DARTMOUTH STUDENTS FAVOR COOLIDGE IN STRAW BALLOT

For nearly month, Coe is Carl Coolidge's rub to capture a major share of the national presidential campaign. Coe's campaign held 110 votes, Davis 109, and Bart 107. Speeches in favor of each candidate were given by students before a vote was taken.

The first ten minutes of the ballot was a number of strange votes which are likely to be valid in various universities throughout the country for the purpose of deciding the political affiliations of college students. Such a vote will be taken at Pennsylvania University.

The football expert had one impression that he seemed quite pleased with, judging by the manner of his usual parade and the way he pointed to his dapper, yet rather out-of-date, red trousers. He constantly has championship teams in every class, and the promise of a closely contested struggle, has a widened the competitive spirit of students throughout the country. Reporters of the various papers have been expanding their columns and columns are interested in attending graduations and championships of local and national importance.

Those in charge of tonight's meeting are anticipating a lively discussion on the political situation with address a foreign language issue. The point we have reference to is the importance of our way back staff. Columbia's way back, as usual, was able to attract a large audience and to make a final presentation of the promises of the future. The point is not new, but the method, as usual, is new.

Just think that our great-grandchildren might be speaking an international language that got start from a football game between Pittsburgh and the City College of New York.

In sport the statistics of the game—number of yards gained down the field, yards gained, etc., show that the team put up more yards overall than the team did. The point we have reference to is the interest of our way back staff. Columbia's way back, as usual, was able to attract a large audience and to make a final presentation of the promises of the future. The point is not new, but the method, as usual, is new.

The Advertiser

ACTION

There's plenty of action in the pictorial every week. Maybe it's McGraw plunging through for a ten yard gain, or Kruez making a brilliant placement kick. The pictures have caught the plays and men when they were moving, doing things, showing action.

Getting the customer to act is what every advertiser is striving for. The finest and most valuable advertising is advertising which brings the greatest response in action from its readers. An advertiser should study carefully the mediums which will best produce active results.

The Pictorial breathes an atmosphere of action which the reader carries from the picture to the advertising. As he visualizes the thrilling play, so he visualizes his clothing or his food. His conduct follows his thoughts and the advertisers story, visualized in his mind, becomes his guide.
Music Important In Undergraduate Life

How important a part music plays in the undergraduate life of the University of Pennsylvania is shown by the fact that approximately 600 students are actively engaged in representing the University in its extra-curricular organizations. The largest group is in training for the Glee Club. Here Dr. H. Alexander Matthews, the director, has a musical equal of 264 men. Of this number, 150 are now rehearsing regularly for the coming concert season, 100 Matthews intends to gradually increase this number to 150. This leaves a waiting list of 100. From this group new men are being tried out and added to the regular Glee Club as they show ability. Dr. Matthews intends to hold the Glee Club to 150.

The University band is the largest collegiate band in the country. When it marched on Franklin Field for the Columbia game there were 30 men in uniform. Holden Van Don, Bass, the director, had 100 candidates from which to pick his band. Plans are now being made to organize a Life and Drum Corp as an additional unit. Robert N. Henry is the student leader of the band. The symphony orchestra now numbers 75 men and is under the direction of Mr. Van Don, Bass. Approximately 100 read out for the orchestra. The first appearance of the Glee Club and orchestra will be their joint con-
