Expressway Encroaches On University Property; Sports Facilities Altered

The construction of the Schuylkill Expressway along the eastern fringe of the campus will necessitate the canceling of some of the athletic facilities of Murphy Field and a series of baseball and football games announced George Turner, director of physical plant planning.

The changes in the athletic facilities of Murphy Field will probably be slight. Small changes will be made in the baseball diamond and football field. However, the relocation of the road serving the university and the University steam plant will be

Council's Delay Made Directories Late to Printer

Rushing directories were not available for distribution to the students due to circumstances on Monday and as planned because of the Interfraternity Council to move the material to the printer on time.

The directories were mailed on time and will be distributed in time in which to address their purposes. The directories are completed.

The construction of the new directory is completed. The directories are the first made for these students.

Controversial Subject of “Golden Arm” Present by Blatant Stock Techniques

by Link and Levinson

Close Up

Orito Preminger's "The Man With the Golden Arm" is one of the most controversial films of recent years, and for obvious reasons. It is a compelling and powerful mood picture, although some feel that it is a bit long. One of the most controversial aspects of this film is the use of blatan stock techniques, which have been a point of contention among film critics.

Preminger presents the story of Frankie Machine, a young man who is struggling to overcome his heroin addiction. The film follows Frankie from his days as a heroin user to his eventual rehabilitation. "The Man With the Golden Arm" is a powerful film that explores the complex issues of addiction and recovery.

Superior Performance by Sinatra

Sinatra gives an outstanding performance in his role as Frankie Machine. He is able to convey the raw emotion and vulnerability of the character in a way that is both moving and authentic. "The Man With the Golden Arm" is a testament to Sinatra's talent as an actor.

Costuming by Travis

The film's costumes are designed by Travis, and they are a significant aspect of the film. The costumes are carefully crafted to reflect the characters' personalities and the period in which the film is set. "The Man With the Golden Arm" is a visually striking film that is enhanced by the costumes.

Overt Coldness Depicted

"The Man With the Golden Arm" depicts a cold and detached society, with the film's protagonist struggling to find a place in a world that seems to have no room for him. The film explores themes of addiction, rehabilitation, and the human condition.

The Reviewing Stand

Here Is O'Hara

by Richard Litchford

"The Man With the Golden Arm" is a powerful film that explores the complex issues of addiction and recovery. The film's performances, direction, and cinematography are exceptional, making it a must-see for anyone interested in the film industry.

VIVE LE POPCORN!

The other day as I was walking down the street picking up a Phish magazine in the newspaper stand, which is not surprising when you consider that they have the best cigarettz, which is only surprising when you consider that they buy the best tobacco and the best paper and put them together with skill and being careful and wooden tobaccos, fresh and firm and loaded with gentle smoking pleasure to fill the palate and beguile the senses and show the blues the other day, as I was saying, I was also walking past the street picking up tinfoil (I have, incidentally, the second largest bull of tinfoil in my family. My brother Ronin's is the third largest in diameter, but, of course, he is taller than I) the other day, as I was saying, while walking past the street picking up tinfoil, I passed a campus and right beside it, a movie theatre which specialised in showing foreign films (I am showing foreign films are located near our campus).

And the answer can't be right because most foreign films are full of culture, art, and esoterica, and where is culture anywhere to be found in this day and age. I had, after all, seen more endemically on a campus? Nowhere, that's where!

I hope that all of you have been taking advantage of the foreign films, speaking of which, I have been doing some simple-minded Hollywood products – full of trenchant sentiment and the no-brainer variety. Here you will find life itself – life in all its grimness, in all its nobility.

Have you, for instance, seen the recent French import, Le Dernier des Barbares, a stirring wartime tale about a boy and his dog? Malvolio, a Venetian lad of nine, loves his little dog with every fibre of his being. He has one great dream: to enter the dog in the annual dog show at the park's bazaar. But that, alas, requires an entrance fee, and Malvolio, alas, is penniless. However, he saves and scrimps and steals and finally manages to enter the dog in the show. The dog, alas, comes in twenty-third. Malvolio sells him to a veterinarian.

Have you seen the new Japanese triumph, Khibari-Sen-no-Kabuto, a pulse-pounding historical romance about a boy and his dog? Yamato, a poor farmer, and his brother Edo who are engaged by a warlord on their way to market one morning! The warlord cuts Yamato in half with his samurai sword. Edo, with his little dog, dog and tinfoil, to enter the dog in the annual dog show at the park's bazaar. But that, alas, requires an entrance fee, and Malvolio, alas, is penniless. However, he saves and scrimps and steals and finally manages to enter the dog in the show. The dog, alas, comes in twenty-third. Malvolio sells him to a veterinarian. Man, that's pure pleasure!

It's a psychological fort:

Pleasure helps your disposition.

If you're a smoker, remember — more people get more pure pleasure from Camels than from any other cigarette.

No other cigarette is so sub-tasting, yet so mild!
College Jazz Contest Won by DePriest Quintet

INTERVIEWS...

with visiting engineering representatives of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft

Friday, February 10

MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS

• Any B.A. or B.S. degree.

• Mathematics through differential and integral calculus.

• One year of college physics (additional courses in chemistry or related sciences desirable).

• A good scholastic standing in undergraduate work, particularly in math and science courses.

• Desire to pursue a career in engineering.

PRATT & WHITNEY AIRCRAFT, one of America's greatest engineering organizations, is offering a comprehensive engineering course to qualified B.A. or B.S. graduates. Those enrolled in this program will be paid a liberal salary — with increases as scholastic progress is shown.

The educational program itself will be conducted, at our expense, by one of the nation's foremost engineering colleges. Graduates of this 30-week course will be assigned to our engineering department. Here, they will be given the opportunity to do creative engineering work on the world's finest aircraft engines.

Such an unusual opportunity should be fully investi- gated by B.A. or B.S. graduates with engineering interest. Further information and literature can be obtained from the College Placement Office — appointments for interviews can also be made.
