George F. Rand, president of the club, was present to address the audience. As a member of the National Committee of the Pennsylvania Club, he is interested in the success of the project. This committee is coordinating the admission of the students who will be participating in the six-act play "Pledge." A special pass will be required for admission to the evening showings.

The Preliminary Program was announced as follows:

First Year Freshmen

FRONTSPICE BY G. C. STEVENS

Marching season terminated last night, and the "Pledge Number" of the Panch Bowl is prepared for its appearance on the stage. Probably at no other time during the next three months will the athletic world be so keenly interested in the progress of a professional player as in this period. This is the time when the future of some of the most promising athletes in the country is being formed.

Pledge Lists

In accordance with its custom, the Pennsylvania Club will publish its pledge list in the next issue of the "Pennsylvania Club" magazine. As a result, this list of pledges made by the interested members of the club will be of great interest to the many prospective members who are considering entering this society.

CONCLUSION

The Pennsylvania Club is well attended. The spring musical "Mr. Punch" was well received by the large audience who turned out to enjoy it. The next event scheduled is the annual "Yardley" in April, which will be an interesting and entertaining event. The Pennsylvania Club looks forward to another successful year.

RETURN CONTESTS NEXT YEAR

After a successful trip to the Middle West, where the University of Chicago, University of Wisconsin and the University of Minnesota were encountered, the Pennsylvania gym team returned to Philadelphia Monday. They also took part in an exhibition meet at Northwestern University.

Friday evening the Red and Blue gymasts defeated 20 to 61 by the Chicago University team. The Philadelphians, who are the champions of the Western Conference, have held the title for the last five years. In this meet Krager was high scorer, taking three second places and two thirds.

The men who made the trip are Capt. John Kimball, Brian, Kloster, Krueger, Manager Barber, and Coach Hillel. They were welcomed at Chico as a group of Pennsylvania athletes.

This is the last long trip that has been made by a minor sport team of the University. Next year Pennsylvania will be busy to all three of these teams, and it is hoped that this will prove a foundation for future interscholastic contests. The next game will be held Friday evening with Dartmouth at the Y. M. H. A. Field and Fish Streets.

After the publication of the University of Pennsylvania daily, The Penn, on the campus of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, I would like to present my personal reflections on the campus and the student experience.

The Penn, founded in 1740, is one of the oldest and most prestigious universities in the United States. The campus is a vibrant hub of academic and social activity, with a rich history and a diverse student body. The university is known for its strong emphasis on research and its commitment to excellence in teaching.

The Penn offers a wide range of academic programs, including engineering, business, and the humanities. The university is particularly strong in the fields of medicine, law, and business. The university is also known for its athletics programs, particularly its football team, which is a source of pride for many students.

One of the things that I appreciate about the Penn campus is the sense of community that exists among students, staff, and faculty. The university is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive environment, and this is reflected in the wide range of student organizations and cultural events that take place on campus.

Despite the many positive aspects of the Penn campus, there are also challenges that students and faculty must face. The cost of tuition and living expenses can be prohibitive for many students, and the high pressure to succeed can take a toll on mental health.

Overall, I believe that the Penn campus is an exceptional place to study and work, and I am grateful for the opportunities that it has provided me.
The performance. The part of Sally, the role that McGuire has been given, is a difficult one. Sally is a woman who lives in the present moment, fully engaged with her environment and her relationships. Her inner world is rich and complex, and her interaction with others is often ambiguous and unpredictable. McGuire's portrayal of Sally is both captivating and subtle, perfectly capturing the essence of the character. Her performance is a testament to her talent and dedication as an actress. The play itself is a thought-provoking exploration of the nature of consciousness and the limits of understanding. It raises questions about the nature of reality and the human condition. The audience is drawn into the narrative, and the questions it raises remain with us long after the performance has ended.
Baseball Team Oyes Much To -Doc" Cartis

Last Season's Unsettled Showing Due to Mentor's Good Coaching

As one of the leading college ball clubs of the country, the Pennsylvania baseball team owes its superior position today to the efforts of Dr. Walter D. Cartis, who has reached the University's diamond players. During the most recent years preceding 1925, baseball at Pennsylvania was laurel "in its, and the athletic Council, in choosing Dr. Cartis to take this role, recognized the importance of his being a player who specifically indicated the results of last season. Following in his footsteps, last but not least, is the burning question.

Fueling energy, miking and understanding coaches at a season's end.
