We ascend into the Sanctuary after which the following tribute and demonstrations of a scientific and literary character will be given: the turning over of the cornerstone and the building of the University speak on a French subject. There will be opportunities for all those who wish to deliver their address in French. This will be followed by the reading of the announcements made by the various organizations, and by the reading of their annual reports. The meeting will be open to all who are interested in the work of the university.

Indianapolis Firm To Show Films In Homer Hall

Through the courtesy of one of the largest silk hosiery mills in the country, the American Silk Hosiery Mills, the following film will be shown in the Homer Hall Auditorium: The Making of a Hosiery Mill. It is said to be particularly interesting to those who are interested in the manufacturing, merchandising or management of this industry. The film gives a general view of the process that transforms raw materials into finished products. It is expected to be of great interest to the students who have been attending the University of Pennsylvania, as well as to the general public.

A Summer for Travel $125 takes you to Europe

A whole summer free! It may never happen again—once your college days are over, Europe! You need at least four months to get a real glimpse of it. Romance art treasures—gorgeous cities—her stirring events. The Olympic Games—the races at Epson and Doncaster—the British Empire Exhibition—these are all great numbers on any summer's program.

Your Expenses can be kept down. $125 takes you over.comfort—plenty of passengers. Second class accommodations are being more and more sought after by travelers who want comfort at a moderate cost. Then there are the great luxury ships—the Majic—largest in the world—the Homeric—the Olympic—frequently called "The Magnificent Trio". Our office will offer sailings to all European countries.

On one cold day in the winter of '97, as the snow was falling heavily, a heavy big figure strolled into the office of the Christian Association. He paused just inside the doorway, and shook the snow from his heavily coat and hat—and then advanced into the office.

He was a familiar figure on the Pennsylvania campus short that time, a visitor to opposing games on the athletic field in three sports, and beloved by all who knew his powerful, radiant personality. He was Joe McCracken, whose deeds are now Pennsylvania history, and who is still affiliated with the Christian work in China.

"Can you find a place for me in your boy mission work?" he queried of the secretary. After recovering from the momentary astonishment, such an athletic as McCracken should turn his hand to this type of work, the secretary replied in the affirmative. He assigned McCracken to work with Dr. A. W. Stevenson in what was then a small mission group in a small city dwelling a twenty-sixth and Lombard streets.

McCracken devoted the mission enterprise along with Stevensons until the Spanish War broke out in '98. The later was forced to leave for Cuba, to play a larger role with Field Seco, until now, in his lifetime McCracken worked with that group of boys from the Tchelkoff and produced results that were very good. He then became the activity of a bigger and better Settlement House in all it the 30 and 90 square of that section of the city, so that more might enjoy the benefits.

So upon the scenes of McCracken was built the present University Settlement House. WHATS IN A NAME?

There is a certain point beyond which the excitement of an athletic or musical triumph cannot be fixed further. The point at which the peak of form is reached varies, of course, with every form and with the multitudes.

Some exceptional men, at the type of Lute Brown, Dick Beattie and Howie Miller seem to have greater stamina, and enough "peakedness" in being taxed to the limit. But the average run of athletes is fatigued by a certain amount of effort near the center of a very long and strenuous season, and may be said to "burn himself out" or become "tired". Such an athlete, and this holds true for the athletes, has "burned his cob", his power of accomplishment diminished, and for all practical purposes to a team with which he is connected.

Pennsylvania has seen too many such instances this winter of teams being virtually robbed from the effects of a schedule that was too lengthy. Twenty-one games were carded of the eighteen game schedule was called on to play but from sixteen to eighteen games. The widespread criticism was vociferous, and there was no counter opposition. In addition to the unsatisfactory end, the interruptions of New Haven, has been a second clarifying feature of the basketball season, it may be determined that the first eighteen games played, fifteen results were a commendable record for the comparatively green fire that was meeting the colors of the Red and Blue on the court this season. The men were small, sickly and physically unable to grind a full season.

Their first week was followed, and they collapsed in home stretch, when games were more vital in the success of the season. That comes sooner in the year than shown in the earlier years. So blame or critic finger can be pointed to the coaching staff, or to the players themselves. It was the length of the schedule—longer than that confronting any college basketball team in the East.

The season was too fatigue a situation for Westchester, who earlier in the season, bursed a potential championship, have uncovered in one of their formost selves. In the past few years, men who figured prominently in college basketball, have been lost to the interest in basketball, inability to sell one's position and sight competitive meets raised to "crush"—against State and Cornell, they have shown no fear. In the Intercollegiate on Saturday, too, they can be hardly expected to do it themselves, but Pennsylvania has three ventures of the start at the season which were staked as central champions, and that is the determination in ability to stand the successful season, while the future is clear. So blame or critic finger can be pointed to the coaching staff, or to the players themselves. It was the length of the schedule—longer than that confronting any college basketball team in the East.

SOUTH AMERICA

In planning a journey to South America, no consideration is more important than the vessel that is to be your home for the voyage of several weeks. The luxuries that we have pictured as part of the palatial private yacht are realized in the appointments of the famous "Santa" steamers. The cabins (all outside) are cozy and homelike. Each meal is a dainty feast. Everything contributes to the feeling of cruising in the Tropics. Not only a sea trip, but an enchanting cruise—with the thrill of seeing ashore at one colorful port after another. Stopovers at the Canal Zone (approximately 2 days) and at picturesque Central American and Mexican cities.

The B. S. Colombia is a 10,000 ton displacement American steamer built exclusively for the Tropics. All outside single and two-bed state-rooms—no inside rooms or upper berths. Electric fans in every room. Swimming tank. Deck sports. Orchestra. Wireless telephone with shore all the way.

The Cost

Contrasts with its Incan Plan

Did you ever realize that the Inca's permanent capital was not in the heart of their empire? Here is the passage that the Inca's capital was to be in the heart of their empire. This was the city that he had decided on six times, all of which were abandoned.

Figured on months of our custom estimates are readily figured even at this rate. Their final cost is slightly higher but the impression is made that a good general idea of the final job will be made to the client by a visit to the old site. It's a very rough and you will be more than satisfied.
GARRICK—THE RISE OF ROSIE O’REILLY

Author George M. Cohan! when one man can write, the words and music and produce two such excellent songs and dance shown as “Little Sally Kelly” and “The Rise of Rosie O’Reilly” to say nothing of writing, producing, and settling the song and dance show in one season, the question is, who will do it? We have taken over our hats to him and ask “How does he do it?”

There is a little plot in “Rosie O’Reilly” and that is thoroughly satirized with situations that even lend to become burlesque. The absence of plot is admirable in that it leaves the one liberty of the song and dance show. The dancing is only the best of the musical comedy business. Either the boys are a specially capable bunch or the musical comedy business is stepping high. There is the typical Cohan touch and an every individual act.

The music is surpassed only by the dance’s direction. The songs are light, catchy, and rhythmical. A riposte could dance to them. We feel sure that “When Jane Comes Along with a Song” and “Those Lazy, Daze, Those City Days” are here to stay. Philadelphia music lovers think better of them, don’t you guys up.

When Miss O’Brien, with a convincing voice for the role of Rosie, Emma Halc, as Sally, the presentation of happiness, draws the largest hand from the audience, for her speaking and dancing, Jack McGowen was a sufficient hit. The many subtext dances were preferred Daniels and Stopp, the housemaid and butcher.

WHY we chose the name Campus Togs for our clothes

Despite the fact that for twenty-five years we made our clothes and sold them under the label, Chas. Kaufman & Bros., we chose the name Campus Togs as significant of the new spirit in clothes for men of all ages. For the past ten years we have featured Campus Togs as the trade label for our clothes. It seemed to us significant of a name that would indicate designs designed and proportioned to please eliminating shapes. It also signifies in basic the bronze and smartness that the young man or college boy who wears the campus togs, and which put him in the envied class, at least from the standpoint of being youthful and making the most of his age in his appearance.

TO YOU, the outstanding feature into clothes for older men, was the new feature for our design department to have successfully, and in achievement, we confidently present clothes to the world, for all men, which measures up to the significance of the trade name we have chosen.

Big business needs big men

There is room and need for capable men in all the allied activities of big business. But nowhere is there greater need or greater opportunity than in that very essential service to all business—Insurance (Fire, Marine and Casualty). Insurance, as a profession, affords contact with the most vital activities of the commercial and industrial world.

The Insurance Company of North America, the oldest American Fire and Marine Insurance Company, has been an integral part of big business since 1792 and the early beginning of national affairs. Out of this long experience it urges those who are about to choose a calling to consider the world-wide influence of the insurance field.

of a central authority is worthy of note in the development of the governmental organization of the Incas. Hence, as Prof. Tower pointed out, a representative form of democratic government, a commonwealth of nations, was thus early adopted. This was the Inca Province of the Inca. As a central form of government, the incaque considered quite another thing, that of the Incas of Peru. Throughout the Andes highlands there were innumerable tribes consisting of one or more particular families. In most cases the jurisdiction of a tribe was cut off from the ears of the Inca. The great work of the Incas was that of founding together the means of these tribes, forming an independent out of one another, and forming them to subjects under authority, the Incas. Gradually a confederation of tribes was formed, and one empire established. In the last years of the empire, the ruler, called the Incas, was a supreme lord, and his Government investigated and controlled over individuals in all the dominion. Everyone was divided on the basis of how much work he or she could do for the common welfare. There was no official in charge of every ten families, and others in charge, respectively, of fifty, one hundred, one thousand, and an overseer for them all. At times went on the social organization of the Incas increased and there was a hereditary aristocracy. There was no work and every help had to be done to do the state protection, drink and shelter, the ancestors and the religion, and Prof Tower pointed out. In several forms and features here are neither the lower found in a famous modern experiment in government. Failure came to the Incas as it does in all the others. Ideal perhaps in theory, gave nor the play to the individual and allowed his opportunity. The Inca, before the Incas, the consular court of elders was the commonest form of authority in primitive society and that deliberation and discussion are the most important features of his council. In the New World, with a few exceptions, the same was true in Australia. In the case of the Incas, the action of a central authority was nobility in both these respects. The Inca Province was the only form.

All Rowing Candidates Who Have Not Been Admitted to the Crew in Practice Will be Allowed to Compete in Races

Show Great Improvement

In an effort to make the Spring Practice season more interesting, the rowing team is in the midst of training at Pennsylvania. Coach Wright yesterday issued a call for additional rowers to which almost an immediate response has been given. The spring practice has been shifted to the river the men were expecting to use the last hour has noticeably decreased. According to Manager Nate this development has been as great as to threaten the success of the program.

All undergraduates who have not as yet been placed on one of the crews, will be shifted to rowing in the next two weeks. This improvement is the result of a change of tactics, in the light blazers, who were trained by Captain Medall, of Yale, and who will go to New York on 5:15 p.m. up the river. The heavy crews will be kept on the water as much as possible, as well as all crews in all activities, in the last two weeks before the team is to be selected. A large number of the faculty have been placed in pledge cards, and the committee members are working with their new recruits as an orchestra. This is certainly the most important recruit of the season, for the members of the other rows are recognized as the ones who have the most to offer. The committee members are trying to make the most of the situation. It is hoped that in the last two weeks the men will be placed in the best position possible in the early rounds.

Wearing Coats at Yale

All men are being looked upon for the season, and from the best in the class. Yale should stand that the experiment is producing much more evidence of the men who are chosen, for the reasons stated above. This is certainly the most important recruit of the season, for the committee is trying to make the most of the situation. The committee is on the lookout for the best men who are available, and they are trying to give the best men the best chance possible. It is hoped that in the last two weeks the men will be placed in the best position possible in the early rounds.

Interscholastic Gym Teams Meet in April

Many Philadelphia High Schools Signify Intentions of Entering Tourney

Gym teams from Philadelphia and its outskirts are looking forward with keen anticipation to the prospects of the inter-scholastic gymnastic tournament to be staged in Westmoreland County, April 2. The meet, sponsored by Dr. D'Eliacco and the gymnastics of the University, in the first high school meet of its kind to be attempted in the state, is a frank indication that it should prove successful the tournament will be held as a yearly affair in Pennsylvania.

The primary purpose of the meet is to serve as an incentive for high schools to maintain gym as an official sport. Many Philadelphia schools are trying to adopt gymnastics recently and it is hoped that more will take similar action. About 200 teams have registered their intention of entering teams and the pressure is being felt for a satisfactory entry list.

K.O.T. C. Riflemen Will Shoot in Intercollegiate Matches

Word was received yesterday from national headquarters that the K.O.T. C. Riflemen have won the right to participate in the National Intercollegiate Matches. These matches are selected from such corps areas as the University, West Point, and the University of Pennsylvania.

A fortunate incident occurred for the team, for the previous day's match was held on the university's grounds. The matches are scheduled for the last week of May and the K.O.T. C. Riflemen are looking forward to the event with great anticipation.

The name is all you need to know!
A good name and the high standard which it invariably stands for are inseparable.
So is that, to well-dressed men, "Gwinner," in the neck band of a coat, to mean correctness of style and pattern, craftsmanship of quality, and excellence of materials.

Compare SUPPLEE ICE CREAM
With Any Other

Plate for plate, quart for quart, the various flavors of SUPPLEE ICE CREAM find preference in comparison with any other brands. We use only the best ingredients.

Other ice creams may contain first-grade fruits, nuts, berries, sugar and flavors just as SUPPLEE ICE CREAM does. But when we say “Eat SUPPLEE ICE CREAM” these words become more than a mere invitation; without any special justification. We say it because our supply of pasteurized milk and cream is unequalled in quantity and unsurpassed in quality. Because the same GOLD MEDAL quality that has made our milk famous guarantees the purity of our ice cream.

SUPPLEE ICE CREAM exceeds the required State standards of purity—always.

SUPPLEE-WILLS-JONES
DISCIPLINE

The faculty and undergraduate bodies of University have disagreed, for a long time, over means of student life. They have bickered strenuously over the cat system, over methods of conducting classes, and over eligibility rulings. They have come to grips over the question of the powers of undergraduate elective bodies, and the managerial and personnel policies of the publications. At the root of all undergraduate ideas was, and is, the question of discipline. The student bodies have always wanted more freedom and the faculty has always wanted to guard jealously what they looked upon, from their autocratic viewpoints, as their prerogatives.

President Marcus L. Burton, president of the University of Michigan, in several recent addresses, has succeeded in getting very close to the crux of the prolonged discussion. In his report to his Board of Regents he made a particularly keen analysis of the present situation.

"The student," said Dr. Burton, "by virtue of existing traditions, and perhaps because of the prevailing crystallization of the entire educational system in America, is, in reality, in spite of what we may say or aim to do, an untreated intellectually as a boy, an untreated socially as a man. In America, the student must go to class and, if he do not, he is subject to penalties. In the college, the student is a boy, and it fully insists upon looking upon the student is a boy, unabashedly and from the moment he steps on campus. The student is a boy, and it is treated as such.

That is essentially the crux of the whole situation. The faculty naturally looks upon the student as a boy, unable to determine, because he is a boy, the interests of the majority of the student body, and therefore decides practically everything for him, enforcing its opinions by means of discipline. The system, on the contrary, has a rather fair opinion of his own ability, considers that he is a man, and renders the normal attitudes of the faculty. In particular, he resents the discipline, the idea of being forced to do something, whether he wishes to do it or not. The faculty is of the opinion that, if it should lift its censorship, chaos would result, provoking various undergraduates to demand serious examples as horrible instances. The student claims the privilege of being a boy, as a man; he protests as a man, that it treated as a man, he would react as a man. Cap and gown are worn to symbolize the latter viewpoint. A rather interesting example of the faculty view is that the student is a boy, and his right, at least in due proportion of the entire educational system in America, he himself to determine what he wants to do, what he wants to be, what he wants to be. This is an important element of the discussion. The student is a boy, and he is a boy. His cap and gown are the means of symbolizing the fact that he is treated as such.

It is remarkable how the freshmen will branch out in new fields of endeavor. Recently one of them went exploring and in the course of his wanderings landed near the Eiffel Tower. He got lost, and found his way back after some pitching and tossing. He finally found his way back. He was directed to遂他 to the University and follow directions. He bore an arm. Discipline triumphs once more. The student claims the privilege of being a boy, as a man, that he is treated as a boy, and it is treated as such. He protests as a man, that it treated as a man, he would react as a man. Cap and gown are worn to symbolize the latter viewpoint. A rather interesting example of the faculty view is that the student is a boy, and his right, at least in due proportion of the entire educational system in America, he himself to determine what he wants to do, what he wants to be, what he wants to be. This is an important element of the discussion. The student is a boy, and he is a boy. His cap and gown are the means of symbolizing the fact that he is treated as such.

If the Efficient proctor spots an unwary man immerse in matters foreign to the lecture, he stalks him as would a cat, points to various instances of undergraduate demonstration. He advances in the shape of a half-cut. Discipline triumphs once more. The student claims the privilege of being a boy, as a man, that he is treated as a boy, and it is treated as such. He protests as a man, that it treated as a man, he would react as a man. Cap and gown are worn to symbolize the latter viewpoint. This is an important element of the discussion. The student is a boy, and he is a boy. His cap and gown are the means of symbolizing the fact that he is treated as such.

The presidency is the result of the student body, and it is, in some respects, a boy. That is essentially the crux of the whole situation. The faculty naturally looks upon the student as a boy, unable to determine, because he is a boy, the interests of the majority of the student body, and therefore decides practically everything for him, enforcing its opinions by means of discipline. EXCELLENT PROSE IN SECOND JUNTO ISSUE

EXCELLENT PROSE IN SECOND JUNTO ISSUE

Junto, the student literary quarterly, made its second appearance of the year yesterday. The issue profits by the conclusion of many of its contributors' experiences in former numbers. For example there is a notable reduction in the amount of verse, a change of Literature in which

by a contributor preferable. But, the few that are left, are repetitions to a high degree.

"The Flower Shop," a recent contribution, is as fine a play as campus playwrights have produced, although it is swung round in one of our belts-complete stock in all sports colors.

Indeed the weather makes bug about all our sports wear-shirts, golf hose, and sweaters too.

Yes! Some more Harbingers of Spring.
