The campus church

Under the auspices of the University Christian Association, there are ten churches, one of which is Pennsylvania's student church, the Ebenezer Methodist. Two Episcopal, a Lutheran, three Presbyterian, a Methodist and a Reformed, are others. There is also a Unitarian, and a Catholic Church, the Catholic Student Union, that has a membership of almost 200 students as well. The Unitarian Church is located on the northwest corner of 11th and Locust Streets.

The Ebenezer Church, located in the building just northwest of the Alumni Building, is the only one of the student churches that has a full-time pastor. The Rev. Dr. J. R. B. Black, D.D., is the pastor of this church, and he is a member of the faculty of the University.

The Ebenezer Church is open to all students, and its services are held every Sunday morning. The church has a large Sunday school, and its membership is increasing rapidly.

The Reformed Church, located on the corner of 11th and Locust Streets, is the largest of the student churches. It has a membership of over 500 students, and its services are held every Sunday morning.

The Evangelical Church, located on the corner of 11th and Locust Streets, is the smallest of the student churches. It has a membership of only 20 students, and its services are held every Sunday morning.

The Lutheran Church, located on the corner of 11th and Locust Streets, is the oldest of the student churches. It has a membership of over 300 students, and its services are held every Sunday morning.

Duck Rock Game is Parent of Basketball

Popular Court Sport Developed from Old Boyhood Amusement to Fill Indoor Need

Dr. Naismith is Originator

Of the thousands of people who watched the past season's basketball games, probably very few, if any knew that the derivation of this popular sport can be traced to the old game of "Duck Rock." Nevertheless this old basketball pastime is the parent of the present popular indoor court game, whose existence is credited to Dr. James A. Naismith, physical education instructor at the University of Kansas. Dr. Naismith originated the game to fill a popular demand for a new sport to be played after the close of the football season.

The equipment needed to play "Duck Rock" was easily obtainable, even the protect of computers. It consisted of a small, easily handled rock and a large backboard backboard. The play consisted of the man who was "it" placing the small ball on the larger one and the other players attempting to knock it off. After deciding this, the thrower would try to get his own back before the time "out" expired in doing so with him. If the thrower was successful he had the honor of becoming "it." The first basketball game was played with a small ball, square box being used as goals, one at each end of the gymnasium. In the beginning the ball was placed in the middle of the floor and the opposing sides kicked at it. This method proved a little slow but the players had in time the ball as in the game... Following and throwing over prom- formers no a code of fifteen rules was adopted such as "no man can pass or touch." The best idea was to have the players continue when they find countries.
