Quaker Cagers Initiate Season Against Rutgers; McCloskey in Debut
Both Clubs To Relay on Speed, Hustle; Temple, Gettysburg Meet in Opener

by Bernie Schneier

In a sense, two phases in the development of basketball will be on display when Pennsylvania squares off with Rutgers in the nightcap and Temple meets Gettysburg in the opener. Both teams are hovering near the .500 mark. This will be Rutgers' first game since January 25 and the Quakers' first since October 18.

Newman Holds Square Dance In Boathouse
The annual Newman Club Barn Dance will be held tonight from 8 to 11 o'clock in the annual Newman Club Barn Dance, which will be held tonight from 8 to 11 o'clock. The dance will feature a square dance caller in addition to several featured dances. Newman said that there will be a band and the band will have several committees. Any person who is planning to go to the dance will have to go to the dance to purchase a ticket. Prizes will be given at the dance to those who take part in the dance.

Bonni Comments
Bonni added that refreshments will be served at the dance and that the event is good. The Newman Club is also sponsoring a Christmas basket drive for the troops overseas. Newman said that the drive will be held in conjunction with the annual Barn Dance. The drive will be held on Monday night and will have its headquarters at New York. Anyone who is interested in going to the dance and wishing to be included in the drive can purchase a ticket at the Newman Club.

Now that the football season is over, little bits which would otherwise get swallowed up by the coaches can be brought to light... For example. What ever happened to the watch that was said to have been the one that was used to bring the Deming spotter forward? It's a small point, but it's one that seems to be well known in the game. The watch was said to be given to the free safety, but no one ever seemed to offer an explanation of how it was supposed to work. If the watch was indeed a spotter's watch, it would be interesting to know how it was supposed to work in practice. If it was a regular watch, it's a bit of a mystery as to how it was supposed to work in games. If it was a special watch, it's a bit of a mystery as to how it was supposed to work in games.

As for the Deming spotter, it's a bit of a mystery as to how he managed to get past the three people out there, in the third stand, to give the signal. He just played it better than they did, or he just played it better than they did. It's a bit of a mystery as to how he managed to get past the three people out there, in the third stand, to give the signal. He just played it better than they did, or he just played it better than they did.

I think that the Deming spotter should be brought back into the game, for the simple reason that he is a better spotter than the three people out there, in the third stand. He just played it better than they did, or he just played it better than they did. It's a bit of a mystery as to how he managed to get past the three people out there, in the third stand, to give the signal. He just played it better than they did, or he just played it better than they did.

Once every month Gabriel Doom
Locked himself up in a sound-proof room
He laughed out loud and rocked with glee
At a life that was funny as life could be!

He laughed at the weather, sunny on Monday

He laughed at the news so loaded with grief
That an ax murder came as a pleasant relief?

He cried, “what with worry, hurry, and strife you couldn’t ask for a funnier life!”

Penn Cagers To Initiate Season Against Rutgers

Al Deluca

A true defense, something that is quite improbable in the face of Rutgers' quick man-to-man style of play, Paul Kelso, 5'10" jumper who in the past few games has given the Quakers trouble, will not be there to defend tonight, according to coach Carl Drapkin.

Deluca and Paul McWhorter are the two men who should be the best in charge of the 6'11" Brunswick native at right.

Keesey described Deluca as a defensive specialist who would be placed in the key areas at the point guard post.

Keesey, a veteran of the Florida State basketball program, will bring a winning attitude to the court tonight, something that is lacking in the Quakers.

Keesey said that he would not make any adjustments to the team's play as a result of the loss of Deluca.

On the contrary, Keesey said that Deluca's loss would be the stimulus for the team to play better.

Yearling Mermen Open Season Against Hill School Tomorrow

In its initial appearance of the year, Penn's freshman swimming team will journey to the Hill School tomorrow to take on the Hill Rebel swimmers.

Coach Jack Medica initiated that the squad contains some good prospects, but that the Hill School will be stiff competition because it is one of the best prep schools in the country. The Quaker coach feels that the freshmen will do fairly well in competition this year.

Among the possible starters are Kenny Ball, a buffet scribbler who was a member of the Florida State championship swimming team, and Joe Blank, who possesses both skilled technical ability and speed.

In the 100 yard freestyle, Penn should hold its own with the Hill rebels as Blank is seeded to win the 100 yard freestyle record for the indoor 100 yard relay. Paul Norton, who holds the 100 yard freestyle and backstroke Junior A.A.U. records, in the District of Columbia and the 200 yard butterfly record at the Junior National A.A.U. meet, will also probably start.

Other possible starters are

William Dye, Randy Cook, and

Brian Griswold, who are likely to have good meets.

WXPN Hoop Broadcasts

WXPN will broadcast college basketball games, including all the Penn home and away contests.

These will be broadcasted during doubleheaders from the Palestra and the RCA. Eastern Regional games will also be carried. This extensive schedule begins at 7:30 p.m. with the Penn-Oregon Temple-Eastern showdown.

An interview with actress Faye Grant will be the highlight of the first broadcast.

Riepl Honored as Grid MVP
At Annual Bakers Club Fete

Back First Junior
To Receive Award

by William L.,

Frank Riepl became the first junior to be pre-presented by the Bakers Club of Phila-adelphia, Tuesday as the Most Valuable Player on the Penn football team.

Riepl accepted the MVP award

at the club's Eighth Annual Fete and Football Dinner at the Philadelphia Riffe Club last night.

The Bakers Club also honored

Ralph Walsen on the outstanding quarterback on the Philadelphia Riffe

Club, 1956, and awarded WCAU

spectators Bryan Scanlon and Gene Daily with identical trophies for outstanding and faithful service of sports events throughout the years to the Philadelphia

Riffe Club.

Riepl "You Excited?"

The dynamo Riepl, shy and solemn in his glory, was "too excited" to say anything. "My heart is just given her shade at home

(bush River, N.J.) and I was supposed to be there," he said.

"Rich be glad he has lots of friends," he said.

"I'm a very beautiful back for the better part of the recently ended season, but I need it because it is a season. Biehl made it apparent that he is a top player in the Ivy-

League. Biehl's record of 14 consecutive games and 19.8 points per game was second only to Rich Ross in points made by the pass rusher.

Then Penn traveled to Harvard.

In the sixth game of the campaign and Scholz unveiled his versatile back. Up until this time, Riepl served as a holdover. But in this game, he showed he was an all-star quality back.

Riepl, whose 4.8 average was loner, along with his play outside of the all-star unit was not really in the top five of five-star athletes of the Quaker team and was listed in nearly all of the Ivy League with two TVPs and two

PATS, even for 30 points in the game, and also shot 16 of 23 in the baskets and total pandas in the baskets.

Presenting the presentation of the award, Penn and Riepl and Walsen was a short talk by Bertie Lemeshow, the Bakers Alle-American guard and present line coach at his alma mater.

"The Ivy League is one of the finest conferences in the country," said

Lemeshow, who was quick to add

"Any time we have a season this year were achieved by boys with a games and win combinations in the future and Pennsylvania fans are fortunate in that they are going to see an Ivy champion perform every Saturday in Franklin Field."

J.V. Hoopsters Face Monmouth;
Soldiers Led by NBA Stars

Pennsylvania's newly instituted junior varsity basketball team inaugurated the 1956-57 season with what is probably the most imposing schedule in Quaker history—if only for the fact that it faces

Monmouth College. N. A. C.

Playing service teams is a job in itself, as they are usually loaded with ex-college players, but two rising young stars from the N.Y. B.A.

Tom Gola, formerly of Lafayette and the Philadelphia Warriors, and Ed

Fleming, ex-student of Niagara and the Rochester Royals.

In addition to this array of stars, the soldiers also have Mark

Boulton, who just about re-wrote the scoring record books every night at West Point.

In addition, the Quakers' mentor

Lee Tatum, will be further handicapped with a six-man squad.

J.V. team is composed of Tom Mec-

don, Hugh Deherty, Ken Rattan-ley, Mike Phie, Roy Von Dyke, and George Campbell.

Besides the two Fort Monmouth women, the J.V. will engage

Power Prep Dec. 6th at home.

OR... A SHORT HISTORY OF THE SHORT BEER

Once upon a time in a far off country called "Ye Olde New Yorke," a traveling Knight riding on a St. Bernard, knocked on a farmer's door and asked if he could stay the night.

"You're faded, Mac," said the farmer in his quaint New England parlance, "I wouldn't put a Knight out on a Dog like this. I'll even have my daughter rustle us up a pair of small bean."

"Just what I want to meet is the local talent that brewed this be."

"Why, I did," said Tondelayo, "would you like to see my bit?"

So she took him out to the brew house, opened her hop chest and out hopped her fairy godmother, who cast a spell on her and turned Tondelayo into the 1708 of Marilyn, and then disappeared in a cloud of dust with a hearty "Hi Ho Uranium." The traveling knight really being the president of the Brewweisters local 806 doing a little incognito market research. He was no cube. He put Tondelayo under hall and chain contra, set her up in business, and together they founded one of the biggest families and breweries in New England, as well as that noble institution "the short beer."

MORAL. The ends on the size of the brand ... and that's a story that always ends happily with Budweiser in hand.

"You're faded, Mac," said the farmer in his quaint New England parlance, "I wouldn't put a Knight out on a Dog like this. I'll even have my daughter rustle us up a pair of small beers."

Now if any reader has the idea that this is going to be one of those funny stories about the farmer's daughter, he's right. Please read on—and pay attention. We may ask questions later.

"Here are the small beers, Pape," said Tondelayo, "sticking a shy glance at the Knight. She wasn't much on looks, but on the other hand she had a figure like a million bucks, all wrinkled and green."

"A delicious brew," said one here, sporting it in one long gorge, "could I encode it... a short small bear perhaps?"

The farmer laughed uproariously at the little out of his guest.

"A short, small beer," he cried, "by George, someday you'll be famous for that remark!"

"You here me, Dad," said the traveler. "The cat I want to meet is the local talent that brewed this beer."

"Who, I did," said Tondelayo, "would you like to see my brewery?"

So she took him out to the brew house, opened her hop chest and out hopped her fairy godmother, who wagged her wonder stick, turned Tondelayo into the 1708 version of Marilyn, and then disappeared in a cloud of dust with a hearty "Hi Ho Uranium." Thereupon the traveling knight recorded himself as really being the president of the Brewweisters local 806 doing a little incognito market research. He was no cube, so he put Tondelayo under hall and chain contract, set her up in business, and together they founded one of the biggest families and breweries in New England, as well as that noble institution "the short beer."

MORAL. The quality of the beer depends on the size of the glass. The quality depends on the brand ... and that's a story that always ends happily with Budweiser in hand.
