Two-Mile Relay Quartet Entered Against Relay Team Leaves

■ Thirty effort nor expense has been made to make the relay and "Big Green" games enjoyable and as a means of preserving memories in the new stadium.

The regulations which are in charge of the rules committee, who have drawn up rules and regulations for a number of years to the gadgetry and popularity of the games. Balloons will be located at the entrance to the stadium, and will serve as a means of advertising legal aid. The effects of water will be counteracted by the inflation of balloons, and the waves will seem to ripple and dance.

The California Bar and Watch's committee will also be in attendance at the games, for which purpose, will furnish the necessary equipment and supplies. The committee will direct all of the activities of the games at the stadium, and the aims will be to make the games a success.

But the managers have chosen the title to the "Student Prince" to order that their production would not give the impression that it was a new revival of the piece Mandelfield played it.
Beginning April 27 Mr. Loew will present Franklin Larrimer in a new play by George Froehlich, called "Parasites." The piece, which has been written especially for Miss Larrimer, has been well received both in New York and Chicago. The supporting company includes Mary Hove, Clarice Web, horizontal and Mary Forum. John Harwood has directed the play and has chosen the title to the "Student Prince" to order that their production would not give the impression that it was a new revival of the piece Mandelfield played it.
Wilton Mark, a member of the Broadway's theatrical writers, is now in charge of casting the members of the cast of a picture which is to be the Jacky Cooper is to be the star of the passenger. This brings into one company three of the best known showmen of the American screen theatre, three prominent playwrights, and three attractions in the way of writing and acting.
This, by the way, is the first time that Mr. Halwart has used his "Tiger Rose" and "Kiki" in advance reports. "High Stakes" is expected to be the author's best work, and Shubert has expressed his pleasure that Chicago would seem to verify these forecasts.
On April 4's Students will bring their greatest musical success, "The Student Prince in Heidelberg," to the students. This latest musical offering has one of the strongest singing companies assembled for operatic productions. The several types of music and the various melodies have attracted to the chorus many graduates of prominent us-terations. The opera is a musical ver-ion of "All Houdini," the score piece in which the late Richard Mandelfield took the lead. Occasionally we have to comment on the wonderful value of a college education to a man. The police car requires, the pharmacy, the hardware store, the better things, the ability to express oneself more clearly, and all that. This is brought to our attention almost daily by the conversation we overhear in the dense.

One day, Hill, there's a poppin' of a hop at the little keyhole tomorrow night. Why not get an ear and call it up.

Second also—"Old, the old Turk could stalk another, but I'm not so keen about dragging a job. I ought to go there. Fares know later."

It is necessary for us to announce again that we are not associated in any way with Beatrice Fairfax or Cynthia Healthy. A day ever can be written which does not contain two letters from besotted-hearted President.

The case is reported of the student who was wanted badly so much that he purposely lost his inoculation in order that he might be excused for being absent with a cold. Two weeks ago and it is heard from neither the publicity nor the notebook.

One bolder for this column seems to have the idea that the news is that dropped from the exchequer.

Whenever we are downcast and blue and think we have all of the hard luck there is the thought that we are not going to Princeton and that we don't have to do all of our assignments in the library, because one is no assiduous variety. Life is an inspiration of much value to both the educational organization and the undergraduate.

American Fraternity Association

College Fraternities

There are few institutions teaching the habits of thousands of individuals concerning which more diverse views are in complete harmony than college fraternities. Some, for example, regard them as a menace without a single redeeming feature, while others look upon them as a blessing to the students under their care. Some students declare that they have been of great assistance to them in their studies and relate the generally stories mentioning that they do nothing good and much that is harmful in the undergraduate's experience. As with all other large problems there is a wide variety of opinion regarding college fraternities.

The basic idea underlying the formation of a fraternity is unquestionably good, because it emphasizes the essential bond of brotherhood which should closely unite men and nations, and also shows it is present in some instances have grown up in very crude and indifferent form. A number of instances which have grown up into very crude and indifferent form. In other words, there naturally arises the feeling that, if an individual in going to a social fraternity, he may lose something of things, he is entitled to associate with whom he shall share the responsibilities and advantages which thereby are accepted to the extent.

Taken all in all, the college fraternity has developed such a strong influence upon the educational system of the country that it cannot be regarded as an institution without value to the college and the undergraduate. Those who look back to college days in which many pleasant memories linger among their fraternity group are strong in their sanction of what fraternity means to men. There is the uncertainty of the fact that it also makes for friendships which from many other college associations.

When strong friendships are formed it is only natural that the student should become more interested in the activities of the order which he has selected. The close association with pleasant companions who are headed toward the same goal is a great aid in making the fraternity man realize the importance of college work and to complete it in the best possible manner. More than one man has remained in school because of the friendship and the interest he has in the organization. The fraternity is a spur to a man; it keeps him active in different fields of endeavor and gives new life to that individual. Many students have been brought into the fraternity fold, which has become dormant, were the undergraduates to follow only his own arts, which often lead to the study of his own group. And with this increased capacity to accomplish, to work and to act, with the best possible effort, all of one's ability comes into play, which is a very essential part of the fraternity man in his life after graduation. In a fraternity a man learns to deal with so many others. We are all more prone to disbelieve and to deprecate what the other fellow may think. But fraternity life, with its close association of men from various walks of life, with their bring with them diverse ideas and different methods of approaching the same problems, teaches the fraternity man that the other fellow is as much a factor in life as he is. Without such contact men grapple from college and universit {Page Four}

AT B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
Belle Baker, the incomparable singer of charmers, comes to town for a big hit as the headline feature of the bill at Keith's Theatre this week. Her songs on this visit are the best she has ever offered. This biggest comedy hit of the year is Mr. Rockwell, a comedian who appears on various vaudeville prints, but all in a comedy vein. Ledowa, one of George Chas. silent dance productions, is an other feature. Miss Louie is a beautiful dancer and is supported to an excel lent company. A delightful skit, "Around the Corner," is offered by Chase and Luton. Others on the bill include Buesa and Marley, in scenes—the Mercantile—Asaro's Palates—Pathe News—Top of the Day.

AT THE STANLEY
"Love's Wilderness," featuring Corinne Griffith, will have its first showing at the Stanley Theatre next week. It is an in - reconceivable combination of a highly popular star, a series of vital court scenes and musical settings; a supporting cast of exceptional strength and a universal appeal. The admixture of Corinne Griffith, who has seen her chief in settings of vital luxury, are going to realize the thrill of their lives when they behold the beauteous star in the role of Linda Lee for this vehicle gives her an opportunity of demonstrating her paramount talents, such as she has never had before. As the love - sick maiden of 17., the wife In a tragic case in Canada and the woman lost in the jungle, with hundreds of wonderful court scenes, the fantastic and Miss Griffith's art is put to a severe test, but she demonstrates that she has few equals as an actress.

In the supporting cast are Jan Keith, Holmes, Her bets, Cora Calley, Emily Whiting, Bruce Covington, David Knowles, Frank Elliott and Adolph Miller. The surrounding program promises domestic entertainment value, Charles Wallach, of foremost American composer, with Princess Toli, will present a delightful cycle which features selections from his Met, and also the world's premier arranger, "Shafts," of America. The Philadelphia girls, offer one of the finest comedy acts in vaudeville. The following feature of the bill includes Ramsey and Birnes, Clifford and Marion and others.

THE LOST WORLD
This week Lewis Stone and Wallace Berry, stars of "The Lost World," will offer with the biggest comedy acts in vaudeville, the result made possible by an excellent production. Batton of vaudeville this year Eva Puck and Sam White, who have been musical comedy favorites for several seasons, have a delightful offering called "Opera vs. Jazz." Frank Elliott and Ada Miller, assisted by Miss J. 17.1 Amaso, have the usual comic and dance act, Marie Clifton and Blfie De Bruin, two Philadelphia girls, offer one of the finest comedy acts in vaudeville. This in" manity of the bill includes Ramsey and Birnes, Clifford and Marion and others.

EVERYONE understands how much peace of mind depends upon the physical comfort. It takes a wonderfully fine entertainment to make one forget physical discomfort or disadvantages. It is, or out of it, an unforgettable or disadvantage and upset your peace, mentally as well as physically. The only thing worse is not to be able to get any seat, especially if the entertainment's one you have been set upon. People who get 100 per cent pleasure out of their play- going, both be getting their tickets from those whose special business is to prove satisfactory seats. THELE USE THE SERVICE OP THE CONWAY AGENCY and thus cut out disappointment and dissatisfaction from the very start. It means much to be a Conway client, especially when good seats are so hard to get.
