Stevenson Rips Eisenhowen 'Myth' at Palestra

Ravdin Institute Project
Announced by Harnwell
At Retirement Ceremony

Steve Stevenson ripped President Eisenhower last night at the University of Pennsylvania's Palestra on the lid of what he called the "myth" of the president as the driving force of national policy.

The former governor of Illinois charged that because of the Vietnam War, the president had become "too busy being a general" to handle the "business end" of government.

"Nowhere in my book, 'I Like Ike,' did I say the president was a general," Stevenson told the crowd of 12,000 who jammed the Palestra for the event.

Stevenson said he had had some opportunity to purchase three tickets for the show, which was set for tomorrow night.

Tickets will be available for any of the ten performances which begin Thursday night and continue until Friday, November 10. Stevenson will address the audience on both Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Reception to Follow

Charles Meredith, undergraduate chairman of the University of Pennsylvania National Business Honor Society, called on President Stevenson to "Chair the reception for Mr. Stevenson from all the members of the University family." Stevenson said he was happy to do so, but that he made a mistake about the fans' names and "we must extend the electricity of the Palestra "

Dr. Gaylord P. Ham, M.D., General Howard M. Snyder delivered a message to Dr. Stevenson, and John R. Mitchell, Chief of the United States Weather Bureau, presented a report on the weather forecast.

Heart Restorative Found, Ballet Revises: New Use Discovered for Common Drug

Dr. Samuel Ballet recently disclosed that a new use for a previously common drug has been discovered which will help to enhance the healing and comfort of patients suffering from heart attack.

Dr. Ballet's experiments were performed in the heart of the affected area, and his associates were among the first to perform similar experiments on the heart while still within the individual.

The drug, which has been used in treatment of sore muscle, has been found to improve the healing and comfort of patients suffering from heart attack.

Golfing, Hunting Hit In Televised Speech

In a speech that he delivered at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences last week, Adlai Stevenson said that he would "consider" the possibility of running for president in 1960 if he were to find himself in a "similar situation as the one I found myself in last night." Stevenson's speech was broadcast live on television from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in Hollywood.

"I have not yet decided whether or not I will run for president," Stevenson told his audience. "But I am hearing a lot of talk about it, and I am thinking about it." Stevenson went on to say that he would consider running for president if he were to find himself in a "similar situation as the one I found myself in last night." Stevenson ended his speech by saying that he would keep his options open and that he would not rule out the possibility of running for president in 1960.

Stevenson also spoke on the importance of the United Nations and his support for the United Nations' role in maintaining world peace. Stevenson said that he believed that the United Nations was the only organization that could effectively deal with the world's problems. Stevenson praised the United Nations for its work in maintaining world peace and for its ability to bring nations together to work on common problems.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Daily Pennsylvanian:

As a student taking a course in journalism at Penn, I am asking the privilege of publishing in The Daily Pennsylvanian the grievances many of us "real Penns" have about the administration and the conduct of our football team.

Recently a national magazine published the album of our coach. The cover displayed the picture of the coach as an athlete in his prime. I am wondering how this could be so, since any glance at the team will show that he is now an octogenarian.

That we would do poorly against a team such as Penn State is understandable. That we might lose to Princeton seems understandable. That we might lose to Lafayette is incomprehensible.

In conclusion, I must say that I have a great desire to be ancestors of this football team.

Sincerely yours,

Quaker Booters Top Fords; Penn Harriers Meet Rutgers

Penn Harriers will attempt to foil their opponents this afternoon at New Brunswick when they square up in a dual cross-country meet. The Quakers dominated play throughout the entire game as they comprehensively defeated the Blue and Gold. The Blue and Gold were unable to maintain the momentum of the first half which was played by Dick Tyrrell, Quaker guard, and Charles in full of the first half. Second period was played by the excellent work of Penn guards Dick Williams and the Earl's centerman Don Willis.

Tyrrell Scores

The offense of both teams increased at the start of the second half. Just before the closing of the game Tyrrell scored again needed for the Quakers. This game caused a score by the Blue and Gold, but all three players to the Quakers, who missed the play of the game. The final score was 31-17, and there was no shortage of good play by both teams.

Students Select Stars of Week;

Tackle Frank Frisby and fullback New Zeilander were selected as linemen of the week, respectively, in The Daily Pennsylvania student body.

Fedora, a junior, was cited for his hard charging and blocking tactics in the Quakers' 24-0 defeat by Navy Saturday.
