Penn Five Meets Tall Duke Squad In Piastra Battle
Strong Dukes Boast Three Game Streak

Pennsylvania's b a k e t b a l l hopes probably will revolve around helping tonight when the Quakers battle a strong Duke team in the windup of a P ia l e x t ra tw n d. St. Joseph's, seeking its sixth win of the season, entertaining Con c e r n in the opener at 7:45.

Led by Ronnie Mayer and Captain Joe Belmont the Dukes have ruled over three sequent ial opponents, and their only loss came to the University of Chattanooga and Georgia Tech. With the skilled Duroc and Alex Delucia will join Joe Burgio, Fran Massey, and Lou Bayne, a team he says is second to none in overcoming Duke's height advantage. The Blue Devils first team averages 6'4".

Belmont is Playmaker
Duke's great height naturally provokes the team's excellent backboard strength. How ever, in Belmont the Blue Devils may find a skilled man to break that local product. He is extremely fast and has the ability to knock down any shot. Mayer, a 6'4" forward, made the Dukes with 26 points per game, but his 17 points per contest is an outstanding rebounder and was selected for Atlantic Coast Conference honors which again was average d at 21.5 points per contest.

Veterans Team
Jack Kahlil, one of many vet eran players, made the Belmont to give a Duke a strong backcourt con test. Joe Burgio is a good point man to man-to-man defense effective. Penn State's 6'3" Junior Morgan, a 4'9" pointman, is a strong Conference contender.

A strong Conference consider ation, perhaps, but if the Dukes can man-to-man defense effective. Pen n State is a big challenge and greatly improve its back board weakness. Dukes have been victorious but only because of the re d and Blue. The last time the two met was in the Duke Classic three years ago when Penn came through with a 52-40 win on the strength of Ernie Beck's record-breaking 47 points.

Penn's Christmas Spirit on Campus Includes Chapel, Trees, Spanish Club Party

James R. Gilmore, chairman of the University's Students' Council, said that this year's Christmas program is planning to include an additional meeting of the Student Senate at 9:30 p.m. The theme of the meeting is "The Bells of Christmas," with the agenda to discuss several topics, including the possibility of establishing a Christmas tree on campus.

The program will also feature a special guest speaker, Dr. John Otto Racz, a well-known speaker on the topic of juvenile delinquency. He will deliver a keynote address on the importance of understanding and addressing the needs of juvenile offenders.

Students are encouraged to attend and participate in the discussion on ways to improve the campus environment, focusing on the integration of students with diverse backgrounds and experiences.

The meeting will be held in the Student Center, and refreshments will be served. Everyone is welcome, and students are invited to bring friends and family.

Subcommittees Formed To Study Legality, Origin of Liquor on Campus

Desire To Hold Social Events on Campus

The Undergraduate Council has established two subcommittees to study the legality and origin of liquor on campus, as well as the desirability of holding social events on campus.

The first subcommittee, chaired by Pennsylvania resident and political science student, Dr. John Otto Racz, will meet at 7 p.m. in the Student Center to discuss the legal implications of on-campus social events and the potential benefits and drawbacks of allowing such events.

The second subcommittee, led by Pennsylvania resident and political science student, Dr. John Otto Racz, will meet at 7 p.m. in the Student Center to discuss the potential benefits and drawbacks of allowing social events on campus.

The Council has also tasked Dr. John Otto Racz, a political science professor at the University of Pennsylvania, to conduct research on the history of alcohol use on college campuses and the impact of such usage on student well-being.

Dr. Racz will present his findings at the subcommittee meetings, and the Council will use this information to make informed decisions about the future of social events on campus.

Through these efforts, the Undergraduate Council aims to ensure a safe and enjoyable campus environment while respecting the needs and desires of all students.

Quaker Mermen Meet Brown; Seek Second Straight Victory

Out to win its second straight meet, Pennsylvania's varsity swimming team meets Brown tomorrow afternoon at 3 at the Hutchinson Pool.

Penn's coach, Dick Fogelson and Tony Rundlof last year nosed out the Nittany Lion team captured against Penn when he won the 4x freestyle relay last year. Penn won last year's meet 118–78.

In their first meet of this season, the Quakers defeated the Ohio State Gaurd Academy by a 74–26 score. The Bears were eight out of ten meets losing only the diving and the 440-yard freestyle relay.

The Bears 200-yard medley relay team made an entire effort at breaking the Nittany Lion record, but were beaten by the best that Brown has had in recent years. Last year, while freshmen, this same team set a new school record for the event. Besides the re-capitalizing other key men on the Brute squad include Ira Levin, Andy Martin, Bill Haitle and Al Chap.

Seek Second Straight Victory

Wrestlers Face Toughest Battle In Lehight Meet

Lehigh University, which recently fields one of the strongest wrestling teams in the nation, plays host to Pennsylvania today night and will attempt to win its second straight young season for the Quakers.

Lehigh has 146 points. Penn, who has the returning incumbent, has the last squad which finished with an impressive 9-1 record in dual meets. In fact only meet so far this season the Engineers have defeated Cornell, 20.

Eichelberger Outstanding

Topping the list of holdovers is Ed Eichelberger, last year's 145-pound champ, and Dick Bogut, now a 167-pounder who won the NCAA championship at 145 pounds. Eichelberger was noted by the nation's wrestling coaches as the most outstanding wrestler in both tournaments. He will do most of his wrestling this year, however, at 167 pounds.

Kline, Roberts Outstanding

"I hope that we will be at full strength for tomorrow," said Penn coach Charlie Ridenhouse. "I think that the answer to this question is quite evident. Dick Bogut, the 200-pounder, and Ted Bolt, the 167-pounder, have both given the Quakers a strong foundation in our lineup. The only other man that I'm thinking about is not so important as the others. They may help us win.

Steve Freidberg, Penn's other co-captain, and Loren Dan, another returning player, will attempt to extend their season's streaks to three.

The Penn freshmen also journey to Bethlehem to meet the Lehigh wrestling.

Fencers Face Open Campaign Travel To Meet Rutgers

Pennsylvania's varsity and freshman fencing teams travel to New Brunswick, New Jersey tomorrow to face the Rutgers Knights in the first meet of the season for both teams.

Coach Lajos Csiszar reported earlier this week that he would be the first time that the Quakers have met their counterparts in the East. However, even though the season begins here, the Quakers plan to be among the leaders in the East.

The Maestro plans to start with Joe Trickle and junior Larry Smith and Irwin Weinberger. In the reserve classification, co-captain Al Minisky and Dave Messenger have only a few days to prepare themselves for the big meet. The story is different, however, among the freshmen. Considering the whole picture, it does not appear that the Quakers will win against the Scarlet Knights.
