ENLIGHTENING SERMONS AT Many of the Thrust of Philadelphia Churches

Among the most interesting services being held in Philadelphia churches this Christmas is that of the Westminster Presbyterian Church. Twenty-five years ago the church started a series of 31 services for the purpose of enlightening young people. It is still going on and will be continued on an experimental basis. As the service was held during Christmas week, it was attended by many young people.

Murray playing left defense for the Red and Blue scored first. The tally was made by a fast break by Hindman who had the upper hand of the middle of the rink. As he went to the rubber, the referee called the goal. The second goal by Murray was scored in the same way, and the puck was driven into the Pittsburgh goal from the left side.

A goal scored by the Orange and Black University team tonight, in the same manner, was scored by Martin Cross because the net was not open. With a goal of place in the performance which put the team in the lead, the referee called the goal, and the game was declared over.

With left wing and Captain Pringle leading the Red and Blue, in a majority of the plays, Prince showed off his famous ability. The idea was to hook up many passes. Martin Cross was the chief benefactor, as he scored almost all the tallies of the day.

The Red and Blue team will hold final practice to prepare for the game with Yale at New Haven on Wednesday, and the game will be played at the arena at 7:30 and practice will be held on Monday.

Nixon, head of the Ben Franklin Committee, at a recent meeting was asked to explain the purpose of the committee and to describe the activities planned for the year. He said that the main goal of the committee is to provide a forum for the exchange of ideas and information on all aspects of management, with an emphasis on the development of leadership skills.

He also mentioned that the committee is planning a series of lectures and seminars, as well as a series of workshops aimed at helping members develop their skills in areas such as communication, problem-solving, and decision-making.

Nixon emphasized the importance of networking and collaboration within the committee, and encouraged members to take an active role in organizing and attending events. He concluded by thanking everyone for their support and dedication to the committee's mission.

EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER

The article from the Evening Public Ledger seems to be discussing various men and women of the country and their contributions to higher education and college training. The text mentions the importance of higher education and the challenge of running institutions that are highly esteemed by the public. It also touches on the current belief in certain quarters that as enrollments grow, the instruction will become poorer. The article ends with a discussion of the annual meeting of the American Educational Association, the importance of educational institutions, and the role of professors and teachers in higher education.
