LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

Announcement of a committee of editors to look into the ways and means of conducting a class campaign during the year. The committee must have a few previous experiences, as there is a slight possibility of some confusion; hence the meeting of the class of 1924 was already laying plans for the raising of a fund to be used, some years in the future, as the basis of some kind of a substantial class memorial. However, as has been proved by past experience, the only practical way to get across a certain idea is by a team effort which is to be made early and work late. It is because of this little bit of wisdom, born of past experience, that the editors feel at this time begins to plan for their efforts. Even at this date, it is too early to lay the foundations of the enterprise, for if success is to be in any great amount of time and if they are expected to be involved, there was a time in the life of American collegiate institutes that once the committee had graduated, no matter how loyal and true they might be in their Alma Mater at all, they generally worked, at least for a time, precision to a lasting and in their more mature years, a colossal disaster to do something on a grand scale, unless for their university would often receive, resulting in an intensive campaign to raise funds to be put into a project which would serve as an ornament to their class. The idea would be near and the horizons of the whole enterprise would not nearly be within the shoulder of the few who had been fortunate enough to be in a position to make genuine collaboration. The "class" memorial which would arise from such an effort would be completed largely through the support of a few small proportions of the original class. Although there are some outstanding exceptions, the means and the end were rather unsmiling.

With the method which has been in vogue for the last few years, however—every member of the class contributing for his share, while the demands which are almost normal, spread over a period of years—the idea has been redefined and put on a more realistic basis. Each man is expected to do his bit, and in this way, each member of the class has the opportunity of contributing to the common fund. A sum which would be formulative if collected from a few in a short period of time, when several have their two-weeks' or more, expenses, but small sacrifices on the part of each member of the class. To realize a success, however, organization must be the keynote. The concentration of efforts of a small group of men more often than is commonly nothing if they do not receive the whole-hearted support of their classmates. No committee can make a success, moreover, without an unflagging interest in the success of the enterprise must be in the hands of a few, but this does not mean that the remainder of the class should walk idle. The proposition must be added to, the indifference and apathy of others must be curbed: a task which is almost a physical impossibility for the few in charge to accomplish by themselves. It is up to the class as a whole to see that those of their number who are ignorant of the importance and who are to be involved, is far more informed and "sold" the proposition. And this must come through their earnest and active cooperation, with whom they are the closest touch. Without whole-hearted support from the rear, it is little that can be done by the leaders. Pulling this will be of the utmost importance to the success, and a great amount of personal work and solicitation is necessary, but the prize requisite in the success of the undertaking is cooperation.

The start has been made—the work is just to come. Co-operation must be the keynote.

FIVE CORNELL CREWS TRAIN DURING VACATION

Three Varsity and Two Freshman Eightes Hold Workouts Daily at Ithaca on Both Lake and Inlet.

SEVERAL SHIFTS MADE BY COACH

These Varsity and Two Freshman crews have rowed on the lake or lake-carrying during the vacation except last Wednesday and Thursday when they were forced to row in the rain. In the old Amyth, all of the crews took their first open boat on the lake this year. For the first time this season, the coach and third Varsity combinations were dropped while the light and heavy Varsity crews continued a mile further down the lake making a total round trip of six miles. Testing table for the five crews started at noon Friday. With weather conditions ideal, all combinations went out on the lake. Bachelor and after rowing eight miles to a tributary branch, the crews from the lighter which has been put to curve for the season just recently.

By running on the open water the crews were forced once more on the lake, owing to open water and the heavy rain caused by the all-day downpour of rain Sunday, and worked back and forth behind the island. They were able to row around the Island Monday afternoon and yesterday morning, but could not put up the good training strengths otherwise, however, they piled up and down the entire Island, not rowing on the lake because of the rough water.

Several important changes in the seating of the crew made over the vacation. Butler, number four on the light Varsity, has been sick. One of the Third Varsity taking his place, while his position was taken, is due to field. Butler was moved from stroke of the light freshman boat to number four on the light Varsity. Callahan, number four in the light boat, Durland, number four in the light boat, was shifted back to number four in the light boat. Durland, number four in the light boat, was shifted back to number four in the light boat.
