Lightweights Lose 3rd Straight, Drop 20-6 Decision to Rutgers

Held to seven points for over three periods, Rutgers' lightweight football gridiron eroded for 10 points in the final minute to gain a 20-6 victory over the visiting Quakers to keep the better in the winners field.

On the final play from scrimmage after the ensuing kickoff, West Chester beat the Bad Blue tumble on the Quaker 18. Three plays later, Brockwell scored from the nine on a reverse and added the extra point.

Pennsylvania's touchdown came in the last minute of the contest when Frank Brunetti covered John Dramesi's fumble on the Smarties' night, and Ralph Rini scored a two-pointer after a power play over the middle.

Dr. Shalloo, Strecker
At Group's Banquet

gor. D. Tucker, first Negro member of the group's board of Education.
The main address of the evening was made by Dr. Strecker. In introducing Dr. Strecker, Colfie called him probably the only psy-\nchologist who ever cured a case of chronic schizophrenic in front of a group of medical students.
Dr. Strecker's address was given on the subject, "Who and What Are Women," a problem which he said neither his wife nor anyone else understood. He started with his book, "Theirs Mothers' Daughters."
Dr. Strecker began by asserting that he had never met a forward woman. He said that they had usually had some break and put together—with perhaps a few pieces missing sociologists, anthropologists, psychologists, and specialists. He said that some of these people have put women on pedestals so high that they are confused with angels, or are kept so low that they might be studied by an externist. Dr. Strecker also criticized the idea of woman which has the wife in a white apron in the kitchen and children in the downstairs, while the husband sits in an armchair. He then, he said, should be taught that "Father is the underwriter, not the bread baker."
