Dr. Thoeng, Former Head of Western Reserve University, Describes "College Bill of Rights"

SPREAD RAPIDLY IN 1925-26

"The most outstanding and recordning fact has been the increasing power of the student in undergraduate life," declared Charles Franklin Towing, President Emeritus of Western Reserve University, recently, in reviewing the outstanding features of the 1925-26 year at various institutions throughout the Uni-ced States. He termed the general movement as a "College Bill of Rights." Dr. Towing described the rapid growth of student governing bodies of a similar nature to the Undergraduate Council at Pennsylvania. In general, power is controlled upon these groups in direct proposition of conduct on the campus. In addition, in many cases, as at the University, judicial power is vested in the student governing body to try the cases of students who are brought before the group, charged with infractions of the code. Decisions are generally subject to faculty veto.

In commenting on the nature of the movement towards greater student governing power, Dr. Towing declared, "The sentiment is often voiced as a protest against presumed college abuses and limitations. It has the sound of an academic Declaration of Independence, and is used with and laden by college presidents, the leaders of the movement are not adverse to giving counsel; the movement is not averse to giving counsel.

More than 350,000,000 incandescent lamps, with a combined light of nine billion candlepower, make city streets, stores, and homes brighter than ever before.

In bungalow or mansion, workshop or factory, dormitory or auditorium, there is no excuse for poor illumination. We have cheaper and better lighting in the electric lamp than ever before; for the dollar that bought 1,115 candlepower-hours of light with the carbon-filament lamps of 1886, now buys 16,200 candlepower-hours of light with the MAZDA lamps.

Not only more light, but correctly applied light, is demanded. Good lighting is the worthy handmaiden of culture and progress.

The General Electric Company is the world's largest manufacturer of incandescent lamps. And behind the G-E MAZDA lamps are engineers trained to design and manufacture lamps which will produce cheaper and better electric illumination, and to the conservation of energy.

A series of G-E advertisements showing what the G-E MAZDA lamps are doing in many ways will be seen in our next issue of THE PENNSYLVANIA.
SOPHOMORES—AWAKEN!

At the close of each college year the president of the men's sophomore class appoints a committee of about twenty men, whose duty it becomes to see to it that the men who matriculate at Pennsylvania the following September wear the correct insignia for a period of approximately nine months. Before leaving school for the summer this body draws up a list of several weeks' notice for their vicissitudes and, upon the opening of the Fall term, the punishment encounter places in all parts of the campus announcing these restrictions.

Immediately after the opening of college, the dignitaries begin their work of punishing those few freshmen whom they discover breaking regulations. Contrary to the popular belief, most of the initiates are never examined before the Committee, nor is it possible for that body to apprehend many of them.

Who, then, is responsible for the detection of the remainder of the violators? This duty falls in general upon every sophomore and upperclassman, but more particularly upon the sophomore and upperclassmen.

The rules and regulations are laid down upon the assumption that certain classes are being prosecuted in order that the blame may be spread upon the shoulders of every upperclassman.

Awake from your lethargy, 39! Cooperate with your Upsilon Committee in their laudable task.

A SAFE AXIOM

It is generally contended that we are in college for the purpose of study. Primarily this is true. Yet many students have more in mind than just scholastic work when they make their choice of a college. They hope for friendships, camping and athletics, and, if ambitious, for prominence in campus affairs.

The so-called "regulations" for a period of approximately nine months, are enforced to keep the men who come to the university from taking full advantage of a higher education, and yet we are, all of us, at heart the students' team and affair, admitting that it is really the students' team and affair, insuring them that no higher paying cash customer shall be given their places.

We must realize that the Council has been valiantly struggling to prevent too much replacing which might lead to the old fashioned foot ball rivalry that now takes place. Some day the Council may really give way to the extent of admitting that it is in the students' team and affair.

Besides the brilliant grades of the undergraduates they also scored a touchdown in getting reserved individual seats locating that no longer will each cash customer be given their places.

DEATH CLAIMS FORMER DARTMOUTH PRESIDENT

All Hanover Mourne Loss of Dr. William Jewel Tucker, Known as "The Great Awakener"

LOVED BY ALL WHO KNEW HIM

Dr. William Jewel Tucker, President Emeritus of Dartmouth and known as "the great president" who brought Dartmouth from the position of a small New Hampshire college to that of a great national institution, died at his home in Hanover shortly after a Sunday afternoon. Heart trouble from which he has been suffering for many years caused his death.

Dr. Tucker was born in Goshen, Conn., in 1838. He was graduated from Dartmouth in the class of 1861 with an A.B. degree, and later obtained a degree of D.D. at Andover Seminary. Since that time this degree has been conferred on him by Dartmouth in 1875, by the University of Vermont in 1894, and the degree of L.L.D. by Williams in 1895, by Vassar in 1896, by Wesleyan in 1900, and by Columbia in 1906.

He became president of Dartmouth College in 1901 and served in this capacity until 1910. His administration was the most notable in the history of the College, and has been called "The Great Awakening." Immediately after his succession taxes began to fall, and in fourteen years fourteen new dormitories were built to care for the increasing numbers. Many of Dartmouth's finest buildings were erected during this time, and through all these changes, Dr. Tucker has preserved the old and honored traditions of the school.

But the price of his great service to Dartmouth was the loss of his health, and he was removed to a sanitarium six years of hard work. After his return, Dr. Tucker retired to a quiet home and spent most of his remaining years in Hanover.

The President Emeritus was greatly beloved by everyone who knew him and all Hanover mourns his death. The few members of the faculty now residing in Hanover who were during administration were called and all expressed their highest regard for the scholar. Funeral services for the late Dr. Tucker will be held Sunday morning.

Who wound up the Red and Blue's preparations for its second game of the season? The lineup of the first team was unchanged from the way it opened last Saturday, except for a couple of positions.

Much effort has been expended in perfecting the ideal lineup of each boat, and it is expected that the crews will be ready for the meet on the Schuylkill Friday. Several boxers from the varsity squad also have been called up, but will not be able to play for several days. Fields will call the signals for the second varsity seven and will have with him in the backfield. Fields is expected to be able to play at all times.

The "right" and "left" names of the crew are in the order of their seating in the boat. The "right" side, which faces the bow, is called the "right" side, and the "left" side, which faces the stern, is called the "left" side.

Olympic games reached its peak and Intercollegiate and Intercollegiate track teams were in action. Miss Wainwright of Southampton, N. Y., former champion swimmer, and Ben Owen, of Pennsylvania track, also took part. Owen, a member of the University's track team, and in 1924 won the indoor and outdoor pole vault championship, and this year placed in the outdoor interscholastic of 1924 and 1925. He did not enter competition during his senior year at the University because of an injured ankle.

The year of the last Olympics, Owen accompanied the American team to Europe and later displayed his ability in the sport at various meets throughout Holland and Germany. It was on this team which carried the American flag in the pole vault that Owen became acquainted with Miss Walnwright, who was a member of the University's students' Federation, formed by repressing the movement's original goals. Walnwright was a member of the Students' Federation, formed by repressing the movement's original goals.

The Miracle," as it is now, was created by Miss Behrman, Europe's mistress of stagecraft. After playing in Europe for fifteen years, this sensational work is now being presented in the American public by Miss Walnwright, who with Mr. Behrman, conceived the idea of turning the theatre into a church for the performance. To carry out this idea, they called in Norman Bel Geddes, a young American stage and scenic artist, and he designed the settings which are described as being unparalleled in the history of the theatre.
