FELLOWSHIPS OFFERED BY GENERAL ELECTRIC

Competition Open to Graduates of Any University, College, or Tech School in Country

Five thousand dollars is available for award annually by the Charles A. Coffin Foundation, established by the General Electric Company, for fellowships in electricity, physics and physical chemistry, to graduates of the universities, colleges and technical schools of the United States, who have shown, by the character of their work, that they would with advantage, undertake or continue research work in educational institutions, in this country or abroad.

Six such fellowships were awarded last year, and opportunity is now open to make application for those to be given this year. The fellowships carry a minimum income of five hundred dollars per year, which sum may be increased to meet the special needs of a student in whom they are created. The Foundation committee is charge of Dr. McKenzie desires to award some fellowships to men who, without financial assistance, would be unable to pursue their studies of research work. Applications will be welcomed from students in the graduate departments of colleges, universities and technical schools, but any award to a woman is to be conditional upon her graduation.

Applications must be filed with the committee by April 15, 1924, and should be addressed to W. T. Trench, Secretary, Charles A. Coffin Foundation, 65, New York, from whom the necessary blanks may be obtained on request. Candidates who have graduated not more than one year may fulfill their applications directly to the Secretary of the Foundation, at the same address.

The Coffin Fellowship is now open to all universities of the United States, who have been in existence not less than five years and have just received a Charter.

INTERCOLLEGIATE BALL LEAGUE MAY BE FORMED

Eastern colleges and universities are planning the formation of an intercollegiate baseball league, consisting of six to eight teams, for next year. This project has long been under consideration, and is heartily endorsed by many college athletic clubs among them John T. Blossom, Yale Athletic Director, and Andrew C. Dudley, Columbia University's coach. The plan would have been carried out this spring, but Princeton reconsidered its decision and decided that the time was not yet opportune for such a move. Of latter years, the interest formerly taken in collegiate baseball has abated everywhere on account of the increased influence of the professional leagues, whose a better brand of baseball is unquestionably played than by the university teams. It has been decided to depart from precedent and omit the traditional column of advice to Hodgers. When one considers all the advice those fresmen will receive in the next few weeks, any additional words of ours would be entirely superfluous.

We are sorry to inform the column’s well-wishers that Ed Incheef positively refuses to allow us to heed their suggestions and print the Interfraternity Agreement in full in this space devoted to the little gifts of humor.

Even realizing that it is bad form for a columnist to do in the little gift of penning, we must call your attention to the fact that M. Se was arrested the other day for home incinma.

Whenever he begins to think very pretty but so far as he knows of there are no more learning brains, something, these basketball diagrams for instance, are sure to come along to take the wind out of our sails. On reading that some four-year-old child could name and identify forty-five animals we had to admit that we had no memories there; were they different kind of animals in existence?

Which reminds us of the old joke about the hill in the Geography examination. Slip as you’ve fixed it, which was asked in name five animals in the Arctic region, giving the answer two-hour bears and three cats. Therefore, the Man, control yourself, we didn’t know it would affect you this way.

The distinguished Mr. Edmundson stated as saying, “I was a dumb bell once.” We think it would be an excellent improvement along this line for you, you may lapse into sort of a crack aboult his. You know that if we do all of your thinking for you, you may lose your sense of mental stagnation and become utterly incapable of the clever conversation that characterizes a Pennsylvania man when ever he goes. From time to time we shall include simple problems in writing the Column for you to practice on.

The statement in our favorite newspaper that “the odds are four to one in Fretwell’s favor” rather surprised us, for we thought that Cornell was expected to win the intercollegiate championship.

Headline from a local newspaper “Basketball Rides Bicycle to Kearney to Visit Friends, Is Found Near Exhaustion.”

Most have taken the wrong road.

President Codlidge’s warning against a national spending orgy proves to be long and rousing laughter. For the last week, due to the non-arrival of the regular weekly, we have been walking around the campus with a band of lost cats in our pockets—one cat in each pocket. It certainly gives one a peculiar feeling to have to stop to consider if one can afford an evening newspaper.

We are in a position to sympathize with the chap in San Francisco who has lived in a hotel since 1904, having had classes in E2 Logan for the last three years.

XQ-QK, contributions by OJ and GJ would wish to claim Pennsylvania as his Alma Mater. Despite various activities, our over-organized undergraduate life left us to keep the proper balance; the proper name of preposition. Pennsylvania is still a reminder of knowledge and a trainer of thought and bids fair in light of future policy to strengthen her already revered position.

As Worn By The Prince of Wales

"On the Occasion of the Fall of the Conservative Government..." the Prince of Wales... wore a Tweed-looked Jacket, with a Double-breasted Waist Coat cut straight at the Waistline. The Prince’s Trousers were wider than usual, and finished without a turnup. The material was Stone Gray.

PROVES THEORY WITH SLIDES

Dr. Paul Kammerer of the University of Vienna, located in Brussels last year of the "Inheritance of Acquired Characteristics." Every student in the Audience was astonished to learn that Prof. Kammerer has submitted a theory which was debated in the public press by the late Prof. Friedrich Nietzsche. The lecturer figures prominently in the public press as a part of a debate with Prof. Max Ehrlich of Vienna, who advocated the view that the results of experiments on the newt, which was said to have reached maturity under artificial conditions, were not the same as those of the wild newt, which was not the same as those of the wild newt, which had been elongated by artificial means.

While Dr. Kammerer shied of evidence in support of his theories to the claim of the Audience that he had based his research, naturally the audience was assembled to the point of going to the home of the great scientist. The majority of the audience believed that he had not made his research, but that he has transferred his work to another laboratory, and that the experiment is still in progress.

Dr. Kammerer brought forth evidence that the results of experiments on the newt, which had been elongated by artificial means, are not the same as those of the wild newt, which had been elongated by natural means.

The newt in the Audience had come dressed up in its best clothes, and the lecturer had made all possible preparations to show the audience Dr. Kammerer's evidence and to demonstrate the validity of his theories.

Dr. Kammerer is noted furthermore as the first to prove this theory. The majority of the Audience were filled to the brim with enthusiasm when the lecturer announced that he had proved the existence of "Inheritance of Acquired Characteristics."
