PENN-CORNELL GAME
Our investigator has come in with another plan for catching the pass as this has been a vexing problem. He says he succeeded in waiting for Friday's ticket buyer to catch an empty police car with full equipment. These will be rented out at regular rates. We have a plan simmering: we don't know what will come of any one who used a "Pass Out" check for such an illegal purpose.

... Some students have written in to inquire if it wouldn't be possible to get into the upper "Pass Out" check. We certainly hope no one will use such an underhand method to gain admission. To aid in this plan simultaneously we don't know what would happen if any one of you who used a "Pass Out" check for such an illegal purpose.

... Apparently a few of the boys are going to follow out our suggestion that one good way would be to voluntarily dispose of the man at the gate. The foreman of the University construction crew reports that several pieces of bad pipe have disappeared from the pits in back of College Hall.

... It certainly is a shame the way the speculation got into this situation. At The Pennsylvania-Penn Bowl game Sunday it is reported that a seller had created a set of the tickets.

... The Pennsylvania night shift seemed to be the most hilarious to the Punch Bowl team.

... The Managing Editor of Punch Bowl is feeling pretty bad because he had a stitch up all figured out for a certain remark he expected from The Pennsylvania team, and anybody made the remark.

... Saturday was the day of the fall football game when the Franklin Field was packed. The players were on fire and the fans were on fire.

... The Managing Editor of Punch Bowl is feeling pretty bad because he had a stitch up all figured out for a certain remark he expected from The Pennsylvania team, and anybody made the remark.

STRONG J. V. BOOTERS
MEET HAVERTOWN TODAY
Red and Blue Second String Meets Main Line Junior Varsity in Title Deciding Contest

UNIVERSITY HOLDS 1923 TITLE

Two undeclared teams will take the field to contest for the Pennsylvania State Gridiron when the Harvard and Pennsylvania programs clash on the field this afternoon at 2:30 on River Field. Both teams have a good record this season and are consequently in a tie for first place honors. Each has won the Red and Blue second-stringers won the title of the junior circuit which is composed of the Pennsylvania and Havertown JuniorVarsities and the Wharton, Lafayette and Swarthmore first elevens.

The Men of Phi Delta Eta to Philadelphia, an organization that combines a strong attack and a successful defense. Law and the Quaker Varsity they feature a "nick and rush" game, which consists of bursting the ball down the field and following it up with a fast forward line. The stars on the offense are Richardson, tickle left; Goodenow, center forward; and Pennsylvania inside right. Marriage, quaddie, and W. Markets, right fullback, have certified in the backfield for the titular combination.

The University second Varsity has been successful in both of its home contests, but has dropped games to the strong Connecticut, 0-13, and Philadelphia, "White" combinations. Hens, center forward, and Proctor, right end, who held down the same positions on the Penn team, are the outstanding stars of the second-stringing line. Collins, former left of the third team, will also play for the Pennsylvanians tomorrow, and Drabster, who was temporarily on the Van-Donnand, is a member of the varsity squad, will return to his position at outside right. Lawson, Ward and Lewis are also dependable players on the red and blue's representative in the P-I League. Pennsylvania's success is due in large part to an unbroken belief that the titanic battle will be closely contested and hard fought. Pennsylvania's Junior Varsity bowed the Lehigh banders to the tune of 6-1, while the Main Liners triumphed over them by a score of 4-1. The Philadelphians defeated Swarthmore, 31-10, and the Red and Blue won them by a 5-1 count. Hence the other teams in the circuit are considered out of the running today's tussle is expected to decide the fate for the second-stringing town.

When the south of the Baby Gridiron the ball on the field the eleven was promptly followed from the field with the aid of junior center and tailback. Behind the line was a horse snare strung across upon this back, while The Pennsylvania had a hoseman on the line. The Bishop

"Challenges Principles of Making War

DISCUSS INTERNATIONAL QUESTIONS

Members of the American Academy of Political and Social Science heartily agreed with Dr. James T. Shotwell, principal speaker at the discussion meeting recently held at Whittier Hall, in endorsing the Geneva protocol, which aims in making an end of war. "The protocol challenges the principle of making war
by territory with a crime, and the states
signing the protocol bind themselves muruously in a virtual contract not to offend the crime," Dr. Shotwell, president of history at Columbia, said at the meeting.

Major General Tasker H. Bliss, a member with Dr. Shotwell of the American group which drafted the protocol, who presided at the meeting, called the proposal "the most remarkable document emanating from the mind of man."

Dr. Shotwell, in his opening remarks, said that the protocol, if it were agreed upon by the nations of the world, would offend the crime. "I am not a pacifist, but the present war crime must be stopped. We can only get rid of it by submitting it to arbitration."

That the protocol was a fine thing only as far as it promised a rule for a United States of Europe was the contention made by Charles G. Fenwick, of Bryn Mawr College, and the American Academy of Political Science Group are now International in aspect.
