If Any Man
Knows Washington
CLINTON GILBERT Does

"The Daily Mirror of Washington," on the editorial page of the Morning Public Ledger, is a bright and faithful reflection of official life in the Capital.

Mr. Gilbert's observations on national politics and politicians are both instructive and entertaining. His delineation of the personalities of people prominent in Government circles is masterly in its penetration. As a biographical paragraphist he has no equal.

A GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT:

Among the fraternityals on the Pennsylvania campus there exists a so-called "gentlemen's agreement" as to the time and manner of choosing. This organization is ineffective for several reasons. In the first place, everyone is bound to press charges against another brother under organization and, secondly, there is no sniveling body for the purpose of searching for traces of infidelity on the part of any particular group.

In short, it seems that a "gentlemen's agreement" among the brothers sycophantic to the Interfraternity Agreement is not feasible. Under this agreement a certain amount of honesty among the members of the organization involved do not conduct themselves as gentlemen. Feeling secure in the fact that no other house will press charges against them, these men are heedlessly disregarding the Interfraternity rulings. These men are dragging down the honor of their respective houses.

Don't misunderstand us—we are not insinuating that the majority of houses are involved in this general infamy. We believe that most of them are keeping their word. But, as we point out, it is manifestly unfair to those gentlemen fraternityals who are trying to live up to the honest fraternity association to take advantage of their commendable efforts.

That in just the extremely insincere Interfraternity Council should take a hand. By no other body on the campus can such a thing be considered. It, therefore, falls to the lot of the representative student branch to obtain evidence of the flagrant violation which may be daily occurring.

We would recommend to the members of the Council that they take up their duties immediately, and cause the body of which they are a part to perform the function which is allotted to it.

Masks and wig once more

After the usual dormant period between seasons, the Mask and Wig Club will resume its activity on the campus, with a smoker in Hinton Hall tonight. Apparatus for places in the cast and chorus will attend the affair, and will be discussed as to the details of the competition. The list of long list of activities at the University, the Mask and Wig occupy an exalted position among the leaders. Productions in past years have amazed the fans of Pennsylvania throughout the eastern and midwestern portions of the country, and the excellence of the productions has been generally conceded.

Here, then, is an opportunity for students who wish to take part in this, dancing, or drama, to engage in a worthwhile activity. Coupled with the natural satisfaction received by the Mask and Wig, the true sportsman and experience gained from participation in the production affords ample inducement for undergraduates to compete.

Therefore, if your talent is of such a nature as to fit you for a place in the 1928-29 Mask and Wig production, we would like to see you register. Every student who has won any sort of recognition in the homemaking fields will be carried above those of former years. Upon the side of the turn-out tonight largely depends the success of the Mask and Wig season.

UNIVERSITY MEN'S DEPARTMENT
GRIDMEN BEGIN PRACTICE
FOR CORNELL ENCOUNTER

LONG BLOCKBOARD TALK PRESENTS Initia Work-in in Preparation for Cornell Battle

LONG SIGNAL PRACTICE HELD

In spite of a cold rain which kept up most of the afternoon, the Varsity grid-men held a long practice session yesterday in preparation for the annual clash with Cornell on Thanksgiving. Princeton, while scoring, who saw the Big Red team come behind in the final period of their game with Dartmouth last Saturday and score 17 points to defeat the Green, say that the Elims are running into top form and have one of the most powerful football combinations in the East. In view of this report the Red and Blue coaches have planned a hard practice schedule for this week in order that the Varsity attack will be at its best in the final game.

For over an hour at the beginning of practice, the players patterned around a blackboard in the locker room and were run over the different plays under the direction of the coaches. After this "wall practice" the gridmen went out on the wet field to continue the workout.

On rainy days the gridmen are protected with a huge canvas cover. This was left over the field power and the gridmen perspired along the sides of the enclosure.

After a jog around the field the three dozen players lined up and down the side lines in a lengthy signal drill which was a feature of yesterday's workout. The motion was continued until after dusk and big flood lights, located in the upper decks of the North and South stands had been brought into play to illuminate the field.

The Varsity squad is almost entirely free from injuries in spite of the fact that they have played three extremely difficult games on successive Saturdays. "Nick" Odlorne was nursing an Injury of the knee. Heaps accruing to the times for the varsity athletica for the team out for the meet and the Big Red, "who outranges, at present as is expected to be in shape for the Cornell battle.

NATATORS WILL PARTICIPATE IN FIFTH WEEKLY CONTEST

Members of the swimming squad will engage in the fifth of the series of swumming meets at the Westphalian Hall pool at "o'clock today. Events on the program are: 100-yard backstroke, 200-yard breast stroke, 100-yard free swim and the free diving. These events will be run with handicaps according to the times for the distances as previously recorded.

All squad members are required to be present at the meet and no awards will be given. Every attendance has marked the success of the swimming and the coaches are endeavoring to have all the candidates for the team out for this meet.

It is hoped that the men will respond properly to this call and show by participation their interest in this activity.

Upon discovering that a pug 2000 feet something, possessing nothing more than an employment service of course. Alumni often desire help regarding their employment, but I find that what is nearly of far greater importance is an analysis of the attitude towards life, and a renewal of latent vision, rather than merely planning before the Alumni the facts that a firm desires a man of a given type.

"If an Alumni does not know what positions are open, I invariably tell him that he is apparently better off than the wrong angle. Of much greater importance, however, is the indefinable aspect. What are your qualifications?" If he has come out of the University for no more than what these 60 years contributed to his character, there is no point in further discussion. I find that there is a vast array of opportunities, and that if everyone is not qualified to fill them, I know how to point the way. This is the spring of life at the top and yet this is what constitutes, in my opinion, the great lack of fulfillment of the conditions of the old man. That is, a man skilled in his business shall stand before kings. But so it seems must ever go at the great practical phases of the world's work. Undergraduate exchanges cannot guarantee the carrying out of the essentials of success in after years, but the University can, and does now offer to each Alumni, however, so many years he has been from the academic environment of student days, to give the counsel and advice which may be in him at some time the most important faking of his life.

To show, in the new Placement Service offered primarily to contribute to the life of each Alumni the assurance that the University has an abiding interest and sympathy in his life. Problems of the most personal and complicated character are discussed daily in our offices with Alumni whose ages range from 20 to 80 years. No problem is too small and none too large. Our voice, being officially appointed in the character of a representative of the University, enables us to give immediate attention to any problem a member of the Alumni may present. Should we not be competent to solve a problem, we are able to recommend those who will.

One other significant aspect of this new Placement Service should be emphasized. Keep in mind that it is alleged impracticality as if this new service could become anything but a place for exchange of employment notes. It follows that one of its great functions should properly be to enhance the opportunity for the Alumni of whom we are in position of leader in industry and commerce, and by so accomplishing it to present the fact that through the University there can constantly be found experts and executives practically every function of the industrial organizations. It is not too much to say that any of the great industrial corporations can find through the University trained engineers, chemists and civil engineers for manufacturing departments; and also that which might often be overlooked, that in like manner, executives may be found to make charge of each division of the labor of labor, personal, production, advertising, accounting, legal and salaried services.

"Nor is it difficult to imagine that Alumni who are leaders in their respective communities may find new and then and the community is undermined in some such manner as professional as Architecture, Engineering, Medicine or Law. But there is no one who can do the Alumni who are in a position to do so, to make it possible for the University to discontinue with certain advantages always appealing qualified candidates from the pool of the responsible leaders, performing an important economic service to each country.

In closing, it may properly be stated that I am in the habit of starting before the Alumni that no service of this character can ever hope for greater success unless far deeper sense of obligation is instilled in the hearts of alumni to act in the spirit of true, self-sacrificing attitude of genuine Fellowship. The issues involved in the problem are deep and difficult to solve ever by any stretch of imagination, express to group the deeper issues unless the greatest spiritual aspects of existence were given their proper place in the vast problems involved. In these any who think that the hundreds of cases many be better than I would like. I mean that the sense of genuine moral obligation should remain constant peace and the spirit of the man with whom is to be very essential in so far as it involves these deeper influences has ever permeated into life's problem.
