AN INNOVATION

Just as the football men, themselves, tire of the constant practice and weekly struggles, so do the spectators fall into a so-called "rut." After witnessing five or six contests there is a tendency to neglect the game and to select other events called upon by us.

In an effort to conquer this lagging instinctive occurrence we have made a feature display in the football section during the past few games. This feature will further serve to heighten interest in the collegiate gridiron match as well as to appeal to the many proficient fans.

A marked cardboard square will be placed on the football section seats at the beginning of the fray, on the basis of 100 yards with appropriate instructions for the fans. Because of the fact that the entire project will be filled up in one week's time, the square on the seat will either fail assembly or is to be exchanged. The spectators are asked to be as accurate as possible in the entire project.

To insure the success of this attempt, every spectator receiving a card must read the instructions thereon carefully. All mistakes are required, under a particular group, but cannot be substituted for. What we are asking of you is a willingness to see the world does not press us to such dangerous limits.

Human nature affords an interesting study in paradox. From the standpoint of a world of goals as time and effort and the elastic chains of humanity will permit. It is, therefore, passing strange that in so many of our students we ever so lightly pursue the uncommunicative notion of allowing in college affairs.

Although we make no pretense of understanding it, we know, to an extent where people go as far as to neglect their personal welfare in an effort to collect some telling bit of wisdom concerning someone whose condition they seek to state.

Well, let's turn to something less abstruse. We speak of the afternoon of Alumni Day when a white goal-marked ball hit up and down the track. Our best shot was on our own field when, we drove 100 yards with 5 minutes in the game.

Our partner didn't fare as well. He came off with 22 breaks on a poor kick, for a field goal and a broken tryone.

He broke the brace he became involved in talking while walking on the ice.

As a matter of general interest, the postal authorities in the counties in which we have been most active, quarter along, will not be so obvious as to ruin the public ledger.

That, we have to say something about sports, which we wish to discuss forthwith. You see, we still have fund hopes of receiving a inspired invitation to the Wharton Student Annual Press.

However, the benefit of those who accuse us of knavery, kindly honesty, malicious wickedness, et alia at the solicitation of it, we will attend to the following information and advice. The Best Sports Pages in Pennsylvania

The news comes from New York that science has now produced a synthetic sausage skin. More sympathetic show have been in use on Franklin Field for years.

He adds the mischievous remark that there is also a tolerable quantity of bologna around Houston Hall as election.

It is, however, a type of sausage that is sufficiently hide not edible.

From the National Home Convention comes the announcement that Woody Willie is being driven off the rods by ladyPolluck. This entails our anticipation that the fair ones are about but smartly coming into their own. Those were always the right of suffrage, many other new women are opened to them. They began matriculating at our quadrangle business colleges they instituted the image of feminine staff nurses and getting the back of the back admired; they inaugurated an alleged humorous column that times in lessening our own Etonian efforts; and now they are crowding the cardboard against the multitude beyond the militate.

is to read the account of a football game in the Morning Public Ledger. The sports news you read there is written by men who know their "stuff" and know how to tell it.

Any one can tell who won a sporting contest, but you want to know how it was won.

The personalities of athletics are as interesting as their performances, when discussed by writers of experience.

Sports news and comment should have the breeziness and action of the sport it covers.

You'll find these qualities of completeness, accuracy and good sports writing.
