Christian Association Fortifies Spirit and Intellect on Campus

by Derius Orton

Among the many factors which comprise a "well-rounded" education is the attaining of spiritual maturity. Since its founding in 1893, the Christian Association has been sincerely interested in this aspect of the student's life. The association has presented challenges by offering to the students a comprehensive program for worship, spiritual and intellectual stimulation and action.

The purpose of the C.A. is stated, "To present a combined Christian witness on the campus, and to promote Christian faith, practice, and commitment." The Christian Association offers not only religious fellowship, but also unlimited opportunities for leadership, and challenging experiences in such fields as social service work with the physically handicapped and disadvantaged children of Philadelphia.

The C.A. has been actively involved in the various needs of the University undergraduate graduates over the years. The Student Employment Agency, the Campus Cheer, Freshman Camp, and the Freshman Handbook all found their origins in the Christian Association here at Pennsylvania.

C.A. Open To All

The membership is open to all who will accept the C.A.'s purpose, and consists not only of students, but also faculty and staff members. The governing body of this men's and women's association is the Cabinet, which consists of the officers of the C.A. and the co-chairmen of the individual committees, which are the "building blocks" of the spiritual and educational program. Some of the most significant of these are the Spiritual Life, Social Life and Community Service committees, which supervise recreation at nearby settlement houses; the worship committee, which conducts daily, early morning chapel services and special services, such as the Lenten Friday World Relations Commission, which fosters international understanding between the foreign and American students on campus. Other organizations, such as the discussion and study groups, meet regularly to discuss any questions of current importance to the students.

An essential function of the Christian Association is to encourage church attendance. The C.A. has sponsoredDEVETEBICB WEBELOW, EDWARD SOLTAK, RICHERD FABBICIOI S. RICHARD FEBDEBICB WEBELOW.

Letter To The Editor

Editor, Daily Pennsylvanian:

"It's too bad there isn't a God, for we could use one. In his absence he wouldn't hear about this campus so many times.

On the surface, this appears to be a matter of humor, but on a more thorough examination of this remark, I find that most college students really believe it. Does this mean that religion is a dead animal? I have talked to many students who feel that the majority of them don't believe in God. They see no point in a God, so why not? The student body seems too busy to spend much time thinking about such a question. What do they do. P. 14

I've sat in on a couple of "ball-remains," and when religion comes up, the discussions seem to drift toward the ridiculous—wondering whether the Lord has not blessed the students with a thousand problems with which to deal. Must college men, or maybe it would be more just to say "women," don't know what religion is, and therefore their arguments are a result of ignorance. Perhaps it is true that when the going gets tough, they can no longer feel the presence of the Church and the Church; more than they can from their colleagues, who make sympathetic suggestions. The Church or Temple is somber; but in a large way, the Church is a matter of material help, but to help a man to help himself. In large ways or small ways, if he can stand this, he would realize the great benefits which the Church could bring to him.

When the student comes to college, he is often confronted with a thousand problems, of which he has never had to cope before. Sometimes he is afraid of flunking out because of the student sometimes afraid of trying to make it and then spending all his time studying. What can he do. P. 14

Varsity Baseball Team Begins Indoor Practice

by Les Glassman

When indoor practice for the 1955 baseball season started at the end of last week, 51 men answered Coach Jack McCloskey's call for players.

Among the group are seven returning lettermen from last year's squad that compiled a 2-4-1 league slate, and an overall 8-10-1 record.

The team, which is expected to be a strong one, will consist mainly of experienced players, and the full strength of the squad, seven to eight, will be mustered on April 5.

The Blue League standings revealed that the varsity club finished third in their division, 4 games behind the leaders.

Top scorer for Duke is Ronnie Dalton, who averaged 15 points a game. The Blue Devils now have a record of 1-6. The team was defeated by Princeton, 89-79, and has a pair of defeats to Pennsylvania. The current season occurred in the Green division's only contest as Alpha Rho Pi trounced Beta Sigma Phi, 29-30. The late Thursday afternoon, 50 men were members of the 1953-54 football captains and Jay Landers Pete Morrisey, John, Mike On Baltimore Leach, last season's first baseman, who are currently at
