European Provincialism Shown in Saar Election

The recent Saar Valley elections indicate that provincialism is still strong in Europe, according to many members of the faculty of the Wharton School.

Interviews with several members of the political science and economics departments following the Saarlander's rejection of the plan to Europeanize their territory revealed the belief that 1) the forces of nationalism are potent in European politics, 2) United States promotion of European unity have suffered a definite setback, and 3) the future relations will become more strained.

Dr. Norman D. Palmer, professor of political science, believes that the Saar proposal in the American foreign policy aims in Europe has suffered a setback.

"It just adds another obstacle to the support of the new European integration movement which can't help a empire."

The prevailing view in the French foreign policy is that the Saar proposal in European unity has failed. The Saar is in the present time a source of coal and steel since 25 per cent of her coal and steel come from the Saar.

Red and Blue Soccermen Face Princeton in Ivy League Game

Third place in the tight-knit Ivy Soccer League is at stake this afternoon, when Pennsylvania engages Princeton on the latter's Farjeon Field.

Both the Quakers and the Tigers are currently tied for third, possessing identical 2-1 marks in league play. Harvard is deadlocked with the Red and Blue lead with perfect 3-0 marks.

Five-fifty Paintings on Peruvian Life, Culture by Kristian Kreckovic Displayed at Univ. Museum

An exhibition of paintings by Kristian Kreckovic, on Palendine Peru is being presented at the University Museum, until November 6.

The exhibit, covering 4,000 years of the Peruvian cultural history, represents the lives, views, and customs of the Indian races since their occupation in the Chavin period. Kreckovic's entire collection consists of 15 paintings, all of which are on display in the museum.

Native subjects and settings were employed in each work, and in the case of the stele-type designs were dressed in the ancient garb to authenticate the possible, the culture and type being expressed.

Peruvian, Kristian Kreckovic is a member of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. The largest number to a man from one museum's history, this exhibit has been designed for the layman and the student alike.

Kristian Kreckovic is shown standing next to his painting entitled "Old Indian Woman of Lake Titicaca" which is typical of his Peruvian works. The piece was presented at the University of New York, Peruvian culture of the last 600 years is represented in the exhibit by paintings depicting the lives and customs of Peruvian natives since the earliest culture.

Ross Completes Pass

The aerial went for ten yards from Ross, who was able to place the ball on Navy's 10 yard line. At this point the Quaker offensive was again.

Charlie McKinnon, once again received honorable mention in the back of the week contest, placing second to Ross. McKinnon, as always, has been the leader of Penna defensive array.

Lebengood, Ross Win Honors For Play In Loss To Middies

The Daily Pennsylvanian has awarded the lineman and back of the week honors to Bob Lebengood and Rich Ross, respectively, for their standout play in Saturday's crushing defeat at the hands of fourth-ranked Navy.

On the basis of the weekly poll taken by the sports staff of the Daily Pennsylvanian, Lebengood became the recipient of the award for the second week running.

In addition to his brilliant all around offensive and defensive play at left end, Lebengood, boosted his Ivy League leading punting average to 40.6 yards. This came as a result of five boots in the Navy game totaling 174 yards. Ross, the Red and Blue's quarterback, broke into the passer of the week title for the first time because of his passing and defensive play against the Midshipmen from Annapolis. He tossed the only passer completion of the day and in so doing gained his first down of the contest.

Robbins Defeats Friedel

To Win Tennis Tourney

Robert Robbins defeated Howard Friedel, 6-2, 7-6, 12-4, yesterday in the All-University Tennis Tournament.

After easily taking the first set, 6-2, Robbins was leading in the second set, 1-0, when Friedel won four straight games to even the set up at five apiece. Robbins went on to take the next two games, however, and the match was called on court three.

Coupe and Levitan

Robby Robbins previously defeated Herb Neiman, John Carney and last year's champion, Ralph Levitan, while Friedel eliminated Albert Puss, John Higgins and John Curtis.

Despite the fact that Robbins won the tournament, he will probably not be the number one man on the freshman squad as John Mangin, who has been the leader of the Freshman ball squad for the past two years, is highly rated by Coach Wallace Johnson.
