ENROLLMENT MOVEMENT HOLDS FIRST FUND RAISER

The Pennsylvania Institute of Technology has announced that a provincial significance has been attained with the release of the inaugural issue of the "Pennsylvania Institute of Technology News". This weekly publication is intended to provide the public with the latest news, events, and developments at the Institute.

The Institute's President, Dr. Edward F. Young, speaks in his statement: "The publication of the Institute News is a significant milestone in our ongoing efforts to expand our public outreach and promote the Institute's mission of excellence in education and research. We are confident that this publication will serve as an important platform for sharing our achievements and engaging with our stakeholders, including students, faculty, staff, alumni, and the broader community.

The Institute News will feature a range of content, including updates on academic programs, faculty and student achievements, and events and initiatives that contribute to the Institute's mission. We invite everyone to subscribe and stay informed about the latest developments at the Pennsylvania Institute of Technology.

The Institute News is available online at www.pennstate.edu/news. We encourage everyone to subscribe and stay updated with the latest news from the Pennsylvania Institute of Technology.

We read in the paper the other day that a certain proud young man’s wife ran away with another man. The husband, when asked for a statement by the newspaper man, remarked that he could not say for any man’s wife, but for herself.

A chap who has been spending nights on the cross was so much torn on his studies lately that he was financed in lieu of many dollars to the dollar in the latest operations.
He said: "Leads and wires to be perfectly questionless was worse of sudden agency, and yet becoming syndicate under the fracas. Your knowledge from that wish to state that in the give moment of concern there are approximately a quafusion component parts to each individual patch of wall page known to the Angelasmaids as a rule."
The proof furnished the rest of the cross words.

Your eyes are inclined to be pools of grey,
Though I am l"l only a small potato.
Your lips can be painted to my desire,
And your cheeks repudiated, my dear.

Your hair is a trifle too unctuous—
I’m inclined to a Renaissance end,
With eyestocks to watch, and if I’m not too bold,
A bit immoral, and a load.

Your Rachmaninoff, though pretty, is rather Queen Anne—I’d prefer the lost Leda for you.
And perhaps (if you’ll let me know) you can

As it will known, the future of this University as well

we like to think that we are going forward in this very im-

University officials cannot be expected to devote more than a fractional part of their time to the prospective matriculants;
there are too many places contested with the modern college

Pennsylvania has real college life despite size," says C. K. Matson

ARTICLE IN CLEVELAND DAILY

Stresses Importance of Wharton School to Pennsylvania and Priests Medical Schools

In a recent article printed in the Cleveland (Ohio) Field Dealer, Carlton R. Matson, director of the Cleveland Foundation, has the following to say about the University of Pennsylvania:

"Philadelphia is a city which men call home," fairly or unfairly, he has a reputation for extreme conservatism of thought and deliberate action. Cleveland is called aggressive. It is known over the country for its initiative and rapid progress.

Yet the heart of Philadelphia is the University of Pennsylvania, a great urban collection of colleges with nearly three thousand. Cleveland is taking care of only about four hundred of its sons and daughters in college. This is not true of Philadelphia. It has a Real college Individuality to it.”

Lehigh, Lafayette, Swarthmore and the two hours' drive away in Princeton, will be attended by its alumni. It has a real university Individuality to it.

"In connection with the graduate school of medicine (in a rather remote picturesque spot at Pennsylvania), two hospital units have actually been bought under the direction of the dean of the graduate school. In this case the hospital staff and the faculty of the graduate school are exactly identical. Here again the hospital board of managers is appointed by the University staff.

"With all that conservative Philadelphia has done and is doing in the University city, the city is right now planning to do more. A campaign for the University of Pennsylvania on a truly grand scale will be announced some time this winter. All present plans have not reached the point of publication. In the words of Present President, "Pennsylvania is just beginning in many ways the kind of institution which many college leaders will predictably aim to have in Cleveland. Pough is not marked as a real university institution to any great extent. It is a university brought about by its students. It has real college life. Its social organizations are attituded and innovative. Serving great numbers in a democratic way, Pennsylvania will police upon its own and develop a college spirit which makes it easier for them to find and keep a foothold in this modern society which is so economic in its origin. Pennsylvania has a university dormitory system, which is an account for the success of the college life.

Thirteen schools make up the family of Pennsylvania. It is notable that the school of education and such a business school are recommended for Cleveland
