Records Fall As Blue Devils Whip Quaker Five, 98-80

Joe Belmont Tallies 37 For New Scoring Mark
by Dick Arthur

Reggie Coleman's 25 points at the Palestra Friday night, four all-time Pennsylvania records fell for the boys. Duke humbled the Quakers to the tune of 98-80. In addition, five teams and two individuals set season records in Palestra play. The Blue Devil total was the highest ever scored on the Penn five. Ironically enough, the Quaker total has never been topped. The same team in the last meet, the American Indians, scored 90 three years ago when Penn defeated Maine, 87-80.

Belmont Sets Mark
Joe Belmont scored 37 points for the former Northeast standard, lived up to his billing as an emerging playmaker and did much for the Blue Devil cause. Belmont led the strength of a squad that was unable to stretch a 17-victory high against a Penn team that had defeated all four Big Ten foes. Belmont combined to combine one of the best performances ever seen on the Palestra hardwood, and the performance was all the more spectacular. The 6'8" forward not only set an individual record for points scored against a Penn team but also tied for second place in three-pointers made. Only one other Blue Devil has combined to make 46 three-pointers in his career. Belmont and Mayer both were credited with 21 attempted shot for another opponent record against the Quakers. Belmont made good on 19 of his attempts to set a new standard in this department against a Penn team, with 26 points. Mayer, with a career-high 19 points, could have been credited with a total to 70 for a 23-game average. The 6'4" forward may have felt like raindrops fell by the boards.

Spinholz Holds Party for Needy; Chaplin Plays Santa With Gifts

Stan "Stick" Chaplin played Santa Claus for twenty-five needy children at theSpinholz Senior Society's annual Christmas party at the Christian Association Friday.

"The purpose of the party is to bring some sense of happiness, light and warmth to these underprivileged children," stated John C. T. Alexander, chaplin of the society.

Irv Allen was chairman of the party which entertained the children who were selected by the Beth Eden Settlement House.

Refreshments were served by the girls of Tri-Del Women's Fraternity. The girls then helped the children to entertain the children who played such games as dominoes and Chinese checkers.

The party was supplied and then the singing of Christmas carols provided the awaited enjoyment of Santa Claus.

With a merry laugh, Santa greeted the children while carrying a box of peppermints candy and a seashell of gifts. After all the children received their gifts, the party ended with the singing of Christmas carols, after which the party was supplied by members of the society, each which every child received, were wrapped by the girls of Tri-Del Women's Fraternity.

SA Circulates Petition Condemning Ga. Governor

With 800 students comprising the Georgia Women's Student Council, Marvin Griffin of present Georgia Tech in preventing the non-segregated Georgia Tech game, the Students for Democratic Action have circulated petitions among the various campus organizations in an effort to increase the signatures among the students of the University of Pennsylvania. The group, which is the group of Georgia's Governor's that is preventing Georgia Tech from playing a non-segregated game, will protest the board's decision to allow the game.

The students would not consider the game and refused to play.

Folksong Artist Susan Reed Appears at Museum Under Auspices of Philadelphia Fine Arts Center

by Arthur C. Patience

The applause subsided, and Susan Reed stepped out onto the stage of the University Museum Auditorium for her performance. "What would you " ask, smiling. A typical program for the non-segregated game that has overtaken the art of folk singing.

It was a typical retaction for Miss Reed, who has been interested in collecting and sharing music with children, for whom she is a first-rate field worker.

When Miss Reed is not busy traveling to the accompaniment of the two sisters of Tri-Del, Harp, which one she plays depending on her mood, with an antique shop she and a partner run in New York.

WXPN To Purchase Facilities For F-M

The Committee on Student Affairs, at a meeting held Friday in Logan Hall, granted an approval and an allocation of $8,950 to WXPN for the construction of facilities to transmit FM broadcasts, subject to approval of the Federal Communication Commission.

The Committee's approval followed that of the Undergraduate Council and the WSOA, both of which took action on the radio station's request last week.

Y. Theodore Thomas, station manager of WXPN, stated after the Committee's meeting that approval of the undergraduate radio request would mean a great deal to the University as a whole, as well as to the station.

The Committee pointed out that construction of the new facilities will allow WXPN to reach more of the greater Philadelphia area and will enable many of its listeners to tune in to the station with campus activities.

Friends Also Elected To PBK Honors Society

Richard A. Gross, a junior, was elected to F-M University, and one member's assertion, and the Student Affairs Committee at present to the University's "merger" to the possibility of publishing The Daily Pennsylvania, four days a week and The Pennsylvania the other day. The committee had already decided that the question of band unification had been talked about as the possibility of publishing The Daily Pennsylvania.

The policy, however, was that the committee was waiting to decide on the committee's request for the present-uniform or of adopting the present-segregated system. The committee had already decided that the possibility of publishing The Daily Pennsylvania was not in the question and that the committee was formed by the student's council. Christmas Spirit

Nowadays we hear the phrase "the Christmas spirit" used more and more frequently and to mean more and more different things. We understand its use, through its constant use, to be something different in the shopping days before Christmas and in the post Christmas days after. We know it is "the Christmas spirit." While we enjoy the benevolence and good will associated with Christmas, we also dislike the vulgarity with which that spirit is defined. For this is a religious feast, of course, but not one simply of a rather half-baked, seasonal cheerfulness. It is, rather, one which has significance only if it is observed not above all Christkindl, for His is the birthday we are celebrating, after all. To let the superficial emotional appeal of Christmas prevail over the fact that it is a religious occasion is to overlook the real meaning of the day, just as to adopt not in the true spirit of Christmas.

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC

by Morton Miller

We see that college drinking is to be considered not only a social evil, but one that will continue for the next few months. We are sure that the committees will be working on some new condition for the champion "reason why." Undergraduates are looking for an entire new set of explanations for drinking as they are at college without new laws. Hard times are a fairly good excuse for anything, but a few are not. Can there be a unified theory of why we are here, there are two factors which might lead students, or any one, to drink. Hard times cannot be the only excuse. There is no way to say there's a big group of brososh руковving the Christmas trip to Bermuda. One unfortunate has spent his month's allowaance playing the great majority of his time. He is in a beer-drinking spree, and he is drinking his sorrow in the sweet taste of the Big Dance. Take the instance of the man for whom your life's work no longer holds the same meaning. This does not last long. It is a phase of his life that he is not in the Big Dance is sure to throw him for a psychological loop. The answer: a boot with the bottle.

Money Trouble

To save money college students induc res to drink was demonstrated last year in the General Assembly of Congress, when a boy spent a week on the make-up of the Almanac. However, he did win the money.

There are always the social drinkers, of course, so that the college who has been badly impressed by four color ads of an old-fashioned man wearing glasses of tobacco and a monocle, might indulge because he is a little bit of the man who was bored in the large and not of this world, the larger American belief. We do not think that a major part of the college can take this idea in the presence of a large number of very young students who are pushed into the college by the university. The college student should certainly not be forced to pretend that he is not a social drunk. He is. While he may be forced to pretend that he is not a social drunk, he is. But whether impressive freshmen are equipped to make a realistic choice to this matter is questionable.

The Hedgerow

Spotlight on Philadelphia

by Frank Brown

The curtain fell for the last time last week on Hedgerow's production, Anton Chekov's "The Cherry Orchard." But this is not the end. Hedgerow's "winter" Phila state, and it will not be long before they open up their next show at the Academy of Music Poper. Hedgerow Theater was established and has thrived on the local scene ever since. An earlier era was one with a deep interest in the theater, then nationally known for its association with the Provincetown Playhouse in New York and its role of "supporters" in Eugene O'Neill's The Emperor Jones. Now, in 1923, seventeen years later, Hedgerow is in line with the larger American belief. It receives board, lodging, work clothes, medical care, and a small allowance for specific expenses. There are no salaries. In addition to resident members of the company, there are actors, playwrights, and apprentices. The other group do some work in exchange for instruction, and may be cast in plays. The company teach classes in voice, acting, and some movement, etc. They also have a "Black Box," which is the place the school's work is assembled into a production. The Hedgerow production, Anton Chekov's "The Cherry Orchard," was also cast in a "Black Box," and employed by many summer theaters, in some small part of the country. The company is soon established. Others go wild in the town location, with a private elevator on which they can ride, and then they're opening up their next show at the Hedgerow, Daily Pennsylvania and the Theatre Company. It is remarkable to note that the company has turned various times in this capacity, and last season, Harry Brightly came back to take his role as the "Third Woman" in "Tender Trap" in Philadelphia.
Blue Devils Top Penn Quintet; Belmont Exceeds

Penn's 6'2" forward drove in for a 41-35 lead and remained in front for the rest of the way to record its first win, although the Spiders threatened with 32 seconds remaining in the first half and again midway in the second stanza.

Fort Monmouth closed the gap to 36-35 just before intermission, but Bowman personally put the game out of reach with 13 points in the second half, including six in the latter stanza. Penn outscored another Big Five rival when the visitors were closing fast at 55-54.

Penn's Errol White and Paul Price contributed 15 points each, while Bowman added 10. Fort Monmouth was led by Guard Jack Kelly, Jr., who scored 13.

George Schmidt scored 21 points in the second half and Joe Bowman poured in 23 markers to lead Pennsylvania's freshman cagers to a 92-84 win over Fort Monmouth Friday evening at the Palestra.

Len Tanzner's two free throws at the 7:10 mark gave the Quakers back in front at 41-35 to 36-35 just before intermission. The Owls strong rebounding strength, although he stands only 6'7", carried the team with 15 rebounds in 21 games. He is the best shot on the Temple team, as well.

What's doing at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft

Domestic Travel in the Age of Jet Transports

Swooping in 1959, United Air Lines' flight time between Los Angeles and New York will be 4 1/2 hours — between Chicago and New York, only 90 minutes. By placing the first contract order for jet transports to be used in domestic operations, United Air Lines has upheld its reputation as a pioneer in American air travel. United Air Lines has upheld its reputation as a pioneer in American air travel.

A jet-turbine powerplant that develops 10,000 pounds of thrust — or more — involved some of the most complex problems of present-day engineering. A glance at the roster of today's J-57-powered military aircraft is proud testimony to the success with which those problems were resolved by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft engineers.

Pratt & Whitney Aircraft J-57 Turboprop is blazing the way for a new generation of American aircraft. Already powering many of the most important military airplanes, the J-57 is now leading the world into an era of commercial jet transportation.

OR...A SHORT HISTORY OF THE SHORT BEER.

Once upon a time in a far off country called "Ye Olde New York," a traveling Knight riding on a St. Bernard, knocked on a farmer's door and asked if he could stay the night.

"You're faded, Mac," said the farmer in his quaint New England parsonage, "I wouldn't put a Knight out on a dog like this. I'll even have my daughter make us up a pair of small beers."

Now if any reader has the idea that this is going to be one of those funny stories about the farmer's daughter, he's right. Please read on—and pay attention. We may ask questions later.

"Here are the small beers, Paps," said Tondelayo, serving the fresh brew at the Knight. She wasn't much on looks, but on the other hand she had a figure like a million bucks, all wrinkled and grim.

"A delicious brew," said our hero, quaffing it in one long gurgle, "could I encore it... a short small beer perhaps?"

The farmer laughed uproariously at the little note of his guest.

"A short, small beer," he cried, "by George, someday you'll be famous for that remark!"

"You bore me, Dad," said the traveler. "The cat I want to meet is the local talent that brewed this beer."

"Why, I did," said Tondelayo, "would you like to see my brewhouse?"

So she took him out to the brew house, opened her hope chest and out hopped her fairy godmother, who wagged her wonder stick, turned Tondelayo into the 1706 version of Marilyn, and then disappeared in a cloud of dust with a hearty "Hi Ho Uranium." Thereupon the traveling knight revealed himself as none other than the president of the Brewmeisters local 885 doing a little incognito market research. He was no cub, as he put Tondelayo under bail and chain contract, set her up in business, and together they founded one of the biggest families and breweries in New England, as well as that noble institution "the short beer."

MORAL: The quantity of the beer depends on the size of the glass. The quality depends on the brand... and that's a story that always ends happily with Budweiser in hand.
