SMOKING UNIMPORTANT

Among Western Co-Es

Smoking among the women students in the big colleges and universities of the Pacific Coast seems to be a matter of individual conscience. Nowhere does such smoking appear to be a particular problem, although there is no doubt that it is being indulged in more or less generally.

At the University of California, Miss Lucy Raymond, Dean of women, said that the problem was handled by the co-eds themselves years ago and has never re-occurred. Miss Mary Youn, women's Dean at Stanford, said that the sentiment against smoking had been upheld by the art students who have declared themselves against it. "It is just not being done at Mills College," Mrs. Antonia H. Birkett, principal at the Oakland Institute, stated. "We have many wooden buildings and the girls have themselves formed smoking on account of the breeze.

The same general feeling against smoking seems to be held by the co-eds at the University of Oregon, the University of Idaho, the University of Washington, Whitman College, Washington, and the University of Southern Cali-ifornla.

UNIVERSITIES BLAMED FOR INFIDELITY IN RELIGION

A sweeping indictment of universities and colleges throughout the country as a force in lowering the moral and social standards was made by Albert W. Johnson, of Lewistown, Pa., Federal Judge and state vice-president of the Pastoral Order Sons of America, in an address last Friday evening at the eighty-fifth anniversary meeting of the Philadelphia Archdiocesan Association in the Union Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, New York and Germ Streets. By fostering infidelity in religion, colleges and universities are contributing to the divorce evil and other evils in the United States, Judge Johnson stated.

"These evils are directly traceable to some institutions," said the Judge. "I could name three, but it would surprise and alarm you. However, none of us would have to go very far from here to touch one of these. He declared a great flood of students to be a threat of such evils.

It was disclosed by operations from a private detective agency that many scalping parties are located in the center of the city. Then, the detectives declared, and tickets for the game for prices ranging from $5 to $15 a seat, while pairs of tickets in the East and West stands sold for $25. The various places charged with illegal reselling of tickets are de- clared by the detectives to be a closely banded scalping ring in this city.

SOLVING THE TICKET RIDDLE

Every large and well-organized concern makes it an annual practice to pass out and take stock at the end of the year, determining exactly how much its business has increased or decreased, how well it has succeeded in serving its patrons, and in what respects it has fallen short. Since the inventory has been made, the executive officers round to investigate the information obtained and to decide on that basis what the future policy of the firm shall be.

The Council on Athletics is to be congratulated in adopting this same, business-like practice and applying it to its business in seeking the alternative who seek admission to the study during the football season. Of course, a university alumni is a force with a business like reputation to which the number of patrons who have a sentimental attachment to it, as such a customer never has for an impersonal corporation. But a successful business method is applicable to a great degree to the vast business of ticket distribution which our athletic authorities have to handle every year.

The plan as announced has two objects in view; first, a thorough investigation of the methods employed by other universities in solving the limiting seating capacity of their athletic fields; second, the selection of a representative committee to examine the ticket policy which shall apply to the future.

Step number one is essential in order to determine the most possible methods of procedure and the various alternatives which may be taken advantage of. It is largely possible that the policy pursued by either Yale or Illinois will not be applicable to Pennsylvania, but certain details of each may be discovered which would be equally practical if adapted here. This investigation should enable the committee in charge to reappraise our own ticket policy the best aspects of all the plans considered.

Step number two is required in order that all the interested and the directors of football tickets may have a share in deciding how it shall be done. With this object in view the investigation committee issued an invitation to all those interested parties to present their arguments to the Endowment Fund Committee, the faculty, the general alumni society, and the undergraduate body, with the Chairmen of the Council on Athletics serving as chairman of the committee.

Criticism has frequently been aimed at the Council on Athletics growing in the distribution which our athletic authorities are permitting a certain details of each may be discovered which would be equally practical if adapted here. SLANG AN INDICATION OF MENTAL ALERTNESS

Dr. Felix Schelling, head of the English department at Pennsylvania State University, is an authority on slang. He has written a book on this subject, and holds that slang is an indication of mental alertness.

In one of his many papers on the subject, Dr. Schelling makes a statement that has been repeated many times: "Slang is not a language, nor is it a form of expression.

The use of slang is an indication of mental alertness and the language will win the battle because of lack of vitality.

"Slang will not last, but it is a sign of alertness and vitality."

Dr. Schelling's study of slang is based on the fact that slang is used by the young and the old, and that it is used by people of all walks of life.

One of his most interesting findings is that slang is used by people who are not of the same nationality.

"Slang is a universal language," says Dr. Schelling. "It is used by people of all nationalities, and it is used by people of all ages.

In conclusion, Dr. Schelling says that slang is an indication of mental alertness and vitality, and that it will continue to be used by people of all walks of life."

The fracas was cloe edly contested and this factor places Pennsylvania more thrills than the one on Thursday. The seventy-two thousand spectators sat tense throughout the game, climactically one moment and gripping breath, barely the next as the two eleven men swapped back and forth on the gridiron.

The annual Varsity Alumni battle scheduled for next Saturday, has been called off in consideration of the strains one schedule the players have gone through this season. Tomorrow after noon Franklin and Germantown will jake on Franklin Field to determine the Public High School championship of Philadelphia.
