The Palestr
Since the end of the war the United States has discovered just what world leadership means to the people of the United States and what its consequences are. The fact remains, however, that the failure of this job of leadership has blurred our attitude in the public mind, and we are losing a good deal of our standing in the minds of other Western nations.

A On Other Side

There is a generally held view that the American way of life is best. However, the United States also has its faults, and we cannot overlook them.

One of the main faults is that the United States is a capitalistic society. In a capitalistic society, the rich have more power than the poor, and this can lead to inequality.

Another fault is that the United States is a nation of individualists. In an individualistic society, each person is responsible for themselves and their own actions. This can lead to a lack of cooperation and a disregard for the common good.

There are also problems with the United States' foreign policy. The United States is a superpower, and its foreign policy has a significant impact on the world. However, the United States' foreign policy is often based on self-interest, which can lead to conflicts with other nations.

Despite these faults, the United States has many strengths, and there are many people who believe that it is a great country. However, it is important to recognize the faults in order to work towards improving the United States, and ultimately the world.

Penn Faces Cornell
In Traditional Clash

Further sensationalism is lent to Cornell's strike by another twist in the drama of the D dilemma. Cornell not only the leader in average of completions, his average gain per completion is the highest among the top passers but he has thrown the grand total of eight in eight games. He is also the leader in the Penn's extra point games, 11 with 10 conversions.

Four other Pennsylvania opponents were selected for third team honors—Pete Van, Army quarterback; Ralph Guglielmi, Notre Dame guard; Don Beagle, Navy halfback, and Paul Frazin, Notre Dame tackle. Those four players were named to the top 30 in the nation by the group of experts.

Joining Guglielmi in the first team backfield are: Howard "Hank" Cassidy of Ohio State, Dick Meigs of Rice, and Alvi. "The Toe" Amiche of Minnesota.

The remarks came after Dr. Harnwell's announcement of several changes in the work of the University on campus.
