He first made water from gases

Henry Cavendish, an eccentric millionaire recluse, who devoted his life to research, was the discoverer of the H and the O in H2O. In fact he first told the Royal Society of the existence of hydrogen.

He found what water was by making it himself, and so became one of the first of the synthetic chemists.

Cavendish concluded that the atmosphere contained elements then unknown. His conclusion has been verified by the discovery of argon and other gases.

The Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company have found a use for argon in developing lamps whose flames are two or three times brighter than the guttering candles which lighted Cavendish’s laboratory.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

In this age of electricity the United States and Canada has based its electrical equipment on the use of steel. The United States is now the largest consumer of steel in the world.

Michigan Mentor Advises Participation in Various Kinds of Athletics For Football Men

SYSTEM USE DAT PENNSYLVANIA

It is better for the man who knows the technique of football to take his athletic work in water and spring in which he is interested, than in further football training, provided football work has become a graded for him, in the opinion of Fielding H. Yost, veteran football coach of Michigan University. Yost made this statement in discussing the announcement that all the members of a certain team were going back in spring training.

"I would never take a man from an other team for either winter or spring football training," he commented. "The object of spring and winter training should be to get the larger group out—the 10 or 15 men who must take some sort of exercise and see learning a new game. This gives the coach a chance to determine the under-par of the men of whom he has known little, and this helps to work the available men into the football equal in the fall, when less time is available.

Coach Yost's statement of opinion might well be a summing up of conditions at Pennsylvania. Very few of the Pussy football men are reporting for spring practice, but they are putting their exercise and are rounding into shape in other branches of sport.

Baseball, perhaps, has more football work in its team than has any other spring sport. Roy McCall, captain of best year's football team, is-pitching in right field. Westgärd, junior end, is holding down corner field, while Flass and Forsmann have both made the base ball squad as utility men. The base ball team contains such men as Adams, Witter, Lath and Swearer, while Coleman is throwing the discs on the track field.

Citizens' Military Camp—Open to College Men

Unusual Opportunity Offered to Men Between Ages of 17 and 24 to Spend Summer in Army Camps

Government Pays All Expenses

The Citizen's Military Training Camp which will be held all over the country from August 1 to October 30 offers college students an excellent form of amusement through the months of camp. The purpose of this camp is to make the students feel that the camp will bring them together on an equal footing to stimulate and promote citizenship, patriotism, and Americanism through military training, athletic contests and physical direction. Non-students from anywhere in the country may receive the Red Course training, which is necessary for entrance into this camp for citizens of the United States. No former training is necessary for entrance into this camp, and a physical examination by a doctor's certificate of inoculations will be required. Anyone who desires to become a member of the camp is required to undergo a physical examination to make him eligible. There are two regular courses. The Basic Course provides athletic and military training, emphasizing marksmanship, instruction in camp sanitation, personal hygiene, and public morality. The Blue Course is for former members of the Officers Reserve Corps. The Blue Graduates must have the appearance, bearing, and adaptability necessary for the part of an officer. All training expenses are paid for by the Government. Remember, there is no military obligation except a year of service after the course, and any one of good moral character, of physical ability, and of from seventeen to twenty-four years of age is eligible.

Pennsylvania's Delegation Will Attend
Easter College Men's Oiling June 12-20
Silver Bay is located on the northern end of Lake George and is considered an ideal place for the gathering of such a group of men. This conference is in continuation of those held at Northfield, Mass., from 1915 to 1923. In 1920 the location of the meeting was moved to Silver Bay and has been held there every year since then.

The primary purpose of the conference is the mutual exchange of ideas among the leaders and men, an intelligent consideration of the problems of life. A large group of men engaged in public life, as leaders, have been accepted as speakers. These men represent all classes and types of life and number amongst them: Henry R. Coffin, Fred B. Smith, Bay F. Fry, David M. Porter, Norman Thomas, and D. Sterling Biddle as well as many others.
Pennsylvania has always sent a large and representative group as a major part of the prominent undergraduates having been to Silver Bay. In 1921 and 1922 these numbers were twenty-five men in the delegation while last year there were twenty-two.

Any one who is considering attending the conference and has not yet signed his intention may sign up at any time by applying to Mr. Fred Igler in the Christian Association office, 5257 Walnut Street.

Emphasis for the Evening School banquet this evening is running high, applications having been made for tours by two more ticket辛 that can be supplied. The capacity of the dining room at the Hotel Adams is limited to 150, while over a thousand Evening School students are expected to be present. This is a 16 per cent increase, considering the fact that there are only 130 seats at the Evening School.

The University Extension Schools at Scranton, Harrisburg and Wilkes-Barre are sending a delegation of eight students. Special tables are being reserved for these students, and the Evening School Association has made extensive arrangements to entertain them over the weekend.

KITE AND KEY SOCIETY

HOFERT TO MEET

Yale was all represented and many other key societies sent representatives to their regatta at not being able to attend.

Yesterday following the conference the representatives were entertained to dinner at the University Club by Mr. Made and members of the Kite and Key society. Following the dinner the men attended the Mask and Wig show, "That's That." At the dinner Mr. Made stated that the principal goal of the University Key Society will be to highly entertain all visiting prep school societies. This is to show them just why Pennsylvania in, so as to attract men of athletic ability in the fields of the Red and Black.

This meeting the representatives will once more meet the conference, closing with the adjournment of the meeting of the morning. In the afternoon the representatives will see the Yale and Pennsylvania baseball teams in their annual Stray River game at Franklin Field.
