MUSICAL CLUB PROGRAM
FEATURES GREEK COMEDY

SCENES FROM CHORUS OF PLAY WHICH WAS PRODUCED BY UNIVERSITY MEN IN 1928, TO BE SUNG

PLAY DIRECTED BY DR. CLARK

One of the features of the program of the University Gone and Orchestra's concert at the Academy of Music on Thanksgiving Day will be the singing of a portion of the chorus of a Greek comedy, "The Acharnian." This comedy was written in the fifth century B.C. in honor of the "Children of Athens." It was set to music by Dr. Hugh A. Clark, a member of the faculty, and was presented for the first time in 1928 and was presented by a group of University students at the Academy of Music.

The production, under the direction of the Clark, consists of a number favorite choruses among the faculty and alumni of the university. The chorus will be conducted and directed by the author of a number of important works on the field of architecture.

The St. John's band was forced by Students during the first half of November's march, failed in the main quarter so the court, twice, 42 points. The game in the final session when a Tiger opponent action to several. Several involved persons who galloped on field Wednesday as previously stated last week that an attempt to correct the fence of a bitterly contested football game.

With the exception of a short time in the initial period and the entire third quarter, the University band was compelled to play a defensive game. The Orange and Black forwards were given play during the remainder of the contest. The wide margin in favor of the Pep band's impressive performance in the last minutes of a bitterly contested football game.

Well, all in all, it was a great weekend. There were no football games to join us from the indoors, no promise to tempt us from the easy section of our easy chair, and nothing for reading discussion. But our situation from the book we have been trying to read ever since school started.

If our impatience continues to increase, we hope to finish the book by the end of the term.

It looks as if it might sterling today.

Lo E. writes that we are in a "state of mind that often represents by the mercurial set when suffering from incipient comeliness.

Such a state of mind, activity, and it is not greatly to be desired. It induces us to illimitation and unnecessary criticism. Let us be known that if we did not form certain ideas, that alleged state of mind, the column would immediately become a sound piece of business, if not, in the veritable picture of the wide open spaces, getting people's goats. A column that fails to provoke sensation is in dead reading.

We do not wish to infer that we consider it merit to check the label of ridicule from our coat until we are trying to say that the topics which please all the people at the same time are restituted and dismissed.

Frankly, our incipient comeliness worries us. For example, we have considerable difficulty in keeping writing up that fits its profusion. But rather than inconvenience ourselves, we generally accept the first thing that happens and let it at that. As a consequence we are far from being a model of normal comeliness.

If Lo E., or anyone else, can suggest a remedy for this deficiency in our character, we shall award the column's best of taunting pittance.

A prominent physician claims that Gertrude Elder's sketch helped her in achieving the English Channel. We are none too well versed regarding feminine ineruences, but are under the impression that she didn't wear any.

It may have been the psychological effect of having a real breather nearby.

The Statistician Institute recently received a collection of ninety pairs of shoes from all parts of the world. Navy boys have been known to strike this leaf of history.

To those who are unsure of where what made Oscar Wilde, we submit the following.

Ye Battle of '33 Street East
Two in a crested canvas,
The air was filled with strife.
For Joe McVe, as we shall see,
Was fighting for his toe.
All was quiet as the ever
Read out the crimes he'd done:
"He went out with a coed"—
From his eye a tear did run.
A cry of horror coursed the room,
And on their faces, tears
Was written: that a man so
Should ever be born.
The judge said with stately aim,
And all that crowd did think:
"Now, tell us why you did it, lad?"
The room was calm and still.
The prisoner spoke with breaking voice:
"Sorry, I meant no harm;"
Our Chapter house is out of coal—
I did it to keep warm.
"Exhibited," then spoke His Honor,
"Your seed was surely strong;
But, pray God you put to do such things—
Watch out, or you'll go wrong."
"If I had known this,
I would have bought you coal.
Now, go and pay your bill.
And don't you ever use us again.

"Today's Hot Stuff"

Now have a "daily" from the Penn day.

"Maggie Makeover"
The same old theme, the same old way:
It still looks like me.

It is, he has decided, an unfavorable world. As many times as we have hurried—almost persuaded—our Women Students' Junior Prom, and not won a word of thanks! We are the victims amongst the victims.

On the other hand, published it carried out, and presented it in countless words, as one of the classic canons of the year Flitz 29 would probably charge two dollars a word for such a document, we dispense with the grudge—graciously.

We look it for granted that we would be asked to attend, and not investingly purchased of suspenders and a wing collar, which will, apparently, suspend in the upper half-hand suit until the next season returns.

MUSICAL CLUB PROGRAM

The leading role in the original play, that of "Philippus", was taken by senior George Wharton Pepper who graduated from Princeton in 1897.

The Musical Club have invited Dr. Clark, together with members of the original cast. He officially to occupy a box in the concert in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of his achievement. Another cause for celebration is the fact that Dr. Clark recently regained his sight after several years of total blindness.

The Musical Club also wish to announce that there are still a few choice seats for the concert and dance contest. It is possible to purchase them at the Travel Bureau in Houston Hall, at the Musical Club’s office in Brown Hall, or at Rupp’s at 327 Chestnut Street. The price of these tickets is $2.00 apiece which includes admission to the concert and dancing. One seat may be secured in the family circle from 50 cents to $1.00 but these do not include dancing. Two tickets in the balcony have been reserved for the Junior Class alone. Because of the importance of this function as a part of the 20th Anniversary program of the Junior Class, it is expected that the members of the junior class will fill the entire section.

with neither eleven gaining the advantage until near the close of the first quarter. When Cuts, the invaders’ center half-back, whipped a twenty-five yard drive into the net. The second Orange and Black score was a goal that indubitably put the Princeton team in the lead. Packard, on the other wing, outdistanced the Red and Blue defense. Coach Gault’s Junior Varsity completely outdistanced the Merchant Oldeakt Club offenders on River Field Saturday when the forwards unaided seven goals to four. The Princeton team was credited with both winning. Just after the 15 minute period, Bruce laid the ball in the net and drove it over the unprotected goal. He assured his team of victory in the last minute of play when he again scored on a pass from Fate, his inside right.

Captain McDonald played a stellar game for Pennsylvania at center half back. He was in the majority of the turning aside Princeton drives and "feeling" the ball to his forwards. Jerey, West and Girvin also worked well on the defense. Packard and W. B. Barnouw led the Orange and Black offense. Their driving was always a menace to the Red and Blue defense.
