Chapel Sponsored by Seniors

The final chapel of this year is sponsored by the seniors and is part of the activities of Ivi Weekend. Donald R. Denius is chairman of the chapel committee, and he will introduce the hymn "Thine, Whose Almighty". The call to worship will be given by David E. Lasher, assistant rector, and D. A. G. Endick will give the invocation in which the congregation will participate.

Miss Judith W. Kolesa, president of the seniors' class, will read selected verses from the Bible according to Mark, 4:6-9. Following the Bible reading, a selection of literary passages will be taken from the "Greek of an In-" by Richard P. C. M. H. Boswell. The final selection will be the anthem "At All-University Chapel" by A. W. A. A. W. Anderson.

Museum Displays African Art Exhibit

Featuring pieces from eleven museums and twenty-four private collections, the exhibition "African Tribal Sculpture - A Headswom's Dream" is being held in the University Museum. The exhibition is considered one of the finest of its type ever shown, according to Geraldine Brough, registrar of the museum. The exhibition is being promoted by the East African chapter of the AAS, and it will continue through the end of the semester. The title of the exhibition has been changed to "African Art and Architecture".

Night Duty May Be Scheduled For Dorm Advisors, Says Haun

Dormitory advisors for next year may be required to serve regularly scheduled night duty on one night a week, Dr. Eugene Haun, chairman of the dormitory committee, announced. In this way we will be able to provide greater and more efficient service to students who are on night duty approximately ten percent of the time.

Ivy Ball Booths Selected Today

The advisors may be put on a similar work schedule to dormitory proctors, who are on duty one night a week. Dr. Haun said this will allow us to serve the students who are there regularly on one night a week.

The Ivy Ball

Friday night, the last formal function of the Class of '56, the Ivy Ball will be held at the Broadwood Hotel, featuring the Kenton band. For the first time in a number of years, we have been pleased to note that no one has objected to the orchestra selected to play at the Ball, and that we have been appalled by student apathy. We have seen the same students who say that they haven't considered going to the Ball. The Ivy Ball has not been a money-maker for the last few years. If this year's ball should follow this trend, it seems likely that a drastic reappraisal might well mean a lowering in status of this last big event of the school year, which would be most unfortunate.

The Ivy Ball committee has had to contend with more than disinterest on the part of individual students. Several fraternities have somewhat selfishly planned events at the same time, further reducing the number of couples who might attend.

For the belief that the Senior Class sponsors the Ball, the dance is, of course, open to all members of the University. There's still time for you to pack your tux pressed, and buy your ticket to what should be one of the best Ivy Balls in years.

Dreams and Reality

We note that the State Legislature has passed a bill enabling the General State Authority to aid the University in building construction. We have, for some three years, gaze at a pretty little lump of the campus entitled Dream Nears Reality. The thought that the Authority might actually help accomplish dreams gives us a thrill — leaves us waiting expectantly.

Girls Walked A Mile From J.P. Sheedy's Till
Wildroot Cream-Oil Gave Him Confidence

“Aren’t you this fellow’sewire?” She asked his little finger. “Sure isn’t!” she shrieked, “Your hair’s too shaggy, Sheedy. Confidentially, it’s too long.”

A Band of Many Talents

by Melvin Farman

Stan Kenton, the most significant and dynamic figure of modern music arrives at Pennsylvania on Friday evening, May 16, at the Ivy Ball. Stan's greatest strength and probably his greatest weakness lies in the music itself, creating a situation where the music personality dominates in portraying the Kenton concept of jazz.

This latest Kenton band is unquestionably the best and the reasons are obvious. At the fore is Stan himself, directing and placing the band to follow. He is aided by the arrangements and orchestration of his talented colleagues, and supported by the excellent performance of the materials in playing these pieces.

The Components:

The contributors to the Kenton “book” include the following noted composers and arrangers: Kenton himself, Bill Holman, Gerry Mulligan, Pete Rugolo, Johnny Richards and Franklin Marks. The last two have been closely identified with the Kenton band in the past, and they have worked in perfect harmony with the writing of the new Kenton band.

This excellence of writing presents a challenge even to the Kenton band, and the net result being that only superior musicians find their place and position in the Kenton band. This has always been true of the band’s personnel. There were: Shelly Manne, Lee Konitz, Ray Nance, Kurt Edelhoch, Bob Brookmeyer, Joe Newman, Bill Perkins. The present Kenton band is not conformed to any particular place it can sit without being placed horizontally, vertically and diagonally.

There is something almost cosmic about this new Kenton sound as it varies in dynamics, texture and intensity. This is accomplished by a trio of live kangaroos, they have handled a highly interesting assignment with amazing ease.

Credit is definitely due the Club members who directed the production, and to the performers themselves for a highly accurate and entertaining show, and a job well done.

A former caddy's ambition took more than a youngster's dream last week when Al McQuiston enrolled two University golf teams in two Pennsylvania tournaments.

The Quaker captain established records in most games with 2.72 and most points scored in intercollegiate competition (35), as Penn triumphed in every one of Pennsylvania golf records.
