The Committee of Ulster Students has requested me to write a letter concerning a matter of great moment and discussion. In its last full meeting the Committee had the privilege of welcoming the President of the University, Prof. C. W. E. Hall, to its session.

The President, in his address, brought to the attention of the students the need for increased activity in student life and the desirability of more interest in the various activities of the University. He emphasized the importance of a good balance between study and leisure and the necessity for students to develop a sense of responsibility for their own welfare and the welfare of the University.

The Committee of Ulster Students, in response to the President's remarks, has decided to make a thorough study of the various activities of the University and to recommend practical measures for their improvement. We believe that this study will help to create a more active and interested student body and will contribute to the general welfare of the University.

Yours sincerely,

[signature]

Chairman, Committee of Ulster Students

New Haven, Conn.
Let me begin by saying that we are in no mood or position to write the column today. First, most of the freedmen have not returned to this department to answer the ever-changing call of the Travel Association for men who strive to see the world from a poor state. Worse than that, perhaps, is the fact that while we are writing this there is going on a strike the second greatest event staged in this state for the past two weeks. In order to escape permanent injury, we are forced to vote twice for each candidate and make a stamp speech on the back porch of Houston Hall.

Some of the members have already sought out the chairman of the senior class to adopt, with modifications, the fist strike. They should start a permanent committee to undertake the permanent debt incurred a few weeks ago.

May the aim for the next year of activities be a true one.

The Daily News is to be congratulated upon summing up in seven words all the bad things that could happen to a person. We quoted from the picture subtitles in yesterday's issue:

"Living—The Thine—Torre—Jill—Eniron Heart."

Well, we have to go to class now.

MAC, with Lan, Bee and Wendy

Helped from the sources which the initial pattern enjoys. If it is successful the method of continuing an open, along with the usual Glen Club schedule, should be carefully considered by the management.

The sources of this material can hardly be questioned. The major role of tickets has been extremely gratifying to the management and indicates a reception from the people of the City of Philadelphia which will be more than gratifying. The best notices of The Pennsylvanian are sincerely extended to the Glen Club in this its major presentation. May successes greet the efforts.

After submitting, for a year, to the domination

Of a class who claim to be capable of molding fashions

And who would subordinate an ever-effacing personality—

Bountiful dash, drab, standard wear

THE "EXFROSH" CAN NOW "STEP OUT!"

And express that individuality which has before lain dormant.

We have to go to class now.

"THIS FREEDOM—"

Can he ‘flower out’ with underwear that will com-porate with the symbol of the Soviet Republic?

May cower those cramping only holes with a star that ‘just collaborates’?

We've got em at $3 & $4

And hold that "lust for liberty" in a bare foot and golf stick.

That dashes—in checks, strips, and "77 varieties"

So "they that impale!

Score Third Straight Win

Pennsylvania, with three wild to first and Tremper tallied.
Kremer and Page both beat slight right to the left, when Penn State tied the score by tallying two runs. Lippert led and counted on Kehoener's double. Wilson sacrificed and captored booked the third run when Thomp-sen committed an error in framing Hare's Krypton. Pennsylvania was shut out in its first and in the seventh the Lions came back with two more runs to take the lead at 2-2. Jacobson walked, Kent eral and Lippert scored. Then Keho-ner hit in Thompson, who threw wild in the plate, and Johnson scored.
Kremer came home on a passed ball.
The Red and Blue, its fighting spirit unshaved, rallied in its half of the inning and put over the three runs that won the game. Thomp. started it with a doutle, his second hit of the game. Thomp.
shortstop and Kent scored. Fields dupled both Thomas and Thomp-
sen. Fields side second, and then Hamlen hit to Page, who fumbled, and Fields covered the plate with the deciding run.
