe a bitanner.

Another inspiration came from the nimble brains of Fred and Blue. To quote him, "This is the poem that "Petey Boy" hok, but failed is write:"

When You Buy That Christmas Gift

We owe an explanation to the campus. Query upon query has been centered asking why there have been no comments of W. T. M.'s column, as it seems only right and proper that it should be explained.

Because of our sincere respect for the "Book Club" we can not at all adverse criticisms of his masterpieces, thus exercising great power of will for there was a vitriolic storm of them.

But when W. T. M., "Petey Boy", etc., noting that a day had past to without a slab at him, strides into our sanctum and gives it as his own opinion that his column was of real value and quality that some of his favorable comment could have been made on it, what can a rational being to let his man the truth?

For instance, an envious teacher remarked that if W. T. M. wrote the column every day there would be no cause for worry should the press break down again, (with the nasty inference that no one would bother to read the honored daily then anyway.)

Naturally we can't explain the youth shaggy. Of course some one would read the Pennsylvania if W. T. M. wrote the column every day. Why he took thirty-two copies of the issue himself.

the University at a heart, a definite stand will be taken in the matter.

To review. A compromise agreement was drawn up to be in force one year, during which time its strong and weak points could be noted and filed away for when a permanent covenant was effected. We happen to know that a strong committee is being formed to act as an observer, and that its personal will be announced in proper time.

Additional facts. Two prominent smokers have been brought to justice on the basis of a false title story of infringement of the Agreement. Minor points are already causing mutual discontent, and, in some cases, poor feeling in the atmosphere. To sum up, we wonder what kind of report the aforementioned committee will make if they are not amnestied on the part of the fraternities to get at the root of the problem. What can they think of only quarrels and attempts to create the Brooks principles of the compromise, by taking shelter behind technicalities, come before their eyes.

We ask "Can such an attitude fail to effect the University as a whole?" A promise. If the fraternity idea proves that they cannot handle their own affairs; and if this inability has a derea cold hand, mainly, this has been true. The team of recent years have not lived up to the standards of former years. And it seems that the reasons, when boiled down, resides themselves into the fact that too many athletes are forced to leave school because of scholastic difficulties. Instead of one year of freshman athletics, and three more in competi tion for Varsity teams, the equal of men reporting at the beginning of their first year in the University is considerably depleted—often minus its most promising prospects—by the time the second or third year rolls around. This is a serious difficulty and one which has been a great handicap to the and to all that can be done.

SHUREB--HOTHIES & MARLOWE

Bohemian and Marlowe are at the blue bent this week and we're in their Shakespearean repertoire. And if their pack is as much real ability and compelling interest in the remaining performances as they did into "Romeo and Juliet" Monday night, followers of the justified bond of Bohemians here will be more than amply rewarded for their attendance. It is safe to say that the shallow college mind will regret Philadelphia.

For, to begin with, the serene effect is more impressive and more captivating than that usually attempted by Shakespearean companies. Not that the tragedy are over done or that they distract the attention for the direct portrayal of character, but just that they constitute a delightful background which is sure and yet not seen. The mechanics of the staging are well considered, every property, and scene dropping its usual silliness.

Indeed the whole representation is characterized by a freedom from that unmitigated (to this day and age) spirit we associate with Shakespearean. Bohemians' renderings of his hero are conceived in a manner different from that which modern "shakes" confines, but Mr. Shakespearian in his unmitigated scolding "time has gone forever."

And Miss Marlowe, as Juliet, so ordinarily does fall in love with him at first sight that we are convinced without quibble.

"Love!" Was love mentioned? This, his leading scene is worth the whole price of admission, and supplies many lines which can be fitted away for future recitation. Miss Marlowe is not well (and pardon is asked for this she is either than Juliet is supposed to be—after all that is forgotten under the charm of her loneliness. If we are any nearer to her than the memory of a few feet of a scene which were ready to say "I'll and I die", when she asked "Tell me that this love of mine is not the only one so exaggerated dedicated, other—not that she possesses Shakespearean hero. The whole extent of emotion is rare, and their capacity for sympathy is limited. But her acting has been the point in the piece's evil, for he has killed Juliet's betrothed, and rises to almost exalted heights when he says his name brings her the news of his bride's death. Miss Marlowe is superbly sure and shows him the sleeping potion.

Isaac Lumen Chongchet, as Juliet's nurse, revolves many a tense moment by her Febrile tender, and Frederick Lewis as Marquette injects feeling and meaning into soliloquies which might otherwise be dull.

And now we are going to declare which is the greatest Shakespearean in the present play? "Love"? Hamlet in "Hamlet". Wartfield in "Taming of the Shrew". Marlowe in "Romeo and Juliet". The last may be seen.

RED AND BLUE ELECT.E NEW MEMBER TO EDITORIAL BOARD

James Haas, '25WU., was elected to the editorial board of the Red and Blue Monday night. Frederick Stoffeck, '21 WH, editor-in-chief of the publications, said the competition recently closed was one of the most successful in recent years. Others elected at earlier board meeting were announced recently.

The December issue of Red and Blue will be published Monday. The Christmas number will contain several special features and the cover design will be drawn by Paul Pomfret, '25WU.

"Ge Hokey as Major Sport" line hockey may become a major sport at the University of Vermont this winter. The students having voted on the subject majority to adopt the sport in preference to track. The action was taken at a mass meeting of the students. Lake Champlain is but a short distance from the University and the river there is kept in excellent condition. Also there is sufficient ice for skating.
