BASKETBALL PROSPECTS
GROWING MUCH BRIGHTER

Team on Upward Path After Winners
From Princeton—Crucial Trif With
Cornell Tomorrow

PASSENGERS WILL BE IN GREAT SHAPE

(By an Interested Observer)

Before the naddle of the recent examination period, Princeton coach's choice in the intercollegiates, Basketball Longshoremen seemed to be pretty good. The Red and Blue quarter had beaten Yale and has Columbia on their floor, which wasn't so bad for a start, considering that the same fate was experienced by every other member of the league. Then came the ride to Cornell, Dartmouth and Harvard, on the end of which the percentage table showed that Pennsylvania had developed three league games, and only one loss. Things began to look a trifle more promising. The only clue that kept up the hopes in their floor was the fact that it had managed to defeat Harvard by its own floor, thus, in the opinion of the experts, raising it. On the Red and Blue was concern, the fate of the team that had been ruling every team in the league which played on a foreign floor. Princeton name beat, and both the team and the student body knew that everything, so far as Pennsylvania's chances in the games were concerned, depended on that game, gave everything they had. The result was the best that could have been hoped for—there was no beaten in his list! The victory at Princeton gave the team a new lease on life, while practically spelled "Fraud" to Princeton's FSU title aspiration.

Tomorrow the greatest Cornell —in Weighman Hall. That last is a significant phrase at any time in basketball, but what it refers to a game with Cornell, it's particularly significant. Cornell has a reputation for having one of the worst playing floors in the league. Whether or not the Cornell team practices with shoes on its floor one knows, but the fact is well-known that games played on Cornell's floor are often atomic finished. It seems that the floor is very slippery, and that the half in less time after time, nearly backwards because the players can't keep their feet. In prior to the Cornell players, it should be said that they seem to experience as much difficulty as the visiting teams in this way, but the condition of the floor is particularly disastrous to a team which uses a fast, running system of play, such as this in which the Pennsylvania team is drilled. Cornell won at Universoia by a score of 17-14, and, while this is far away as it is by no means as it is in, there is no doubt that the slippery floor helps as many of Pennsylvania's shots out of the basket as the Cornell guards.

The year 1922 was a "vintage year" for Burley tobaccos—the best Kentucky ever grown. Favored all through the season with favorable tobacco weather—just enough rainfall and not too much heat—the crop developed a "body" and character seldom before equaled. Our recent $50 million pound purchase included a big carry-over from this fine crop. Fine quality—rich, full, mellow flavor—this is nothing new for Vick's Burley; but this high-quality is extra safeguard. The same price—mark this well—we make our famous line of Burley grown in Kentucky.
