Vanity PITCHES STELLAR; i day.

Thomas P. M. McMahon, President of Pennsylvania's first Glee Club, announced the forthcoming athletic schedule last week, and Coach Charles sent in his forecasts of the spring meet. Preliminary plans point to a slate that mostly reflects the wishes of both men and women. The Dog Lake will be the site of the opening meet in the spring week, and anticipation of the meets fully appreciated by a So. A and O.

The team plans to go into its spring meet as a team, as is required by the rules. And Red and blue players crossed the board in the first half, with the right and left scoring against the other team. At the half, the team was up 23-5, and in the second half it finished with a bang at 105-3.

Enthusiastic Capacity Houses Welcome

Show of 36th Annual Mask and Wig Production

HOLD "FACULTY NIGHT" TONIGHT

Starting from both the majority houses and the favorable opinion that greeted the Mask and Wig's thirty-sixth annual reunion of the last Thursday, the first week of March was held at the Forrest Theatre. The event was held at the highest possible level.

The production was a success, and the following week's run at the Forrest Theatre will be held. The crew worked overtime, and the production was held at the highest possible level.

The length of the competition has not been limited. This team, without the help of the first week's run, will be held. It is the hope that they can win the competition. This team, without the help of the first week's run, will be held. It is the hope that they can win the competition.

INSPCT SKULLS OF EXECUTED PRISONERS

Science Aids Arizona Warden to Determine Innocence or Guilt of Convicted Men

DISPLAYED IN WISTAR INSTITUTE

In a series of communications between Dr. Milton Greenman, director of the Wistar Institute of Biology and Anatomy, and H. R. Nune, superintendent of the Arizona State Prison, Florence, Arizona, concerning an inspection of two skulls of executed prisoners owned of various prisons, there is illustrated a remarkable example of the manner in which science can cooperate with the law in establishing the guilt or innocence of alleged criminals. The skulls are on display in the exhibition room of the Institute, to gather with all correspondents and prison having a bearing on the case.

Superintendent Sims had heard that the Institute was equipped in examine and report on skulls and wished to determine if there were grave doubts in my mind as to his guilt in the crime for which he paid the death penalty. In a communication to Dr. Greenman, the superintendent states: “I am forwarding two skulls to determine if any abnormalities likely to produce insanity and criminal tendencies are present. I would appreciate a full report on the matter.”

In order not to be influenced in any way, Dr. Greenman requested that an inspection or history of the skulls should be sent before he completed the examination. In his report he says: “After an inspection of the bones, I find that the man skull, which I have designated ‘A,’ has nothing to indicate a tendency or excuse for criminal acts or behavior. As far as his cranial area, the individual might have been an orderly college professor or a United States Senator.

Concerning the second skull, labeled ‘B,’ I have a suspicion that there was a mixture of blood other than white. I am inclined to believe that there was a combination of the brain case at an early age. As a result, the present man shows idiocy in character. He was therefore a defective individual. It would not surprise me to find that he was not nearly normal and that among his relatives could be found individuals hand-flailed or possessing other mental peculiarities.

“To sum up this inspection, skull ‘A’ was that of a man showing no criminal tendencies. Skull ‘B’ of small size, shows evidence of arrested development and indications of a defective individual.”

In a reply correcting the order of the skulls, Superintendent Sims gave the following information: “The men of that skull ‘A’ was executed here and there much doubt in my mind as to his guilt. He asserted his innocence before his execution. Enquiry you will find his confession and a picture of both men.

As to skull ‘E’ persons who knew him asserted that he was a hero. His last word on record at Texas prison was ‘all hail, horse stealing, hog stealing, farm, facilities checks, and two other indescribable. Before his execution he used for hours, if not days, and was visited throughout. He had to be strapped to a board in order to stand under the gallows.

The other prisoner, however, was once right with a smile, even before that gallows he maintained his innocence.”

SIX FRENCH COLLEGES
OFFER SUMMER COURSES

University of Geneva and McGill University Are to Hold Six and Eight-Week Sessions

TOURS PLANNED FOR STUDENTS

Six French universities have invited American students to study in their summer courses. The college museum of the University of Paris, the University of Lyon, the University of Dijon, the College of the University of Strasburg, the University of Bordeaux, and the Sorbonne have arranged courses of two, four, six, and eight weeks duration. The session lasts from July 5 to August 31. Prices for the work will be arranged that beginners will be enabled to take the courses as well as advanced students.

The Sorbonne offers two series which will be precisely the same in character. The first commences July 6 and continues until August 22. The other series will run from August 1 to September 15. The "University Formula" course is continued from August 22 to September 5.

The University of Bordeaux to the upper Pyrenees has prepared courses for beginners and advanced students. A year-round combination course for foreigners desiring to learn both Spanish and French at the same time is offered for 24 francs plus city postages. This combination of courses starts July 15 and is concluded on September 15.

Coach Stewart's Charges Net Two Goals to the Place to Eat. Lunch and Full-Fell. contest »iii close the spring soccer season that date has been moved to May 1. That lunch will be held on the campus which was to have been on the campus of Pennsylvania's second past. Finding fourteen twenty-minute periods, the Red and Blue bands jangled into the start early in the spring. West, Pennsylvania's fight halfback, sent the ball into the net from the twenty-yard line. Soon after this, Elster, Red and Blue center forward, hurt his ankle and was forced to retire from the contest.

Dr. Chester E. Chester, of the History Department, will lecture on the boxes of history. Students have been hailed as an important contribution toward understanding of the influence of history in relative terms. History books are written to teach the children of today to be in the chief topic of discussion in the morning, for it is by educators that we are creating international lists. For example, the schoolbooks of France left French children that the World War was caused by the German desire to exterminate the French. The schoolbooks of Germany tell the German children that Germany was the gallant and that English jealousy of Germany and French desire for revenge joined the World War. The Psychology of Sectarianism will be discussed at the morning session by Dr. Edward S. Scolar. Italian research is to be done by educators that they are creating international lists. A graduate of the University of Edinburgh, Dr. Max, formerly was special lecturer on modern psychology at the University of Mel- lbourne. He has been active in the University's Educational Movement in England and Australia. J. Montgomery Sandell, professor of history at Columbia University, will speak on "The Control of His- tory Teaching." A collection of history textbooks in use today in elementary and secondary schools in France, Germany, Mexico and the United States has been assembled by Donald R. Taft, professor of economics and sociology at Wells College, whose has prepared parallel columns showing how great is the contrast between the policies of countries regarding their events presented in the textbooks of various nations. He will discuss the problems involved.
