PLAY PENNSYLVANIA IN MARCH

In the month of December, with the end of the football season, Frank Fite, erstwhile Swarthmore gridiron line coach, turned his attention to the varsity basketball team, of which he is head man.

It is expected that he will be assisted in his work by the letter men who return this winter from the varsity. One of these is Frank Fitts, Football Line Coach, and the other is W. Hayden Kuehn, who in the fall was a football forward.

The remainder of the evening was taken up with talks by several of the underclassmen, upon various subjects of general interest. At the close of the meeting, three present were unearthened with a group of visiting students, preceded by a Zelo alumnus, Ward, present that evening was McIver, six other members, upon

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

Once upon a time, more than two hundred years ago, a young man left the home of his parents and came to a strange city. Arriving at his first Sunday morning meeting, after a voyage by land and sea, he was captivated by the magnificent church which was to become his home. His unkempt appearance, his untied shoes, and an inquiring curiosity to see the city and to see what the natives passed the stranger on their way to church.

During the academic year at West Chester, Pennsylvania, and University graduate, Benjamin Franklin was born in Frankford in seventeenth years of age. No one who saw him that Sunday morning would have predicted that the new career would ever have such an indelible impression upon the city of his adoption. Following his chosen profession at printing, he founded the American Philosophical Journal, a periodical now published as the official organ of the University.

His influence further led to the founding of the American Philosophical Society, the city's first hospital, its free library, its first tea company, its first inner-lighting, and, above all, its first and foremost educational institution. The University of Pennsylvania may well be proud to hold Franklin's name as its first and greatest one of its original rector.

In view of these facts, it is particularly appropriate that the University should wish for a moment from its recent activities today to observe the centenary anniversary of the birth of that eminent philosopher and philosopher.

ON THE HORIZON

In the words of Civil Engineer Murphy, "A team that can't be licked, can't be licked." And believers of football at Pennsylvania have never left a better example of that immortal phase than when the mighty Red and Blue Gray showed in the hundreds who crowded the Franklin Field during the historic game with Dartmouth's highly-touted quintet Saturday night.

If any possible motivation solution to the problem of determining beforehand the winner of the basketball game it is that the Green aggregation was given the victory. They are the培养哥伦比亚, last year's champions, and Princeton defeated the team that was as dry as a bone. The Green aggregation was given the victory. They are the培养哥伦比亚, last year's champions, and Princeton defeated the team that was as dry as a bone. The Green aggregation was given the victory. They are the培养哥伦比亚, last year's champions, and Princeton defeated the team that was as dry as a bone. The Green aggregation was given the victory. They are the培养哥伦比亚, last year's champions, and Princeton defeated the team that was as dry as a bone.

Undoubtedly the heavy odds which stared them in the face as they took the field against the experienced five which had already defeated the green-painted Columbia, Pennsylvania's side were fought valiantly for victory. And to again play that greatest of all University traditions, "A team that can't be licked, can't be licked," we find that the very force of the University Red and Blue Gray of the present stage, which stood tall and placed the crown on Pennsylvania's head.

This morning the league standing shows as that Princeton, to whom we lost last Tuesday, is in first position. And immediately after the Tigers are Dartmouth and the Red and Blue, the opponents of Saturday evening. Anyone who witnessed the struggle between these two teams will probably agree that it will be a classic battle to be seen in the near future.

As Princeton—the final game of the schedule will tell the story—A basketball championship looks on the horizon! Get behind that fighting team and urge them on to victory.
