The Cultivated Art of Insult: A Highly Specialized Talent
by Richard Levinson & William Link

One of the rare pleasures still left in the world, in our opinion, is the art of insult. The pleasure, of course, is for the begetter of the insult, not the recipient. There is nothing more enjoyable, than to say something one believes to be true, in a way that makes the recipient mad. The best insult is a well-balanced one, one that keeps the listener on the defensive, and leaves him no chance to counterattack. The insult should be sharp, and yet not too sharp, so that it leaves a faint, almost bitter, aftertaste. The best insults are those that are spoken with a hint of affection, a touch of humor. A good insult should be remembered, and appreciated, for the wit and the creativity of the mind behind it.

LEAVES OF IVY
by Franklin Brown

A penny saved... It is a well-known fact that a penny saved is a penny earned. And it is also a well-known fact that a penny saved is a penny earned.

The local police, who didn't think it was quite as bad as it was, came and took him to the hospital. The fan-loving student said that he was in the hospital because they had given him some ice cream.

The police convinced the student to leave the hospital, and they told him that he was not needed there.

The student replied, "You have to believe what the police say. They are the ones who know what is best for you."

The police officer replied, "We know what is best for you. You should have been more careful."

The student said, "I was just trying to be helpful."

The police officer said, "We don't need your help. We can handle this situation ourselves."

The student said, "I understand. I will be more careful in the future."

The police officer said, "Thank you. We appreciate your cooperation."
