A POPULAR MOVE

In a consideration of the merits and demerits of student publication, that appears to be inevitable in the present system of unbridled criticism of the former system has always been that undergraduates have not had a better chance of making the best out of it than students of the University. The majority of the students who have been graduated from the various colleges may have been granted by the institutions of the present plan have been consistent at the time of their departure.

By placing complete charge of the funds in the hands of the University of Pennsylvania, all of this is done away with. There should be no more unaccountable balances on the part of Pennsylvania colleges, nor should there be any trouble in enforcing the undergraduates to make their own payments every time they get a new balance. The other admitted features of the system which will b flat tire, not the annual audit. The former will serve to plan the expenses for the year and each class will know approximately how much money will fall to the account. On the whole we will have the necessary check on the person who holds the funds.

As we are in the midst of our election, I could say that the financial transactions of the University Committee are being placed on a more substantial basis. Certainly there should be no more cases of those students who are not in the situation to maintain their obligations.

OUR LIBRARY

It is a well-known, and undisputed fact that those who most frequently take advantage of privileges offered them are the less appreciative of those privileges than others who are away from a distance. It seems unfortunate, yet true that those will not appreciate that procedure which do not have the experience. We at the University of Pennsylvania are only aware of existence of a University library, we have frequent occasion to make use of its facilities. Yes, we are so apt to take our library for granted that we do not appreciate the amount of labor required and the degree of efficiency which must be attained in order to maintain the standard which may be adequately maintained.

As the result, the future of the Pennsylvania Library, although widespread throughout the country, seems less effective than that of the future. Mention of the word "library" in the average student gives rise to a mental vision of a government building which can be entered by the faculty of middle-class books from time immemorial. The efficient administration and excellent facilities of the library are well known.

The statistics published in yesterday's Pennsylvania showed a gain of 500,000 on the scale of the past year by the library in the University's educational program. The total circulation, which passed the half-million mark in 1920, has declined with the five years, while the staff has increased only twenty-five per cent. In the same period. From this it is evident that the University Library has been placed on the administration in recent years may be obtained.

That the librarian, with his staff of assistants, has been able to solve this problem arising from the increased demands on the library facilities reflects credit on the administration. Without a live flexible organization, the strain of the increased traffic could not have been successfully met.

ALWAYS wanted men like the bond business, because it provides fresh interest from day to day and year after year. Whether one is engaged in the buying or the selling end of the bond business, his work gives him insight into the financial side of industry, commerce and production, at home and abroad.

Nothing that happens in economic, legislative or political affairs affects one more than it affects the bond business. This means that a man must keep his door ajar and understand what is happening. It is a stimulating requirement, that keeps one out of mental mists and stagnation.

The bond business requires hard work and a sound knowledge of the securities one is engaged in the bond business through their own fault — not because the responsibility is lacking.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. is interested in providing reliable information to college men who are considering the bond business as a vocation, or to help them make an intelligent decision.
