ALUMNI LETTER PRAISES UNDERGRADUATE SUPPORT GIVEN ENDOowment FUND

Thomas S. Gates, '93, Chairman of Fund Campaign, Applauds Student Support

HEALTHY DRIVE ALREADY UNDER WAY

Endowment Drive

Among the University have been greatly pleased with the results of the Undergraduate Endowment drive, according to Thomas S. Gates, '93, chairman of the alumni campaign. Mr. Gates, who is president of the New York Times Co., also wrote to the members of the student body, expressing his appreciation for the support of the campaign. He noted that the record already made, and the determination to carry on until next July, is very encouraging. He is very hopeful that this campaign will be successful in reaching the $500,000 goal.

ENDOWMENT PAYMENTS

Students who subscribed to the Undergraduate Endowment Fund, whether they paid in full or by deferred payments, have been asked to make their payments before the mid-term of the academic year. This is in order to avoid congestion during the next few days.

The U.S. and Blue Teams will have a series of games planned for the second place in the league. The games will be held on the following dates:

- January 26: U.S. vs. Blue
- February 2: Blue vs. U.S.
- March 1: U.S. vs. Blue
- April 5: Blue vs. U.S.

University Professor Describes Other Tests

Bozeman Stresses Importance of Recent Experiments at Tokyo University Experiment

EXPOUNDS EINSTEIN THEORY

The Chicago Tribune, February 2, 1925

Dr. Charles E. Bokowa, professor of physics at Chicago, announced today that the announcement made a few days ago was incorrect. He stated that the real object of the experiment was to determine whether the ether is present in the universe or not.

"If this question is successfully answered, much light will be shed on the problem of the nature of the universe. The only way to answer this question is to allow the ether to move in a certain way and observe whether the earth moves through it."

The重点项目 in the experiment are the announcement that the ether is present and that the earth is moving through it.

Bazsonl Stresses Importance of Recent Experiments

Dr. George E. deSchweinitz, Eye Specialist, has written to the members of the Undergraduate Endowment Fund, expressing his appreciation for the support of the campaign. He noted that the record already made, and the determination to carry on until next July, is very encouraging. He is very hopeful that this campaign will be successful in reaching the $500,000 goal.

European Minister To Lecture Tonight

Young Statesman/Stateswoman Will Describe Customs of Native Land

Under the auspices of the University's Anthropological Society, the Hon. Emory McMichael, Minister Plenipotentiary from the new Republic of Estland, and one of the most successful diplomatists of Europe, will deliver an address on "Estonia and Her People" at Houston Hall, tonight, at 11 o'clock. The Estonian minister will describe the importance of the newly formed state of Estland, its geographical position, and its commerce with the United States.

The address will be in reply to the request of the University's Anthropological Society, which is seeking to further the knowledge of the Estonian people and their customs.

ROCKEFELLER AIDS RESEARCH WORK HERE

Two gifts of $500 each have been made to the University by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation.

The gifts will be used to support research work in the field of education. The Rockefeller Foundation will contribute $500 to the University's educational program, while the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation will contribute $500 to the University's educational program.

Red and Blue Team Stages Comeback in Second Half, But Falls To Penn Leads

For staking a role in the closing minutes of play, Durschmidt's defeated the Red and Blue by one of the greatest and roughest games played on the campus court for some months. Pennsylvania's inability to drop the other through the last few periods of the game was the result of poor play from the inside, which complicated the task of the outside man. McMichael's pressure, pressure, pressure, and pressure brought the score up to 110.

The Red and Blue stadium is the home of the University of Pennsylvania basketball team. The team is coached by Charles E. Bazsonl, professor of physics at Chicago, and is considered one of the strongest in the country.

Princeton Swimmers Engage Pennsylvania

Intercollegiate Swimming Competition

In the second meet of the season, the Princeton University swimming team will face the University of Pennsylvania. The meet is scheduled for February 9, 1925. This meet is expected to produce several exciting races.

In view of the fact that there are several races expected to be contested between Pennsylvania and Princeton, the meet will be watched with great interest.

The match will be held on the campus of the University of Pennsylvania. The team is coached by Charles E. Bazsonl, professor of physics at Chicago, and is considered one of the strongest in the country.

Hazing of Yearlings Criticized by Writer

Evolution of Custom Traced to Present Day From Prehistoric Times in Recent Article

PLAN "CLASS DAY" SUBSTITUTE

"Should freshmen be hazed?" is the topic of a lengthy discussion in the Annals of the American Campus, publication devoted to the consideration of problems arising in various American educational institutions. The writer deals with the hazing systems in regular numbers of colleges and universities in the United States.

Regarding the origin of the custom, the author states: "The idea of hazing freshmen is not one that has originated recently. It probably dates back for the prehistoric times, before colleges were known before teaching any abstruse philosophy. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that prehistoric men forced upon each other worse regulations, and freshmen should derive an increasing reverence of satisfaction in competing with them the make-believe victorides which they must face today.

Our present attitude toward first-year men, charging them to a minor assault in the immortal "fast day" of English Preparatory schools. It has been pointed out that our freshmen had a reputation for the English antisiphon to a fast day.

In criticism of the custom, the writer observes: "You cannot hazing freshmen to suffer indignities that prove frequently discouraging in character, sometimes provoking them to partake of the boxers' kiss. Tending, they enter the portals of the hall, their hair disheveled, their faces unknown. Any moment he expects to raise the spiritual figures to rush up and drag them away to the ladies' chamber. In the case of being forced to pass a serious-minded, earnest, ambitious young fellow or to know him as a sympathetic companion, he is treated as a mere country boy, to be made the goal of childish jokes.

Opposition to the hazing systems in several other institutions are quoted. The Oregon system is a rather new and epoch-making system, sometimes tragic in its conclusions.

The "Class Day" is the practice of "a peer nearness of class order and surplus, unsettling in its effect, severe in its effect, and sometimes deathly." Tending to the other side of the question, an editorial appearing in the Milligan Purple and White is reprinted.

College students are more liberal, orators, presidents of senior classes, editors of college papers, president of English, editors, editors, and star athletes. It is only natural that some of these honored ones should have come to the conclusion that the system was a just one.

It seems to be that a model of what a social atmosphere should be is to be found not in the hazing system. That this fact is true, in all fairness, I do not blame these folks, for it is absolutely normal. The job is sure to make and ordain down-to-earth human beings of them so that after having their wings clipped and some of the feature softened off, they will become dear, tolerant people to have around.

In conclusion, the author suggests that the practice of hazing for the last period is the beginning of one day in the spring as a "class Day" with maid and her capes and corsets on the program. This he claims, would be a better means of grading out which class is the better, and put an end to the pre-school forms of class rivalry.

Well, the good effects of the Endowment Drive are already being realized on the campus. A large addition has been made to the Logan Hall facade, and only the other day an entire new batch of towels was initiated in the crew room showers.

We've already claimed that in basketball it is the results that count.

... The Editor Across the Table just came out with a suggestion that might be a good one. Why not extend the suffocating around Logan Hall for a few more minutes until the women are out, and then obtain two more outdoor board tracks? The idea is an excellent one, and we pass it along to the Athletic Council. Our fee, in case they decide to use it, will be very reasonable as usual.

Judging by the number of students from this man's University we have observed in the family circles of the downtown theaters, the height at which these proposed tracks would have to be placed would not bother them at all. In fact, we think they would voluntarily take more exercise that is now required by the Physical Education department if the track were available. They would be glad to do a couple of times around the border of Logan Hall to get a few breaths of fresh air so as to be most comfortably during the winter months.

If the board truck now on Franklin Field follows the president set it by the rest of the board walks around the place in warping, crimping and hose planks, it will most likely be available for use by the hill-and-dale men or for the delicate race.

The Library reports that lately there has been a great demand for the biographies of prominent men who achieved success without the aid of college education.

The Durm Cup says he reads where a Yale professor once was so considerably excited about the news that the courses will soon be visible, and he had always understood that nearly all of the typewriters were visible.

Readers will be permitted to make their own comments in the news that woman is intending to give up fighting to marry. We shall follow the policy of previous editors of this space in requiring the readers to make their own paragraphs from time to time. This keeps one mentally alert and in accord, as one prophet might say, with the very high conversational standards of the school. If the student body is not given sufficient exercise to keep up the record for stimulating and sparkling with which this campus is famed, few things you know we'll all be talking like a bunch of Harvard students.
