American Music By 3 Composers

Heard at Forum

Works of Carpenter, Barber, Bloch Given

(Works by three representave American composers were played by the Marian Head String Quartet last night, as The Daily Pennsylvania Forum for 1955-56 opened.

A small but enthusiastic crowd heard compositions by Samuel Barber, Ernst Bloch and John Alden Carpenter, as part of the Forum's "American Music" theme. "The American Music" committee, comprised of Dr. Vauclain Fleischmann, music faculty member, and Professor of music, introduced the selections and noted some of the outstanding characteristics of each work.

Dr. Vauclain Fleischmann, in introducing the works by Barber, said that he was "extremely pleased" about the Forum, and that the examination of American culture by students showed interest in something of vital importance.

Dr. Vauclain also introduced the work by Ernst Bloch, mentioning the influence of folk tunes and the elements of folk tunes into the music, as well as composition, writing, and other aspects of music. Dr. Vauclain noted that the work by Ernst Bloch was "extremely pleasing," and that the composition showed the influence of folk tunes on American music.

Dr. Vauclain also mentioned that the work by John Alden Carpenter was "extremely pleasing," and that the composition showed the influence of folk tunes on American music.

The Forum will present additional works by American composers in the future, as well as other works, as a part of the "American Music" theme. The organizers will announce the details of the future performances at a later date.
James Dean made three motion pictures. Among these, "Rebel Without a Cause," which was released some time before the directorial hand of Elvis Presley, a leading example of the new wave of directors, and "The Big Knife," a great deal more promise than fulfillment.

Hollywood has never been afraid to let a re-

Over this picture, which has filled its role in the series of its aspects of its subject matter. While the film is not fully successful, it is a competent "The Bad and the Beautiful," in which he plays the role of a director. Though this film has received mixed reviews, it is a notable achievement for its direction and script.

The success of James Dean's performances in these films is due to his ability to bring a depth and intensity to his roles that few other actors could match. He was able to capture the essence of his characters and bring them to life on screen, making him one of the most beloved and influential actors of his time.

James Dean remains a symbol of the counterculture and continues to inspire new generations of filmmakers and actors. His work in films like "Rebel Without a Cause" and "The Big Knife" is a testament to his talent and legacy.

Grid Coaches Pick Top Quaker Foes

by Michael S. Mattikow

Steve Rebo and the Penn football coaching staff issued their All-opponent teams yesterday, and the most striking feature was the lack of special mention of the Quakers.

Although the Quakers faced two teams that boasted all-America-caliber opponents, the best passer on the opponent staff was Penn's Jim Morse.

All-America Don Schaefer, a converted "T" quarterback, beat out Al Lusk, a fellow All-Cornellan, for the Quakers' starting quarterback spot.

Jim Morse of Notre Dame, who probably will become only the third team to break the 1,000-yard scoring record, finished second to Leach in the U.P. poll.

Football Foes Selected in Polls

Three Penn-styled opponents, Notre Dame, Army and Navy, were selected in the top twenty teams in the nation according to the Associated and United Press football polls.

Notes: Duke was picked eighth in the U.P. poll and ninth in the A.P. poll, while Navy was ranked 29th in the A.P. and 28th in the U.P. poll. Ohio State was selected first in both polls, the Boarmans receiving 321 points to 319 for the Spartans in the A.P. poll and 292 to 279 in the U.P. poll. Ohio State went through its second straight undefeated season while Michigan State lost its one game to Michigan.

The Terrapins were the only other major undefeated team in the nation, while the ULL lost one game to Maryland, 14-6.

Other Events

Ohio State, T.C.U. Georgia Tech, Alabama and Mississippi competed in the top division of the A.P. poll, T.C.U. Ohio State, Georgia Tech, Texas, Alabama, and Wisconsin and Arizona rounded out the top fifteen teams in the United Press poll.

Florida Trip

There will be a meeting of all interested parties in the Florida trip, the meeting to be held in the Student Union on Saturday at 4 p.m.
