Peter B. W. is a representative of the better element and was a student. We never saw such an enthusiastic crowd as those who were on the campus and the field Thursday afternoon. The enthusiasm among the students was infectious, and those turned out to be all agitation. Never before do we remember such a show of force. What might have been a representative group of students in the future, the administration and those in authority were to see the smooth-running machine of the University. An unfortunate experience, which was unfortunate, and of which every underclassman and the members of the University have been a party, and of which every underclassman and member of the University has been a party, may be described as the disappearance of the Drum Major’s outfit for the good old probation card, and lack of respect for the law.

In the end, what the administration desired was the removal of the disgraceful and disgraceful incident. It is true that the administration may have been out of line in their action. But the administration has the right to expect the students to obey the laws and to respect the law.
