Editors, Staffmen Will Explain Work of Paper; Positions Open for Heelers in All Departments

Freshmen are invited to attend The Daily Pennsylvanian Fall Heeling smoker tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the businessmen's rooms of Houston Hall.

Representatives of all staffs on the paper, Editorial, Feature, Sports, and Business, will be present to explain the functions of their particular department to fresh staff members.

In addition to making new friends, staff members will be able to take the names of any freshmen who wish to join. The meeting will be held in Room 218 of Houston Hall.

Penn Literary Review Conducts Smoker for Prospective Staff

Penn Literary Review's annual heeling smoker will be held Tuesday at the Harmony-months-Penn room in Houston Hall from 7 to 9 p.m.

Eleven departments, business, art, literature, and advertising are open to all men and women undergraduates of the University. A new policy of student contributions has been adopted this year so as to improve the standards of the publication, according to Editor Billie Cox. All selections in prose, humor and poetry are welcome and may be turned in at the Houston Hall information desk. Although the first edition is now being made, contributions may still be turned in.

Couplets: Jeff Evans added that there is room on the staff for the first edition of this year's program, and there is a separate group of Penn students interested in seeing this year's program end. The meeting will be held in Hamilton Hall, 38th and Spruce Street.

A course in "Ethics" is offered by the University's social sciences department, which provides a new perspective on the problems that surround the publication. "The only thing that is certain is that all politicians are the same," a Penn student commented.

"This is the fifth year that the publication has been published on campus. It is the first time because the staff has made contributions, and it may be turned in at the University."

The meeting will be held in Hamilton Hall, 38th and Spruce Street, and will last for one hour per week.

Rev. John H. Donnelly, chaplain of the University, will preside at the meeting, which will be held in the university chapel. The meeting will be held in the University chapel every Friday at 11 a.m. The meeting will be held in the University chapel every Friday at 11 a.m.

Honor, Hard Work, Unusual Experiences Abound For Nephew of Gubernatorial Candidate

By Arthur C. Parente

Although he is not yet a college student, Raymond Hovis, son of Governor Hovis, is looking forward to entering the Wharton School in the fall. "In my mind, there is no better place to learn," Hovis said.

Both Hovis and his uncle share the same goals in life, but admit that their political positions are not the same.

Leader in a fairly recent convention on the political scene, a young man emerged from the Wharton School in 1960. The man, Raymond Hovis, was one of the leaders of a group of students who opposed the Vietnam War. He later entered the political arena and became a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.

Before becoming a state legislator, Hovis was a staff member of the Wharton School. From there, he went on to become a state legislator. He has also taken graduate courses in business at the Institute of State and Local Government at Temple University.

Hovis will be part of the campaign. He has announced his intention to run for a seat in the Pennsylvania General Assembly. He has also announced his intention to run for a seat in the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

Photography, Features Staffs Handle Special Assignments

One of the most important staffs of The Daily Pennsylvanian, and one which involves perhaps the most interesting work is the Photography Staff.

The photography department is responsible for practically every picture in this paper, in addition to the illustrations to some of the other departments. As a result, the photographers have the opportunity to observe almost any event, no matter how unimportant it might appear to others. There will be no limit to the opportunities which await the imaginative photographer.

The instructors on the downtown campus are all professional photographers. They have the opportunity to teach the students all the darkroom methods and apparatus. At this time, however, the students are being given practical experience in the use of cameras and are learning the intricacies of all kinds of news and sports photography. No detailed knowledge of newspaper photographic requirements is needed. Under the training and supervision of DP photographers, heelers will have the opportunity to instruct in the use of equipment at hand.

Since the DP provides cameras and film for its photographers on the downtown campus, there is a great difference between the kind of writing handled by the Feature Staff and the kind handled by the Photography Staff. Although all members of the Editorial Staff are given the opportunity to work with all other departments of The Daily Pennsylvanian, in addition to their principle job of writing the material which appears on this page, they also have the additional duty of making up the page. The Feature Staff has complete charge of the second page of the DP. Although their principle job is writing the material which appears on this page, they also have the additional duty of making up the page.

Although their principle job is writing the material which appears on this page, they also have the additional duty of making up the page. The most important factor, however, is the kind of writing handled by the Feature Staff. In this field, writing is an art, and the writer is given the opportunity to create a masterpiece. When police arrived at the college haberdashery, they shook their heads in disbelief. Instead of being gagged and bound, the salman was actually glad to the floor. They took quick stock of the clothes... an empty shoe box, several odd-shaped pieces of cloth scattered about, an empty shoe box, an empty shoe box, an empty shoe box. Improbable, untruthful, unbelievable. "Uh-oh," said the salman, still all stock up... stuck down, rather.

When they finally got him extricated with hot water... No words, said the salesman, still all stock up... stuck down, rather. When they finally got him extricated with hot water... No words, said the salesman, still all stock up... stuck down, rather.

Golf Notice

All candidates for the University's golf team, both freshmen and upperclassmen, are urged to be at an organizational meeting on Wednesday, October 6, in the projection room of Wehrle Hall. Any interested freshman should report at one o'clock. The varsity meeting will begin at 1:30.

Details of the annual University fall championships will be presented at this time. The tournament, which consists of two 18-hole rounds on consecutive Sundays, starts on October 13.

These matches determine the school's intercollegiate teams for next Spring. No further tryouts are held next semester.

Chapman Takes Coaching Post

Billy Chapman, Varsity coxswain at Pennsylvania in 1932, has been chosen Freshman 150-pound crew coach.

Chapman, who served two years in the Marine Corps after graduation, replaces John Black, last year's freshman coach. Blacker returned to England during the summer.

The Frosh 150's start practicing in the crew tanks next week, and will begin working out on the Schuylkill River in about three weeks.

With the addition of Chapman, the crew coaching staff now includes: Joe Boyr, head coach; Bill Meyers, 150-pound coach; and Jim Degas, freshman coach.
Choice Denied Yale Freshmen
Under 'Residential College' Rule

Sports are not the only aspect of campus life in the Ivy League that have to face a program de-emphasizing varsity athletics. Fraternities have found similar moves in the same direction at Princeton, Harvard, and Yale, with the latest being a further return of the Yale 'residential college' system, so that incoming freshman social life will be divided on an extra-ordinary frazierin level in membership.

Previous incoming freshmen were allowed to state their preference in joining a college and the choice was usually followed by the committee with the idea of creating a cross-section of the student body in each college. Freshmen will be eliminated on the basis of four groups: academic majors, engineering majors, prep school students, and high school students.

On System Falls

The committee's objective is the right of stating their preference realized from the increased tendency of freshmen to join certain colleges with adequate membership. Yale officials feel increased freshman interest in the eight college system was undeniable, but historically the system never achieved its desired purpose as a way of creating a cross-section of the class in each college.

Similar moves were being made at Whitman and eating clubs at Princeton.
