Pennsylvania's football squad, according to Dr. Kenneth A. Biddle, Varsity Field Director, will be in the Big Ten Championship game at the University of Michigan this afternoon.

As the All-American team leaves for the Big Ten Championship game today, the schedule of the day's activities will include:

- A reception for His Eminence, Archbishop by the staff of The Pennsylvania State University, the Alumni Association of the Pennsylvania State University, and the students of the University.
- A dinner for the members of the university faculty and staff.
- A concert by the university choir.
- A special ceremony for the football team.

The reception will be held in the Lincoln Auditorium of the university. The concert will be held in The Great Hall of the university. The dinner will be held in the University Dining Hall.

The football team will leave for the Big Ten Championship game this afternoon, and will return to the university this evening. The team will have the day off tomorrow, and will return to the university on Sunday afternoon.

The university will be closed tomorrow, and will reopen on Monday morning.

McGill Doctor Opposes Specialty in Medicine

Professor Meakins, Head of Department of Clinical Medicine at McGill, Explains the Value of a Broad Foundation

WOULD GIVE GENERAL TRAINING

"Specialties have been a bad thing for medicine," said Professor Meakins, head of the Department of Clinical Medicine at the McGill University, in a recent address to the medical undergraduates of that school. "Today we have heart specialists, kidney specialists, and all sorts of specialists. The treatment of one disease must be based on broad physiological knowledge. These specialties are a travesty in the narrower sense of their name."

"Lately, the father of aseptic surgery said he was a specialist. The Meakins pointed out. "He said he was a specialist in general medicine. The pathologist, the physiologist and the anatomicist of forty years ago did not treat the disease of heart. They came in contact daily with the problems of medicine and brought to bear on those the knowledge of their subjects. A time came when the sciences were completely divorced from general medicine and they lost in their narrow outlook. The tube is now forming, however, and physiologists and anatomists are becoming anatomicists, physiologists and chemists, and these subjects are losing their specialization and self-sufficiency."

"Do not specialize too soon," said the Meakins. "Get a broad fundamental training first, and after that specializing."

HUTCHINSON STATES POLICY
BY REQUEST OF SENIOR SOCIETIES

also because it was found that virtually all the tickets which got into the hands of students were traced to this source. In other words,iators who had no right to preferred treatment in the purchase of tickets made unfair use of sources. The Council took this step to end a growing abuse. All the time it is intimated for this privilege an advance student rate, in which understandings are permitted to purchase tickets assigned specifically for them from the allotment used in selling preferred admission applications.

Do as we are convinced. It is the wish of the Council to take care of the legitimate demands of its students and then to satisfy the maximum number of our alumni; many of whom travel great distances for an opportunity to see a Pennsylvania football game.

The closing receipts from Franklin Field are used to defray the cost of athletics, only three sports, football, basketball, and track are self-sustaining. An accounting of the funds used to defray the cost of athletics is furnished to the University and then to satisfy the legitimate demands of the students, only three sports, football, basketball, and track being self-sustaining. All other losses are paid out of the general income of the University. The present Franklin Field is being constructed at a cost of $1,070,341. Of this amount, $839,763 is raised by a fine and second mortgage at 6 per cent., making the carrying charges $51,843 annually. In addition to this, under the terms of the mortgage, a sinking fund must be established, and the Council on Athletics pays $31,386 annually, making the total fixed charges on the stadium $2,937,331. The balance of the total cost of constructing the new stadium, amounting to $1,200,000, has been paid by the purchase of preferred tickets from all sources. In addition to this last year the Council asked F. A. Tatum for estimating and meeting Franklin Field and various other improvements.

The Council has been assured $10,000 for the improvement of the Dinner Field House, which also must be paid out of present receipts.

The students themselves have a very great influence in shaping athletic policies and administering athletics. There are three undergraduate representatives, the captain and manager, on every sports committee. The Council has decided to establish a very active student athletic association. The members of the student association are as follows:

WILLIAM HUTCHINSON, Chairman Council on Athletics, University of Pennsylvania.

The resolutions of the student association are as follows:

Whereas, the undergraduates of the University of Pennsylvania have not been furnished with reasonable opportunities to purchase margin tickets for football games.

Whereas, the undergraduates have not been allowed to place personal applications for margin tickets by the Council on Athletics.

Whereas, the undergraduates, through lack of our best educational potential income, have failed to realize the larger expenditures necessary for the maintenance of twenty-two sports at Pennsyl

Whereas, as a result of the aforementioned conditions, among the undergraduates there is a general feeling of inequitable treatment amounting to a petition toward the Council on Athletics.

Therefore be it resolved That the Student Council and Student Senate, in behalf of the undergraduate body, respectfully petition the Council on Athletics to adopt this misappropriation and equitable plan and forward urgings among the students to the publication of an annual report of the financial statement of the Athletic Fund, including a detailed statement of the fund.

The undersigned members of the Student Council and Student Senate, declare the above to be the true state of affairs, including the misappropriation and equitable plan, and to the student's satisfaction. The undersigned members of the Student Council and Student Senate request the Council on Athletics to adopt the above petition before the publication of the Annual Report of the Athletic Fund.

Mr. Hutchins's Reply

In the past month or so there has arisen among the student body a decided feeling of misunderstanding with the Athletic Council. Of course, when he was being introduced to the President, and said: "This is the place I was looking for," he might have been looking for the campus, but the statement should go a long way toward restoring the good will and cooperation between the athletic authorities and the students which should and must exist.

It is to be hoped that the policy of the Athletic Council will not be to attempt at this moment to cloud the matter, but to look on the students as friends, and consider the whole attitude toward the Athletic Council. Of course, he was only trying to do the very best he could and is sure to have been misunderstood by the undergraduates, but the statement should go a long way toward restoring the good will and cooperation between the athletic authorities and the students which should and must exist.

Vale vs. Pennsylvania

The announcement by Graduate Manager Cozens that the addition of the Eastern Conference to the schedule will test the athletic ability of the students which will test the student body Pennsylvania for the years to come.

The original charter of the State of Pennsylvania has been found and arranged so as to be completed to have its greatest importance. It is the splendid idea, and when completed, we shall have some of the finest society which we have ever had.

In 1924, the President and Student Council are the exact reflection of their former status. The Council was a reflection of himself as he was only a year old.

The day of days is here! Each normal member of the Class of 1926 has been in the ranks of his class since the Prom was announced.

All said, the Junior is awake.

And again we have sports in the football world. The season has come, and the millions of fans and players of the past two weeks have been in the stadiums which have been the scene of all the games.

"I've heard a lot about these Classics," said Flitz, "and while I am not familiar with Plato-my affrays are anything but Platonie-my own opinion is that there are only two great Classics.

One is the Annual Penn-Cornell Classic.

And the other is the New Perry Overcourt for Youngsters of its Classical Lines. Both have been held in Rector and a Long Drape - Straight from the Shoulder.

"Boy, that's another Classic!"

THE PENNSYLVANIA DAILY

PENN AND INK

The football schedule as prepared for next year places the team in the same position as last year, but with more players who will take a few extra courses in the Medical School to fill in the space in his beginning studies.

Such an ambition schedule may have one good indirect effect; though, it might force Cornell into taking an additional high school.

The Yale game coming so early in the season is going to be rather hard on the student body. It is going to be difficult to get hold of enough for roosts that early to make a good showing of New Haven.

After reading of this propose schedule, the Bising team is reported to have offered to take on Davenport, Pippo, and Compton, Travelers, to single out. But, Mr. Wilson and, after each pulled the best and worst teams, soon stopped that kind of talk.

The only casualty of the game was a Rutgers line-man who picked up his helmet and put it on, not noticing it was full of mud. He was nearly drowned before he could be extricated.

The team's attitude toward the surface three footballs which were lost in last Saturday's game is one of the most important factors in deciding the student body.

The original charter of the State of Pennsylvania has been found and arranged so as to be completed to have its greatest importance. It is the splendid idea, and when completed, we shall have some of the finest society which we have ever had.

Al Jones was ready with a pen and pencil to write your next report for the Penn State game. He was being introduced to the President, and said: "This is regular social stuff," and when he was introduced to the President, and said: "This is regular social stuff." He was being introduced to the President, and said: "This is regular social stuff."
The Fraternity houses connected with the University of Pennsylvania can get one hundred per cent comfort if they will remember.

KITE AND KEY HEELERS

ASSIGNED NEW DUTIES

Immediately taking the Kite and Key Society is the problem of housing the rooms of the preparatory schools that have entered into the soccer tournament.

This meet will last for two days. December 4 and 5, and it is part of the war of the society to furnish accommodations for the outside men. So for a large number of fraternity houses have answered the plea of the rooms, but these are not all.

Anyone friendly having available rooms that wishes to help the Kite and Key Society is urged to get in touch with David P. Willis, president of the society, at 206 Allen or at the office in Houston Club.

The organization is cooperating with Thomas Herr, treasurer of the Houston Club. It is raising for and entertaining the members of the Co-operative Union League, who will come to Philadelphia during the Thanksgiving holidays. It has also arranged, in co-operation with the Junior Prom Committee, to invite the members of the Cornell Varsity teams to the Junior Prom.

David Willis has sent letters to the presidents of all the sectional clubs in the University asking them to be present at a meeting at the Kite and Key offices tomorrow. This meeting is for the purpose of discussing matters relative to the work of the various clubs. A plan for better cooperation between the organizations and suggestions for increased activity on their part will also receive attention.

For the purpose of interviewing any boys who wish to form and organize a sectional club, Willis will be at the office every day between 1:30 and 2:00, from now until the first of the year. The affairs of each club are self-perpetuating and many preparatory schools are kept in active touch with their alumni through them. By means of the publicity bureau of the Kite and Key Society, preparatory and high schools are furnished with a complete record of their graduates and all activities in which they participate. Through another branch of work of the Society, the Mask and Wig troupe is sent out to various sections of the country to advertise the University.

Coach McLane Pulls Team Through Witches in Final Preparation for Annual Meet

Early this morning the eight Varsity hurdle-gaters leave for New York, where the annual intercollegiate meet will be held this afternoon. Seven of these men will see action in the meet, as that is the limited number of events from each college.

The team was put through its final work-out Thursday afternoon by Coach Robert McLane on River Field. Eight jun-dee and running constituted the practice, and the usual last minute instructions were handed out. The team, as a whole, realizes that only a miracle will enable them to finish with the first ten,
as many of the other colleges have untold good material this year. Fur-cise, Dartmouth and Columbia are picked as the ones that contended for the honors.

Captain Dick Bally has shown up well in recent practice and should according to times lead the way for the other Red and Blue harriers. In the qual-ing regular meet Bally placed among the first ten men in the event. The team's first run at Cobb's Creek he led the field and had his own record for the course.
The Franklin team also leaves this morning, and work-out is scheduled to place just before the Varsity elastic.
Only fifteen of the eligible orphans on the field for the Franklin event in the various races. Prime Harrier Squad for the first time met look much brighter then those of the Varsity.

Of all the forms of flattery that strike home, there is none so subtle as the deference paid by a man of the world to a young girl.

Sir Melmoth Craven's manner gave Margaret Garth to understand that she was the one woman under the sun whose opinion he valued, and that her confidence honored him.

The blood ran quicker in her veins as she listened to him, his keen, strong face near hers, and a thrill ran through her nerves that was new to her.

She did not know he was a scoundrel who had a long train of wicked deeds behind him.

Afterwards came the awakening.

It was only a mother's love that saved her.

You'll surely want to read John Goodwin's melodramatic romance entitled

"Without Mercy"
