Chworskowsky Speaks
Today on Desegregation

The keynote speaker for today's meeting of the University's Committee on Race Relations will be Dr. Chworskowsky, director of the Albert M. Sabin Center for Urban Research.

Dr. Chworskowsky will discuss the topic of desegregation and will present his views on the social, economic, and political implications of desegregation. He will also address the question of how desegregation can be achieved in a way that is fair and just to all parties involved.

In his presentation, Dr. Chworskowsky will draw on his extensive experience in the field of race relations and his work with various organizations and institutions. He will provide a comprehensive analysis of the current state of desegregation and offer insights into potential solutions to the problem.

This event is part of the University's ongoing commitment to promoting social justice and equality. The committee on race relations is made up of students, faculty, and staff from various departments and schools across the university. The committee meets regularly to discuss issues related to race and ethnicity and to promote understanding and cooperation among different groups.

The event will take place in the University Center at 4:00 p.m. and is open to the public. It is anticipated that the discussion will be informative and thought-provoking, and we encourage all members of the community to attend.
It was Homecoming Day at Franklin Field. The sun was shining, the air was crisp, and the red and blue were in full swing. The crowd was loud, the colors were bright, and the spirit was high. It was a day to remember.

The Penn football team was on the field, ready to take on their rival, the Quakers. The game was intense, and the crowd was cheering them on. The players were拼尽全力, and the atmosphere was electric.

As the game went on, the Penn team kept their lead, and the crowd cheered them on. The game was a success, and the players were happy to be back on the field.

The day ended with the Penn team celebrating their win, and the crowd cheering them on. It was a great day for Penn football, and everyone was looking forward to the next game.

The Tig' Credit for the big factor..." was the sentiment of many fans who watched the game. The Tig' was puttering offense brought the Quakers a first down on their own 18-yard line, and when we did, the ball didn't make it into the end zone. The Tig' didn't get a first down, but the Quakers weren't about to let the Tig' off the hook.

Penn Varsity Booters Defeat Princeton As Tyrrell Excels

Pennsylvania's varsity soccer team won its second straight Ivy League game as they defeated Princeton, 5-1, Saturday at Stewart Field.

In the third period Dick Tyrrell made a 1-1 deadlock by scoring two goals within four minutes to give Penn its victory. The Quakers, who are in most of their second straight Ivy League championship.

The third period was completely dominated by the Quakers. At 15:05 of the period, Tyrrell booted the first of his two goals. Jack Finley, Penn defenderman, headed the ball to Dick Jelinak, who passed it to Tyrrell to set up the first goal.

Less than four minutes later on a pass from Jasin Mayall, Tyrrell scored his second goal from in front of the net. Thus was Penn's winning goal for the remnant of the third period and the final quarter.

Dick Williams, Penn goalie, was credited with eight saves for the game while Maury McKeen, his Tiger counterpart, was credited with eight saves.

The Quakers were aided by the return of left halfback Jim O'Neill, who had injured himself earlier in the year in a scrimmage game with Brown.

The Quakers next game is against Brown, Saturday morning, at Stewart Field.
