Eisenhower To Speak
On Middle-East Crisis
In Rally Tonight at 9:30

Convention Hall Talk To Be Televised;
Emphasis Placed on U. S. Role in World

President Eisenhower will discuss the Middle East crisis tonight in Convention Hall at 9:30.

In his address to the Republican rally, will outline the position of the United States and its role in the world today. He is expected to emphasize the U. S. role in the Middle East in light of recent developments.

Arriving either by plane or train, depending upon weather conditions, the President will go to the Convention Hall and deliver his nationally televised address. After the talk he will return to Washington. He is not expected to return to the city.

The President will be introduced by Senator James B. McLaughlin, White House aide to the President before the taking of the oath of office.

The speakers besides the President, Duff, and Hanford will be:

Governor G. Mennen Williams: Representative Hugh B. Scott: Representative Patrick A. Clancy: Representative Frank Thompson: Senator Herschel V. perennial.

The Eisenhower Committee for Pennsylvania, Moreau Smith and Horace Scott, Convention candidates in the 4th and 6th Districts.

Considerable Question
Although the announcement of the President’s address was made last week, much question has arisen as to whether he will discuss the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The President has cancelled a plant tour and will depart Philadelphia at 12:30 PM.

The White House was closed for the trip to Philadelphia on the 2nd day after the rally.

Clowning Around—by Gaeton J. Fonzi

If I had the heart of a clown, the song would go something like this: "Gee, I'm so glad I'm a clown and can make you laugh all the time!" It may sound strange, but it's true. Clowns are not just entertainers; they are real people who have to deal with the same problems as everyone else. And they do it with a smile.

I remember the time I was doing a routine in the ring with a jester. We were having a great time, but suddenly the jester's hat fell off. I tried to help him put it back on, but he wouldn't let me. He said, "This hat is special. It was given to me by my grandfather. It's been in the family for generations." I thought it was a little weird, but I didn't want to make him feel bad. So I left it off and went on with the show.

Another time, I was doing a trick with a balloon. I had it in the air and everything was going well until I accidentally popped it. Everyone started laughing and I felt embarrassed. But then I realized that's what clowns do. They make mistakes and laugh at them, because that's what people expect from clowns.

But the most memorable moment was when I was doing a routine with a giant rubber elephant. We were supposed to be playing hide-and-seek, but the elephant kept eating the props. I tried to write a speech and make him laugh, but it didn't work. So I just sat there, looking at the elephant and thinking about how much I hate rubber elephants. And then it hit me. I turned to the audience and said, "I don't want to do this anymore. I want to go home and never come back to the circus again!"

But they didn't believe me. They wanted me to keep going, so I tried to come up with a new routine. And that's when I realized that clowns are not just entertainers; they are real people who have to deal with the same problems as everyone else. And they do it with a smile.

And that's why I'm still doing this. And I hope you are too. Because if you aren't, you're missing out on the funniest job in the world.
