Plan Passed by the Committee on Student Affairs: Recreation Space for Dorms Also Considered

A plan whereby all resident freshmen will be required to eat in the dormitories for both terms of their freshman year was passed by the Committee on Student Affairs yesterday. Announced George B. Peters, Dean of Men.

The Trustees Committee as Student Affairs will next act on the plan, which worked out by Dr. H. H. W. Van Deusen. A similar plan is presently in existence at Swarthmore College.

Ivy Room For Others

Approval of the plan will be sent to student to the committee," the Dean of Men. "This plan will be submitted to the committee for consideration. We will then be able to decide whether or not to approve the plan.

The plan provides for the use of a new dormitory room, which will be used to accommodate students from the freshmen class, should be made. The plan also will only apply to evening meals.

Another plan, which was proposed by a student, will be discussed by the committee. This plan provides for the use of a new dormitory room, which will be used to accommodate students from the freshmen class, should be made. The plan also will only apply to evening meals.

Discussion on Israel

For World Jewry" was the subject of Rabbi Albert Lehman's talk in the Hillel Foundation's talk on the subject, "Let's Talk about Israel." This should not have been determined by the Varsity Club, who appeared on the Council at present.

According to Comber, the purpose of the Varsity Club is "to prevent unauthorized persons from being admitted to the University, at present.

The quakers will also be on campus to help prevent unauthorized persons from being admitted to the University, at present.

Novel Appears Shallow; Serious Thoughts Lacking
by david Morris

A year is as outstanding as the events it sets down — with the year 1954, the H-bomb on an island in the Pacific, the Korean War, and the fall of the Berlin Wall. Meanwhile, RCA put the first color television set on sale in the market. However, the American audience was only able to see the spectacular flashes of the atomic atomic or the photography. Among the novel class many were quick to see the names of such literary maestros as "The Age of Innocence" by Edith Wharton, "Farewell to the "Big Book," and Thorton Wilder's "The Bridge of San Loco." But, before our eyes we find that the "Great Gatsby," of F. Scott, and Herman Wouk's "The Caine Mutiny" seem lost in the dust of time. There are no outstanding events to award for an outstanding novel of the year.

Since the beginning the Pulitzer Prize has been awarded to deserving people in the various fields. However, the past year, the committee has been forced to turn down the award for an outstanding novel of the year. The committee believes that the "Great Gatsby," of F. Scott, and Herman Wouk's "The Caine Mutiny" seem lost in the dust of time. There are no outstanding events to award for an outstanding novel of the year.
The Family of Man photographic exhibit, being shown at the New York Museum of Modern Art in mid-town Manhattan, is an impressive panorama of man in the world today. It is based on the assumption that people all over the world behave in a similar manner whether they are loving, eating, drinking, working, fighting, or playing.

The 503 prints composing the exhibit were selected from over a million pictures submitted to Edward Steichen the director of the show, by photographers in 68 countries. The final selection was made months ago after two years of editing by Steichen with the assistance of Wayne Miller, a young magazine photographer.

Each negative was printed by the Museum according to instructions from the photographer. Prints range in size from a comparatively small eight by ten inches to a mural sized ten by twenty feet. Each picture is enlarged to a size which will give it the greatest meaning and dramatic effect when seen by the Museum visitors.

The sprawling exhibit, which takes up the entire second floor of the Museum, is divided into several sections. These various sections flow smoothly into each other and make the exhibit easier to comprehend. Love, pregnancy, birth, childhood, work, play, war, death, hope and peace are led together to pictorially tell the story of man.

The striking presentation of the pictures is the work of architect Paul Rudolph. The prints are mounted on glass blocks, wires, trellises, and in some cases they are used to form walls of a section. The pictures on pregnancy and childbirth are hung in a brightly lit white tent. The exhibit follows a tortuous path over which the visitor is guided by subject matter of the pictures, and his intuition.

The Family of Man is an exhibition which graphically shows the role photography plays as a medium of artistic expression. It is a show which appeals to all tastes, and all interests. Photographers and non-photographers should not miss this modern picture tableau of life.
Quaker Thincleds Meet Foreign Track Stars

By Hugh Jansen

"Join the track and see the world" has become a motto of the Penn track team. After practice the lanky crew takes their stories as the team's trip to Europe last summer, of coach Ken Doherty's trip to Ireland where there are no track meets, and of their trip to Russia which was covered in a newspaper story under the heading, "Pennsylvania Track Team Has an Eventful Stay in Russia." Of coach Doherty's trip he says, "I went there to see how their track meets are run, and to make sure that I am running as much as possible." After their trip to Russia the team came back and began practicing for their meet with the American track team.

Entries Filed In IC4A Meet

No less than fourteen college teams entered the Penn track team in the IC4A meet at Madison Square Garden on February 26. A total of 111 individual entries for the 13 varsity events have been received, including 77 Penn entries. Also on the roster for the meet will be Yale, Boston, Princeton, Columbia, Smith, and Penn, making it an all-star meet as well as the usual intercollegiate and AAF handicapped. Afternoon trials will be held in the Garden on February 28 with all the finals in the same arena that night.

Yale Defeats Title

Yale defeated Penn last year in their match at Madison Square Garden on February 26. This year the meet is in the Garden on February 28. Between 11 and 12 on Walnut 202 Quince Street.
Swimmers Face Favored Harvard

The Pennsylvania swimmers now possessing a winning record of six wins and five losses engage Harvard University at 3 p.m., Saturday, in Hutchison Pool, in an effort to extend their present of six wins and five losses engage Harvard University, at 3 p.m.,

Pennsylvania's victory facing team will be out to repeat last season's 6-3 triumph when they meet Johns Hopkins Saturday in Baltimore, Maryland.

The swimmers with a 2-3 mark for the season will have to face the 6-3, 5-1 college and be at full strength to win the meet. With a number one full man, and Dave Feinberg, in the races, the Quakers will be able to fence for the Quakers.

Fannin Parker will have his 3-3 record in the last year for Penn seen just two races this season, with relatively easy matches left. Along with Feinberg, the team will also have a large number of very weak spots. As a result of the efforts they have developed as a team, it was demonstrated, that the Quakers will be at full strength. The Penn swimmers to turn lettermen from last fall.
