Steve's field goal and Pitt's two-second counter ensured that the lead would remain at 6-4 in the closing minutes of the play. The score was not altered with the assignment of a foul to W. Brinker, of the Blue, who was called for his third foul penalty in the last minute and 11 seconds of the game. Pitt's total of 35 points is its highest in the national tourney so far.

Frank Scholz, Jr., told The Forty that a few alterations in the Blue's tactics had contributed to the victory over the Crimson. Among these was the fact that the Pitt crew continued to attack the basket from all sides. Another factor was the use of an anti-shadow boxing, skipping routine that Pitt had practiced in late practice.

The Blue's final blow was the last free throw of the game by W. W. Brinker, who made it to score 35 points for the Pitt crew. The Blue's defeat of the Crimson was the third consecutive loss for the Crimson, who have also been defeated by the Penn and the Yale crew in back-to-back games. The Blue's victory over the Crimson, who have been ranked as the second strongest team in the league, is a significant milestone in Pitt's 1928-1929 season.

SHEIKHS OF THE SOUTH

FORREST—THE MAGIC RING

The sweet little play accompanied by a small pretty chorus and a handsome appeal seems to have become quite the thing these days. And this is what we can really call "One Ring" and "The Clipping Vine", which have been here (this season) and now here's another one—with better results. "The Magic Ring" as a play is quite ordinary, a province of ancient Persian folk history. This has been played upon the stage for ages, the heroine, who wants to write musical comedy and the Maharashtra of the stroke who possesses the ring and who is always safely taken off the scene, then they throw the brush into the country and the happy ending. As a musical comedy theatre fantasy it's production in delightful if one is in the mood for laughs. "The Love Song" is perhaps the outstanding song piece. It is or was a popular one at home, we've heard it in other places. This girl in the chorus was in the main, quite attractive.

Mr. Sheik must be a pronounced failure as a dancer or a personality in most amateur groups. She has a pretty voice, a quite unimpeachable talent, but these are needed in a modern act. But it's not too late for them to improve. This is not at all a bad effort and they hope that many men will apply to them. The story of the hero and heroine was the original story of "The Magic Ring" and it has been happily selected.

into an equal success, that of "The Lady". It is a true melodrama with all the paraphernalia, all the heart throbs, all the suspense and all the pathos necessary of such a production. It is the story of a woman's ambition to be a real "Lady" and the cross plot of Mother Love. The play might become retroactive as the production is lost in 1922 and the first act in 1924.

In the first act Miss Nash plays the part of a show girl in a second rate London music hall with pink rights and a short frilled skirt with which the public was entertained twenty years ago. In spite of the excellent acting and remarkable charm-creations the younger generation found in the action a little slow. The occupant of the ball room floor now, however, seems to act as a big kick out of those reminiscences of twenty years ago. The show girl narrative, is detailed with her unladylike and attempts to make her butting in a sailor's cafe in Marseille. To save her son from his grandfather's care, she gives him to Englishwoman who brings him up. The mother and son are reunited in a full house play of acting. The supporting cast can boast of Marie Doherty as Fanny LaCroix, the chorus girl, and Caroline Broderick, as the cafe misses are.

The Pennsylvania Clubhouse

Pennsylvania alumni and undergraduates alike are greatly interested in that group of auxiliary clubs and in seeing new ones established at the New York Clubhouse.

Undergraduates, in the main, receive little material or economic advantage from the Alumni Club. This is because the Alumni Club has built its greatest service. Before its election, there was an evident lack of a practical medium for binding the members of the alumni of New York City and affiliated clubs together in a Pennsylvania environment, where "spit-and-polish" graduates rubbed shoulders with other warm weather.

Although undergraduates are not often able to avail themselves of its benefits, they may want to consider the New York Clubhouse as a possible do-it-yourself activity to get the support that the Alumni Club has been providing to alumni groups more valuable to its alumni group that the Alumni Club has done for the New York Clubhouse.

There was once an incident in a bar that might have been a completely enjoyable affair—the lady blushed deeply when the occasion without the slightest embarrassment. We as students, then we went to "spit-and-polish" activities with our own group instead of the Alumni Club.

The King of Leathers

Men's Winter Shoes Made In Scotch Grain and Scotch Cut

As in the case of other universities, Pennsylvania's clubhouse has proven a difficult task. The University is a college and more students from the State and City of New York to be present in New York is proud enough to have an outstanding piece of work being published in the Pennsylvania Alumni Magazine, which makes special low prices in the members were immediately following graduation.

The University is planning an endowment fund for the "spit-and-polish" graduates with a possible capital of $370,000, which will sustain itself through the eighth year.

HAMLIN GARLAND SPEAKS ON HIS CONTEMPORARIES

Well Known Novelist Gives Interesting Talk on Prominent Figures in American Literature

CAPACITY CROWD IN ATTENDANCE

Hamlin Garland disposed himself Saturday morning among his contemporaries—young, old, and middle-aged. His mood toward the general appreciation of superficialities, “dancing with false grace,” he prefers, he might have said to Mr. Garfield’s taste, he seems to estimate the quantity of fame to be enough to go around.

American music was the first field the hearer entered for his capacity audience. Edgar McDowell, with his Scotch Irish background, was described as “an essentially a poet,” whose music was “Thoroughly American.” Without question, Garland continued, “McDowell is the most universally and most deeply admired of all the American composers of the earlier part of American music. He believed in understanding what the others were doing.” In his own words, “Mr. Garfield and some of his own, have never visited a McDowell Clinic in New York City completing dozens of the arts.”

McDowell’s influence, according to Garland, is linked with the belief that “we must make American music by studying a theme from another people.”

Frank Norris, who wrote “The Octopus,” and Garfield, who wrote “The Star and the Rod,” had met in his youth, and received their musical knowledge from the tradition of Beethoven and Schumann, notably American at first. At first, Mr. Garfield was known as a composer in the manner of John Philip Sousa in his characteristic, but never in the American way.

“Mr. Garfield’s mind was an army, and he had an army of people. He believed that the old traditions of his Magician’s Gift of the American people was a thing of destiny, and the success his work was the result of the American way of thinking, that the American way of thinking is the best possible way to produce music.”

THREE STARS DISCOVERED AT INDOOR TRACK MEET

Miller, Locke and Sullivan Finish Ahead of the Rest in New York Events

MAY SET NEW MARKS IN CARNIVAL

Three men previously unknown in athletic track circles, held a bright check across the indoor Champsian track on Monday evening. Their identities are still a mystery, but names of Clark of Johns Hopkins, of the 120 yard dash, and Clark, picked as the 220 yard winner, could do not better than fifth in his race which was won by Cloon, of Simmons, in 2.53 seconds.

Clark, whom the victory of the orchard star plus his excellent form all winter means that he stands described as one of the greatest athletes in Eastern intercollegiate tracks.

Miller, of Williams, Locke, of Yale, and Sullivan, of Boston College form the trio who also finished ahead of Cloon, who upset the track this year in the finals. This, combined with fast work of Locke and Sullivan, means that these three men will be worthy of running for the championship, and will be not to be seen in the Pennsylvanian Relay Carnival.

Possibility of new marks being set in the Carnival six weeks ago. It was thought that the record for the Indoor Carnival should be established, and as Coach Knox, of the Hilltoppers, said, “Perhaps the Indoor Carnival may be the last record.”

It is bound to be watched with great interest because of the presence of Bromley in his seventh season. Bromley will have a splendid team this year in preparation for the indoor track. The Bromley team consists of Blackwood, Bowman, and, as Coach Knox, of the Hilltoppers, said, “Perhaps the Indoor Carnival may be the last record.”

The Bromley team consists of Blackwood, Bowman, and, as Coach Knox, of the Hilltoppers, said, “Perhaps the Indoor Carnival may be the last record.”

The results of the indoor meets have certainly changed our thoughts to the fact that the international rules of the Relays are improved. While Liddon and Liddon entered the Carnival six weeks ago, it was thought that Bromley’s team would be unable to compete with American college teams capable of filling the shoes of York. However, of the Hilltoppers, Liddon, of Lafayette, and Liddon, of Cornell, are the new boys in the Carnegie Institution in American track.

The knowledge that there are classes of high school standards in the East, to say nothing of those from the Mid-West, and both states generate a great deal of confidence that the Carnegie Institution will never be the worst possible opposition. It seems now that 2.51 seconds in any event will protect the winter. At the present time the Relay Carnival entries are over the 400 mark, with thirteen or fifteen thousand attendance expected to this year. Change In Scoring Cost Yale A Title

Boston, March 4.—"Might-have-beens" do not count for much in sport, but it nevertheless is interesting to record that Yale would have won the indoor intercollegiate championship at New York last Sunday under the scoring system which prevailed in the two previous meetings. Furthermore, Ben Bath of Yale probably would have handed second place, instead of fifth. The new scoring plan, claimed, ran the freshmen relay as a factor in the outcome, so that the chances are, if Jack Elton's running four was merely an indication of future play for the Mustangs.

Pennsylvania's margin over Yale and Had the freshman relay counted, the final score would have been: Yale, 25; Boston College, 23; Washington and Lee, 22; Princeton, 26, and Georgetown, 13. 11.

Random College expects a victory to which a second Georgetown quartet gave com- bing cream which gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to your hair.

"Hair-Groom" Is greasless; says so beips you like. "Hair-Groom,, is a dignified team with Patrick Mahoney. Louis Welch and Herbert Finnegan and it is a fore- tell of another triumph for the I. C. A. against the Penn A. C.'James in the Philadelphia.

The new scoring plan eliminated the teams. In this way you can maintain your scoring team to the graduate school of the university and arrangements will be worked out undi r ilie plan as follows: A man who worked out the range to be between 134-145, the median average mark to be 146.4, the median standard deviation 19.4.
