MURDOCH KENDRICK

(The following minute concerning Murdoch Kendrick was adopted by the Board of Governors of the Mask and Wig Club on February 27, 1943.)

By the unanimous death of Murdoch Kendrick in the full flower of his manhood, the Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania has suffered an irreplaceable loss; and his members stand together with a profound grief, shock, and regret.

Murdoch joined the Club with great enthusiasm in the summer of 1936 and was elected to membership. He was an ardent supporter of the Club and was the discoverer of the importance of the Club's development. His leadership and stamina were reflected in the Club's progress and health.

Not only in the Club's business affairs was Murdoch an important figure, but also in the personal affairs of his members. When his initiation and outlook combined to make him the organiser of the various Committee in Mask and Wig Club's work in behalf of the Mask and Wig Club was not confined to the office. His influence extended also to the Durham with his kindness and tact. This made him one of the most respected of his co-workers both in the office and in the Club. His death will be felt as a great loss to the promotion of their personal and personal interest in connection with their lives as students of the University.

Murdoch was a "man's man," a real man, acceptable to the community in which he lived and found and had his home. He was a man of honor and of his word. He was a true friend of his classmates and of the University. The final event of his life was the final decision that he should have made of his life.

And, so, in the passing of his life, Murdoch Kendrick has been cut from the activities of the Club, but his memory will live on. He was a loyal, true friend of the Club, and this, together with the memory of his kindness and respect, will be remembered by all of us.

The following minster is hereby adopted by the Board of Governors of the Mask and Wig Club:

Before you even look for the jack or tire-tools, tuck a neat wad of Prince Albert into the muzzle of your Jimmy-pipe. Light up . . . and before you even feel the smoke percolates into your system, the sun blazes over the planished-steel mudguards. Its cool, soothing hotsy-totsy. Yes indeed, Fellow, Prince Albert is merely tailored to the program of youth, gasoline, and liquor. Take my word for it, Fellows; no other tobacco is like it!

A dignified business

Any retail business that has grown to a volume of more than $100,000,000 a year must be founded upon sound business principles.

Kregel's a dignified business. It is founded upon the everlastinig human need—of folks everywhere.

The S. S. Kregel Company has developed the art of retail store-keeping to the point where it may well be termed a science. Merchandise of standard grade is sold in Kregel stores—but in such quantities that prices are consistently lower than in stores that lack the organization and resources of a great national institution.

There are already more than three hundred stores in the Kregel chain—and new ones are being added constantly. For these new stores we shall need managers—competent men thoroughly experienced—and Kregel-trained.

A limited number of young-men—college-men of good character and promise—will be given the opportunity to train for these positions. While at once and arrangements will be made for you to meet a man from your own college who is now a Kregel representative. He will give you complete information.

In the field of college men's fashion, Kregel leads the way. The S. S. Kregel Co., 3713 Spruce St. Philadelphia, Penna., manufacturers of fine garments for students and men generally, have opened a new branch for the sale of men's clothing. The new branch is located on the second floor of the Shubert building, and is equipped with a complete line of men's clothing, including suits, overcoats, and ties. The store is managed by Harry W. Reppert, who has been in charge of the college clothing division of the company for many years.

The store is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and is closed on Sunday. The staff of salesmen is headed by H. W. Reppert, who has been in charge of the college clothing division of the company for many years.
