Rolls Royce Engine
In A Flivver Body ?

Oh, no, they aren't packed that way.

A fourteen-cylinder motor can't possibly run as smoothly in a car as in an aeroplane, and yet

That rollicking look comes from knowing where to buy, not what to buy.

Our label on your clothes and haberdashery has all the assurance of "Body

THE PENNSYLVANIAN

Friday, October 15, 1926

The Chicago team is known as the "singing eleven." Major programs for this Saturday will be "Black Eyes Blue" at the end of the first quarter, "I can't go on feelin' the way I do" between halves, and "After the Storm" at the close of the game.

The intramural program if Pennsylvania's football squad should adopt the policy of singing before games: "Fire up and lay 'em down..."...the entire squad "Hummie Wild..."...the accordion quartet "I'm Through..."...solo by Charlie Rogers..."I've Got the Man I Want..."...solo by George Thayer..."The Old Gray Man"...solo by Rolls...Nevy who has been sending the Penn-Foot eleven days the Pennsylvania should have a slight advantage in the annual football classic. The fourtors have a terrible line which defect may only be offset by their using the art men a deep to draw the opening backs.

All of the editorials members of the Pennsylvania aggregation can kick about at any time.

The Interfraternity Agreement (As it is said to have been read by some from yesterday's joke.)

We, the signatures hereon, believing that an agreement between the several other fraternities is for the best interests of ourselves, do pledge ourselves to it in certain reservations which we do not trouble to mention. It is to be kept by every other fraternity with a chance to be fairly.

THE STANLEY

Norma Shearer, who is steadily advancing toward her goal as America's favorite screen star, is the center of interest in the well known "The Waning Sex," which will be the principal feature presentation of the Stanley Theatre the week of October 18. Miss Shearer has in her leading support, Conrad Nagel and Mary McAlister. The picture is from the stage success by Frederic and Fanny Hatton. Production was by Robert Z. Leonard. Two girls and a man are the focal points of the story. One of the girls wants him, but doesn't know him; the other, loves him but doesn't want him because she is not quite sure of her own mind. The picture is sold to be hilariously funny and one of the amusing incidents presents Conrad Nagel, unreasonably and in a bath room, in a woman's costume. It is perfectly all right, however, for he had to take off his trousers to have them cleaned and pressed after a hour of soap had been spilled on them.

As is the custom at the Stanley, there will be a surrounding bill of dancing and singing features. Especially attractive will be the contribution of the Stanley Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Graham Harris. He is preparing a special surprise which will be seen by people.
