In the year 1906 Douglas Stewart, head soccer coach at Pennsylvania, was engaged to organize a soccer team at the University. The Red and Blue mentor has organized a system of coaching and development at the University which is copied by and in many cases copied by the leading soccer coaches of the country. of the game as a boy in Scotland, where he was a junior member of the Queen's Park Club, Glasgow, and then a member of his school's varsity team. Afterward he went to Canada and entered the Royal Military College. There he played on the soccer, baseball and cricket teams. After graduating he returned to Scotland and joined the famous Queen's Park Club, which is credited to be the greatest amateur soccer aggregation of that country. Afterward he came to the United States, where he played with various amateur teams for a few years, and then went to London and became one of the London Celtics, who were second only to the renowned London Corinthians. Mr. Stewart became active in American soccer circles about 1924, since which time he has been very active in the promotion of soccer in all of its phases. He was at one time president of the Thistle Club of Philadelphia, and afterward secretary of the Pennsylvania League. Later both the Referees' Association and the Football Association of Eastern Pennsylvania and District elected him president for approximately ten successive years. Under his able guidance as head of the latter body the game of soccer has progressed very satisfactorily. Consequently, Mr. Stewart is one of the most eminent authorities of the legislative branch of soccer in the United States. Whenever a new playing rule or law is thought of by the Red and Blue monitor is always consulted. Mr. Stewart was one of the pioneers in the national promotion of soccer football, having been the first vice-president of the United States Football Association for a number of years. He is a member and former chairman of the Appeals Committee and the present chairman of the Rules and Divisional Committee of that association. Mr. Stewart insists upon strict adherence to the rules, encouragement of discipline and clean sportsmanship. To these ideals may be attributed his success in soccer.

An article on the baseball game in England between the White Sox and Giants has been written by George Bernard Shaw. This article is not only reprinted in the weekly issue, but it is also reprinted in the baseball yearbook which is being published by the American League. The article is titled "Impressions of Bridge and Mah Jong.

After all, it is not at all surprising that the teams that have met their records in France on account of poor attendance, are having a hand at breaking a record. Some of the men who have seen them in action have predicted that the American game will make a tremendous impression on the French public. The New York Giants, who have been playing in France for some time, have already established a new record for attendance. They have had over 100,000 people in the stands for their last game. The French public is becoming more and more interested in baseball, and the game is gaining in popularity.

Speaking of baseball, there is a rule in the rules of the game that a player is not allowed to leave the field of play unless he has noticed that the ball has gone out of the field. This rule is causing quite a bit of discussion. Some people think that it is unfair to the player, while others believe that it is a necessary rule to keep the game going.

The Pennsylvania State Board of Education has approved a new course in physical education for college students. The course will be offered at the University of Pennsylvania and will be taught by a new instructor who has been appointed to the position. The course will cover a wide range of topics, including exercise, athletics, and health.

There has been a recent proposal to increase the number of graduate students at the University of Pennsylvania. The proposal has been met with mixed reactions. Some students think that it will lead to a better quality of education, while others believe that it will overcrowd the classes and make it difficult to get a good education.

On the political front, the primary elections for the Pennsylvania legislature will be held tomorrow. The primary election is an important part of the political process, and it is expected to be a close race. The candidates are expected to campaign hard in order to win the support of the voters.

Unkempt hair—
how to avoid it

It is the first thing people notice—and a man's appearance depends on how well his hair looks.
No matter how well you dress, your best is not made any visible by a visible head. Smooth, natural, lustrous hair gives a man confidence and influence, for men are prejudiced in favor of smooth, natural, lustrous hair. Hair, even though it may not be perfect, must be kept in place all day long.
