Approximately 100 couples were present at the most successful entertainment of the year in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

The dance was followed by a deliciously served dinner and dancing followed.

The music was conducted by Meyer Davis and the orchestra produced some of the best music heard for some time.

The decorations were most attractive and the dancing was superb.

The dance was from 10 till 4.

College Athletes

Claimed Injuries

Speaking before the Ohio College Association, Prof. E. O. Mahlin, of Purdue University, announced intercollegiate sports as professional and a detriment to the college health of the men.

Prof. Mahlin, who is a member of the athletic committee at the Western University, declared that the present system of college football is a mad rush to the health and physical condition of many of the players and even to their lives.

The speaker further stated that present tendencies in athletic training to make the home-comings of football teams an occasion for liquor drinking damages and injures men.

The speaker continued that "the most serious charge that can rightfully be brought against the present order of athletic training is that it is not only fatal to be of any use in the practical standard of the great masses of students who need it. But on the contrary, athletic sports as placed today are most harmful to those rendering".

Prof. Mahlin declared he believed "the only practicable solution for the problem of athletic training is to be found in the absolute incorporation of the culture of the student into the entire program of intercollegiate athletics."

Effective March 1st, chairman of the Athletic Council of the University of Pennsylvania, when told of Professor Mahlin's charges, said situations were entirely different now, "recreational drinking and gambling," he added, "no such conditions exist at the University of Pennsylvania."

JOAN OF ARKANSAS

Jim Butler, after one of the brilliant screen treatments of "Penna. Vizk.," as may the Mask and Wig men, refer to their recent invasion of the stage, so similar results only to determining the average audience that marked the biggest and the most intense of all Mask and Wig trips.

The true value at a great performance the meaning, well-executed acting and dashing was its quality and splendor. And the many amusing numbers were so well-received that one might well predict that before long the whole thing may be performed on the stage. Behind them on the road has been placed a permanent mark of Pennsylvania prestige and Mask and Wig quality. Wilmington, Cleveland, Chicago, New York, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Chicago, New York, and other cities have all declared this company's production to be the best of all former Mask and Wig presentations. That these cities should be able to judge Pennsylvania to such an active and representative company as Mask and Wig is of tremendous value to the theatre. A great work has been accomplished, and Pennsylvania has maintained its position as a centre of art and more progressive of American universities.

But Mask and Wig is only beginning. After a short period the company will resume production here in the East. While we are expecting our Karoo version "Joan of Arkansas" will appear in Atlantic City next summer. Then, in the summer of the mask, we shall have a two-weeks' appear-
