Stephen Leacock describes influence of intimate Personal Contact in American Suburb

EMPHASIZES DORMITORY LIFE

"As a college teacher, I have been realized that the teacher at best can do very little for the student," declared Benjamin Leacock, noted humorist, in an article published recently in the Daily Princetonian. Mr. Leacock, a college professor, attempted to set forth the results of what a college should be.

"The real thing for the student is the life and experience of the surrounding town," stated Mr. Leacock. "All that he really learns, or gains in potential, is the social operation of his own intellect, and not the science. Science is merely theory.

For this active operation, what he needs most is the continued and immediate contact with his fellows.

"Ask the Men Who Wear Them"
FRENCH SCIENTIST WILL LECTURE AT UNIVERSITY

Pierre Lemarié, Assistant Director of French School, to Speak on Various Subjects

GIVES ONE LECTURE IN FRENCH

In accordance with an arrangement between French and American universities to exchange professors, Professor Pierre Lemarié, assistant director of the well-known École Centrale de Lyon, will come to Pennsylvania on Monday to give a series of lectures. The exchanges of professors of applied science is carried on between a group of American colleges, competing Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Johns Hopkins, Pennsylvania and many of the larger French institutions, including Sorbonne, Strasburg and the École Centrale de Lyon. Professor Lemarié has been precluded in this work by his Rector J. Guizzadi in 1932 and by M. M. Bertollet; Canali in 1933 and recently of Strasbourg, in 1987.

In addition to his position in the École Centrale, Professor Lemarié is a reserve officer in the French navy. He is a graduate of the École Superieurs d'Électricité of Paris and of the Sorbonne. During the war he directed the naval station there at Brest and later organized and superintended a huge center for the making of physical considerations as applied to sub-marine warfare.

He has carried on notable researches in the field of specialized engineering on the aeronautical department and has done much in the field of aeronautics. Together with his assistants during the war, Professor Lemarié constructed numerous devices and forms of apparatus relating to sub-marine sonnics, some of which were later installed on allied war vessels. He made an intensive study of questions concerning anti-submarine equipment of tanks, and many other machines, decided on an increase of liquid contacts with which the French tanks were equipped.

During his stay, Professor Lemarié will lecture in Houston Hall on Tuesday, at 4 p.m., where he will discuss "The Great Technical High School in Lyons, Stage modules, and details of the American Navy." On Wednesday, April 1, at 4 p.m., he will lecture on "La Marine de L'Air," and other subjects. On Thursday, April 2, at 4 p.m., he will give a technical lecture on "The Brest and Proper Adjustment of Antisubmarine Firing." Other lectures will be given on "Civilization and Fundamental Principles," and last lecture will be given on "Civilization and Fundamental Principles," and will be on the subject of "Civil Progress." The series of lectures will be illustrated with automatic slides.

For the second time in the history of the University, a Red and Blue relay team will sail for England to represent Pennsylvania in the races to be held in London on April 11. In the spring of 1922 another relay team went from Pennsylvania and established a record which the University hopes to equal or better this year. The team this year is being under the auspices of the members of the winning relay team and the members are on the lookout for the best men in the University.

AMERICAN SPELLING PERMITTED TO LAG

American spelling has been allowed to lag for several centuries, according to Dr. Shelly, professor of English, who recently stated that our printed language has drifted far behind the spoken. With improvement of communication between distant parts of the country, Dr. Shelly said, there is a possibility of the spoken tongue becoming more stable.

"Every American child must be taught two languages," Dr. Shelly declared. "One he writes and the other he speaks. Spoken language is always changing. Until the instruction of our language kept pace with it. Since that time spelling has been fixed, and pronunciation has continued to change. The deduction has become crystallized.

By the end of the seventeenth century spelling was very much as it is now. As these two forms of language continue to grow apart, the word for a Flexible, less rigid spelling becomes stronger and stronger. There are only two things that keep us from having a phonetic spelling—education and tradition.

"Take, for example, the word 'eight.'

Four or five hundred years ago the sound which the 'eight' stood for disappeared from our pronunciation. The word 'fate' was once pronounced 'fate.'
