The Sweetest Voice in the World

It can't be heard on the campus.
It can't be heard in the classroom.
It can't be heard at a musical show.
It can't even be heard on the Victrola.
In fact, there is only one way for a College Man to hear Mother's voice, and that is—over the Long Distance Telephone.
So, if you want your pulse to tingle pleasantly, if you want to brighten your spirit as well as your intellect, let Mother greet you over the Long Distance Telephone once every week of your college life.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA
The news tells of a young chap who became excited during the showing of a motion picture, "and, pulling a gun from the pocket, fired a shot which struck a fifteen-year-old girl and then fell the theatre before the report of the shot had time to pass away." This story is one better than the one which came in our attention last year about the chap who was so foolish that he could play games with himself.

Within the past week two women have been found in West Philadelphia suffering from a temporary loss of vision. In about a week there will be a vast number of men in West Philadelphia who have also lost their sense of smell, and the men will in all probability be flogging the ends of theirntlles in vain attempt to recover it.

LITTLE CAMPUS TALES—No. 2

The student wandered wearily from one bulletin board to another and turned from each with disgust and gladness.

"Except in every course," he said, "that's right. That will be absolutely nothing to do at all for the next two weeks. I know what I'm going to do. I'm going to take every one of these examinations just as I see if I really know anything about the subjects. Most of these instructors have probably been overrating my ability."

The Philadelphia papers seem to have taken very seriously our talk about conservatism in newspaper reporting. You may remember our criticism of the California paper that reported one band leader as being nine feet six inches tall. The Evening Ledger was a little too conservative, however, in referring to him as our "six-foot drum major."

We are where some unspeakable, downcast got out a new and had the French Club raided obtaining only a small amount of alleged illegal beer. We could have told the judge that our Frenchmen were boasting perfectly as he had not consulted us in the matter. Anyway, we think that the Under-graduate Council is capable of taking care of these things without outside interference.

That terrible racket you heard from the region of Locust Street last night was raised by a police patrol wagon stalling in front of one of the fraternity houses just before the time for the Freshmen to arrive for the smoker. The brothers turned out and pushed it down in front of another house, which aroused the noise of the boys in that place and necessitated for the patched battle which lasted for nearly an hour.

The Dean Cup says he hopes the weather will be clear at the time of the eclipse this morning, as he heard that the moon will not be shining for about 300 years, and he would like to take that one.

The spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm in the last few lectures of the term made the speaker stop until the laughter had subsided. At first he thought he had understated a very brilliant remark, but soon discovered that the applause was for the report he had finished a street word puzzles in two minutes underpaid.

JOIN THE RANKS

On the fourteenth of February, after the ramifications of the regular commencement exercises, another group of the university graduates will lay aside their seals, pocket their diplomas, and go into the various activities of the life of their campus as Pennsylvania-alumni, in a short time when they will be scattered to all parts of the world, each one a representative of that Alma Mater which has for four years ins-tially trained them for the problems and adventures which will arise. For as they are judged as will the University be judged. It is in part of their past, with its traditions to which they have been introduced and training in the past that they find their place in the Pennsylvania heritage and character with increasing affection their educational mother who may right fully expect the homage of their love and loyal support. Particularly pertinent to the men graduating in February is the message from the Penn as it appeared in the bosom heart news of the Alumni Register. "A true pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether is an old saying that is particularly applicable to the relations of the organized Alumni of the University of Pennsylvania. It is applicable to the General Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania in connection with the desires of the Alumni to place themselves, their influence, their time and their financial resources squarely behind the University in the meeting of its needs, the dating of its great work in the best possible manner, and the promoting of the University to the world as an example of the possibilities of the most advanced educational opportunities that exist in America.

To join the General Alumni Society and take your strength with that of where for the accomplishing of the purposes mentioned is the clear duty of every person who has had the privilege of studying at the University of Pennsylvania.

...THE TRACK TEAM

Concurrent with the opening of the training table for the track men, the removal of the temporary stands in Franklin Field, and the construction of a new board track on the gridiron is the opening of the 1925 track season. Coach Robertson is now developing his entire attraction to the development of his squad in the various departments of this sport which makes such an important position on Pennsylvania's athletic calendar from now until the internationally recognized Relay Championships.

The new board track laid in Franklin Field should be of inestimable value in the development of the team that will represent the Red and Blue at the indoor intercollegiate races. Modeled after the intercollegiate indoor track and constructed with banked turns, a feature sadly lacking on the boards of this year's new practice course, it will furnish the candidates with the conditions they will inest the New York contests.

An exceptionally able squad of experienced men have re-
