Every time there is an announcement that some one else's life has been saved through the use of the thrombocytopenic plasmas, we are apt to give a snicker. We think an invention of this sort for rescuing little objects which have fallen into our path, might prove equally as beneficial, if not as widely useful, as the thrombocyte salvarsan. If the same principle could be applied to greater benefits in bankruptcy or if it were used to prevent local preparations and staple under banes, or the kicks which are never regretted when the operator gives the wrong number.

Now that the Wile-Langan match is over the people in California will most likely get a little sleep.

It seems as though every so often Fox has to dish up a genuine little pillow joke for soft consumption. On Friday the delaying game was driven up at Rutgers, after which the event the numbers are to be guessed at the Rutgers Junior Press. And the poor unfortunate Rutgers men who have no emotional ability whatever will stand around outside, forced to join whatever crowd they can in creating the joke by arguing in their impressionistic way with the Princetonian men, indeed instead of.

At Keck's this week the headline is called Berlin's ex-Lieut. We have not seen the bill, but anything that will throw any light on the struggle for Ellen Mackay's hand, a third party in the case will do double prose interesting.

The Battle Cry

"I am trying to decide between one other place and this."

The freundza who has been wearing these more to Helen Wills says perhaps she will take some pride of him here that she has failed to beat Mississie.

A panel was created in a class of women students the most recent of the many that in the past, and that which in the brilliant occasion, should cause the production to be particularly amusing. This plan is a notable step forward and should please people with more brains from the beginning.

"Let us be content to mine the near coal, to trade the largest innovations to weaving and the largest quantities of cotton, but amid the secrets of the pick, the thrums of the lumber, the mules of the mine and the roar of machinery, take note that the immortal mechanism of God's own hand—the mind—is still full trained for the highest and thickest service."—John Woolminton.

The light opera on the program Following a season which was marked by a series of triumphs, the Glee Club of the University is about to embark in a new field of endeavor. This season will be the presentation of the popular light opera, "Finian," by Gilbert and Sullivan, which has delighted audiences for many years. Although the date has not as yet been set for the performance, it will probably be held in one of the regular spring musical concerts, some time in May. This innovation will make a more colorful feature in a brilliant season than the former spring concerts, which, however, were very popular.

In a note of "Finian" will be a concentration of the most talented men in the Glee Club and that which in the brilliant occasion, should cause the production to be particularly amusing. This plan is a notable step forward and should please people with more brains from the beginning.
